Fired EMS Chief Suspected in Opioid Case

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Since January of 2023 Thomas Patrick Raley, a veteran emergency medical technician (EMT) and paramedic, has been fulfilling the role of chief of the county's career EMT force.

Almost six years ago, The County Times had reported, Raley was the same person who was charged with breaking into a medic box at the Leonardtown Volunteer Rescue Squad and taking prescription opioids to use for his own admitted addiction.

Coverage from The County Times and other local media outlets from 2019 showed that Raley had been charged with destruction of property and theft less than $100.

Court records of the charges against Raley no longer exist, according to an on-line search of the Maryland judiciary website.

On July 23 the Commissioners of St. Mary's County moved to terminate his contract as the county rescue chief; that same day the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office named Raley as the sole suspect in a recent spate of tampering incidents in county owned medic boxes that had reportedly been pilfered of narcotics and other drugs.

Raley has not been charged.

Commissioner Eric Colvin confirmed Monday that a unanimous decision last year by the Commissioners of St. Mary's County led to Raley being installed into his former position.

Commissioners acted with the full knowledge that he had been charged with breaking into the medic boxes and that Raley admitted he did so in police charging documents at the time to feed a drug habit, Colvin said.

Colvin said Raley's distinguished service record made him highly recommended for the job.

"It was unanimous across the board," Colvin said. "Everything was open and up front with [Raley's] past history."

This week during the Commissioners of St. Mary's County meeting on July 22

Thomas Patrick Raley

Commissioner Mike Hewitt did not mention Raley's name but admitted that when he went to the Hollywood Volunteer Fire Department's annual carnival over the weekend, he was constantly questioned over how another theft from medic boxes could be allowed to happen.

"This was a personnel incident but Lord knows, word travels fast," Hewitt said. "All the people know who, what, where, when and why.

"They asked me 'Commissioner how'd that happen?'"

Hewitt admitted the commissioners had made a mistake.

"This commissioner apologizes to the community," Hewitt said. "Because commissioners made the decision.

"Let's just say when the facts come out, when we can speak about it openly, let's just say maybe we'll think better and it'll be a learning experience for us all."

A source with knowledge of the investigation said that it appears as though there was only one suspect involved in the theft of narcotics from the medic boxes.

"Immediate actions were taken to notify law enforcement and medical authorities; and we are fully cooperating with their ongoing investigation," said Jennifer Utz, Director of the Department of Emergency Services. "We are deeply saddened by this incident and are committed to transparency as we navigate this challenge. "Ensuring the safety and well-being of our patients is our top priority. We are evaluating and updating our internal processes and will continue working closely with the state medical director, jurisdictional medical director, and local health officer to address this issue and protect our community. Any individual whose care may have been impacted by this incident will be contacted by our department directly."

Colvin said he was impressed with the speed with which the county's Department of Emergency Services began its check of all medic boxes throughout the county.

The Calvert County Sheriff's Office has joined the St. Mary's agency in investigating the case as identical incidents have happened there, the neighboring agency has reported.

Law enforcement officials in Calvert speaking privately said that Raley had worked as a volunteer paramedic there.

Calvert Assistant Sheriff David Payne said Raley had worked as a temporary paid employee at one time in that jurisdiction but no longer.

Payne confirmed Raley had worked in Calvert from Nov. 15, 2021 to July 19 of this year.

"He is no longer associated with Calvert County," Payne said.

Rescue Groups Speak Out on Animal Control Ordinance

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Members of animal relief and rescue groups are questioning why the county is limiting the number of animals, specifically dogs, to five that can be owned or homed by a resident before being required to get a kennel license.

The only alternative, according to the newly approved and revised animal control ordinance, would be to rehome the excess number of dogs.

"I'm here... to question why five animals is the maximum and why we'd have to get a kenneling license, especially if your pets are spayed [or] neutered and up to date on their shots and you are a responsible pet owner," said Sherry Russell, who volunteers with the Animal Relief Fund (ARF).

She said the regulations only made it harder for people to foster animals so they could eventually be handed over to a permanent home.

"The euthanasia rate is off the charts right now without fosters taking in animals," Russell continued. "It's only going to get worse."

Russell said more clarification was needed on the ordinance as to who would actually be required to get a kenneling license and its cost.

Residents with lower incomes who took good care of their animals but might not have the means for spaying or neutering should receive consideration, she said, while the elderly often had a special bond with their pets that improved their quality of life.

"It may be the only loving thing they have in their life," Russell said.

Brianna Stotler echoed Russell's comments.

"We both take in dogs that nobody wants," Stotler said. "Why is five the limit?"

"I think it should go case by case; having multiple [dogs] mean you can't take care of them."

If the county enacts an arbitrary cap, Stotler said, animal adoptions will suffer.

She said she was able to take in 17 rescue puppies recently in a two-week period and find homes for all of them.

"The regulations you have now, I don't are being followed through on," she said. "So I need to know how it's going to change."

Assistant Superintendent Passes Away

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Last week the county school system's Assistant Superintendent for Supporting Services, Dr. Alex Jaffurs, who also worked his way up through the system from the teaching ranks where he gained much popularity, died.

He was 55.

"He was a teacher, a coach, a mentor, a husband and a father," said Commissioner Eric Colvin during the Commissioners of St. Mary's County business meeting July 23. "He was one of my math teachers when I was in high school.

"He had that larger-than-life persona; he was one of those teachers that everyone who went to school there remembers."

"He had a big impact on a lot of young people," said Commissioner Mike Hewitt, whose son also had Jaffurs as a math teacher in high school.

In the classroom Jaffurs was known for having a passionate, out-sized personality while teaching.

Kelly Haines, another of his students, talked about this in a social media post upon learning of his passing on July 18.

"This one hurts and makes me so sad," Haines said. "Mr. Jaffurs was my absolute favorite teacher in high school.

"He made tough math classes a ton of fun and kept it exciting, which is hard for calculus!"

Haines said she had Jaffurs for three years in the classroom and remembered how he used every day items to keep the students' attention.

"Maybe the beating of the trashcan with the yard stick helped solidify that a bit," she said.

Before Jaffurs was in an assistant superintendent role he worked as chief accountability officer for the school system, putting his mathematical talents to good use.

He was also given to heroic action outside of the classroom.

In April of 2017 a U.S. Army Blackhawk helicopter crashed on Breton Bay Golf Course outside of Leonardtown, directly behind Jaffurs' home.

Both he and his son rushed out of their home immediately after the helicopter crashed to pull surviving crewmen out of the aircraft despite the danger.

Superintendent Dr. J. Scott Smith said he felt the loss on a personal and professional level.

"I struggle to find the appropriate words to convey my sense of loss as I have known and worked side by side with Alex since he first joined SMCPSS in 1994 and could always count on his laughter, love, and support in all facets of my personal and professional life," Smith said. "Over his thirty years of service, Dr. Jaffurs made a tremendous impact on the students, staff, and community of St. Mary's County. His service as a Milken Award-winning mathematics teacher, coach, mathematics supervisor, director, and assistant superintendent leaves a world changed for the better. Everyone who was taught, coached, and collaborated with Alex knew of his high expectations for, learning, leading, and serving others. As a result of his passionate dedication, his work resulted in positive changes in the school system, ranging from his dedicated work on improving curriculum and assessments to decision-making processes and management systems for our system's operations. Alex was also a strong advocate for the leaders in our system, and his leadership prompted the development and implementation of the system's leadership association, SMASA. Dr. Jaffurs served as the president of SMASA from guiding its inception to when he was appointed Assistant Superintendent of Supporting Services."

Two New Car Dealerships Approved

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Both a Honda dealership and a Kia dealership received unanimous approval from the county planning commission this week, with several conditions placed on their development before they get final approval by the director of the Department of Land Use and Growth Management.

The July 22 meeting was a continuation from the July 8 meeting where the hearing on the concept site plan was held over to allow for public comment.

The two dealerships were approved with several conditions such as traffic improvements to be paid for by the developer at the intersection of Route 235 and FDR Boulevard, ensuring that any off-loading of vehicles will take place on site and not on Route 235.

Also, neighboring community streets to the car dealerships cannot be used for test drives from the dealerships, according to the approval ruling from the planning commission, which includes: Oak Drive, Woodland Acres Road, Potter Drive, Old Line Court or any other road or right of way in Woodland Acres or Woodland Heights.

The entire project would be more than 47,000 square feet in size on about eight acres of land near the intersection of Three Notch Road and Route 4; the Honda dealership would be a one-story building of 27,242 square feet while the Kia dealership would be 20,296 square feet in size.

Despite the conditions placed on the developers of the project by the planning commission, residents near the project took their concerns over noise and traffic to the Commissioners of St. Mary's County the following day at a public forum.

"We have a lot of children in the community and we're a close-knit community," said Jay Armsworthy of the Woodland Acres neighborhood. "So, we're really concerned about the excess traffic and also the noise."

Funds Approved for Chaptico Wharf Repairs

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

This week the Commissioners of St. Mary's County approved the use of $199,000 awarded to the county's Department of Recreation and Parks in September of last year to make improvements at Chaptico Wharf.

The county-owned property consists of a double pier and boat ramp, according to county project documents.

"The improvement project includes the replacement of the existing caps, stringers, decking, sheathing on the wing walls, and all needed project hardware," county documents showed.

Recreation and parks director Arthur Shepherd called the receipt of the funds "a good deal" and said the Maryland Department of Natural Resources waterway improvement program funds had been used by the county many times in the past to make improvements to local waterway access points.

"For the past four years we've had minor projects with [waterfront improvement] money as well as major project at 13 of the 15 public landings."

Shepherd credited Parks Manager Roy Copsey and his team with using the grant money wisely to make improvements.

"At Chaptico we're going to replace pretty much everything except the pilings," Copsey said. "It needs it."

According to the state DNR, Chaptico Wharf is on the Wicomico River and can accommodate "large vessels" up to 26 feet long.

State Warns County Over Elms Property

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Earlier in the spring the state's Department of Natural Resources (DNR), which leases the 476-acre property known as Elms Beach to the county, and by extension the county school system, for environmental education purposes, told the county to stop using the two-story building on the property due to its dilapidated condition.

In a recent letter to the county, however, DNR cautioned the county against using the building until the it could be brought into full repair.

"The department is aware the county continued to use the building, despite this direction from the department," the letter sent to the county government stated. "We again reiterate that the building should not be used until all health and safety issues have been addressed."

The state has requested a meeting in Annapolis with county officials to discuss the future management and development of the property.

Environmental assessment records of the building taken in May by an independent contractor show that there were multiple concerns of asbestos contamination there.

"KCI recommends [county schools] to perform additional inspections or investigations prior to demolition and/or major renovations projects," the report from the inspection contractor reads. "Suspect materials that have not been determined for asbestos content must be assumed to be asbestos containing until sampled and proven otherwise by a Maryland licensed asbestos inspector and analysed for asbestos content by an accredited laboratory."

Lead was also found in some of the building's materials, according to the report, at levels that were above the Maryland Department of the Environment's action level of 0.7 milligrams per square centimeter.

Other deficiencies found in the building there include a lack of air conditioning, overloaded electrical wiring and a basement that was leaking and not cleaned or maintained, according to the report.

Former School Employee Sentenced to Prison for Sexual Abuse

State's Attorney Jaymi Sterling announced today that Davon Natrell Stewart, 23, of Lexington Park, Maryland, was sentenced to prison after he was found guilty of sexual abuse of a minor and placed on the sex offender registry for Life.

Stewart was found guilty of sexual abuse of a minor after a two-day bench trial in November 2023 for an incident involving a Chopticon High School student. The offense occurred during the 2022-2023 academic school year while Stewart was employed with the St. Mary's County Public Schools as a Safety and Security Assistant. The victim was a student enrolled at the same school.

"The Defendant abused his position of trust by using his authority to commit a sex offense on a child who was a student in the school he was supposed to serve and protect," State's Attorney Sterling said. "The exploitation of his position is deplorable—especially in a school, a place where children should always feel safe to grow and learn."

Although the Maryland Sentencing Guideline range calls for a sentence between five and 10 years in prison, the State requested the Court to go above the guideline range. The State advocated for a sentence of 25 years, which is the maximum sentence for this offense, with 15 years of active incarceration to serve. The State further requested Stewart be placed on the sexual offender registry for Life.

The Court sentenced Stewart to 15 years in prison with five years of active incarceration and ordered him to register as a sexual offender for Life.

Davon Natrell Stewart

Senior Assistant State's Attorney Sarah Proctor, Chief of the Special Victims Unit, prosecuted the case on behalf of the citizens of St. Mary's County.

Detective Tyler Payne of the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office was the lead investigator.

The Honorable Joseph M. Stalanis presided over the case.

Two Arrested Following Gun Theft from Local Business

Roger Glenn Chin

Wayne Darnell Winters

On Wednesday, July 17, 2024, Deputy Elijsha Munn responded to the Tackle Box in Lexington Park, MD, for a reported theft. Video surveillance footage showed an unknown suspect walking into the store, going behind the sales counter, taking a Ruger AR-15 rifle from the display rack, concealing it beneath his clothing, and exiting the store.

Images of the suspect were disseminated to officers, and while reviewing them, Deputy Bradley Kirscht recognized the suspect through prior involvement. The suspect, identified as Roger Glenn Chin, 40, is known to live in a homeless encampment in Lexington Park, MD. Deputies went to the encampment and located Chin in a tent, and he was arrested.

Detectives continued the investigation and learned Chin provided the firearm to Wayne Darnell Winters. On Thursday, July 18, 2024, deputies located Winters, 52, of Lexington Park, and recovered the weapon.

Chin was charged with possession of a stolen firearm, possession of a firearm with a felony conviction, illegal possession of a regulated firearm, illegal transfer of a regulated firearm, and related charges.

Winters was charged with possession of a firearm with a violent felony conviction, possession of a firearm with a felony conviction, illegal possession of a regulated firearm, and related charges.

Both suspects were transported to the Detention and Rehabilitation Center in Leonardtown to await bond hearings.

Lexington Park Man Arrested for Home Invasion, Assault

Delontey Montario Butler, 31, of Lexington Park, was arrested by deputies from the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office on Sunday, July 21. Butler was wanted on open warrants for home invasion, first-degree assault, and related charges.

The warrants stemmed from a 2023 incident in which Butler allegedly entered a residence, wielded a folding pocketknife, and lunged at the victim. The victim also reported that Butler produced a firearm from his waistband and threatened to shoot.

On Sunday, following an investigation into Butler's whereabouts, the suspect was apprehended in a residential area in the 46000 block of Radford Lane in Lexington Park after a short foot pursuit.

Butler faces charges including home invasion, first-degree assault, second-degree assault, firearm use during the commission of a violent crime, and additional related offenses. He was transported to the Detention and Rehabilitation Center in Leonardtown.

Affordable Housing Highlighted in DHCD's Day Trip to St. Mary's

Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development Secretary Jake Day visited Leonardtown's Main Street and parts of Lexington Park on Tuesday during the department's latest Day Trip stop.

The St. Mary's County tour was the 13th stop in DHCD's Day Trip series, which allows Secretary Day and senior staff to meet with local officials and share ways the department can help their communities.

From Fiscal Year 2020 to 2024, DHCD has provided more than $32 million in financial support for affordable housing, improvements for broadband infrastructure and neighborhood revitalization in St. Mary's County.

"St. Mary's County and DHCD have worked well together over the years and I look forward to continued collaboration with our government and community partners here," said Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development Secretary Jake Day. "Directly connecting with residents, community leaders and business owners today allows us to learn, provide solutions and ensure long-term success for St. Mary's County and the State of Maryland."

"St. Mary's County offers a unique blend of rural character, historic significance, and high-tech industry," said St. Mary's County Commissioner President James R. Guy. "We are grateful to Secretary Day, his team, and our local partners for a wonderful visit and their shared commitment to a vibrant Maryland and St. Mary's. We look forward to continued partnership in addressing key issues such as affordable housing and revitalization, ensuring our community thrives while preserving its distinctive qualities."

Tuesday's visit began with a walking tour of Leonardtown. In February, Lt. Gov. Aruna Miller and Secretary Day joined other state and local officials to celebrate Leonardtown's official designation as a Main Street Maryland community.

Created in 1998 and managed by the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development, the Main Street Maryland program builds partnerships with local governments, nonprofit organizations and businesses. In September 2023, the place that touts itself as "A Small Southern Maryland Town that's Big on Charm" became the first designated Main Street Maryland Community in St. Mary's County. It is also home to Southern Maryland's only designated Arts & Entertainment district.

During the tour, Secretary Day presented a ceremonial check officially celebrating recent Main Street Improvement and Project Restore 2.0 grants awarded by DHCD. The grants are designed to spur community revitalization by attracting, retaining and expanding small businesses, as well as through the promotion of local, cultural attractions and events.

Afterward, the tour group traveled to Lexington Park, stopping at Lexwood Apartments before the day ended in Lexington Park with a community stakeholders meeting.

DHCD's Day Trips series will continue this summer.

NOAA Announces $10 Million Grant for Oyster Sanctuary

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration has announced that it has recommended awarding $10 million to fund new reef construction for a Maryland Department of Natural Resources oyster sanctuary in the Chesapeake Bay.

The four-year grant will provide infrastructure funding for building reef bases on about 50 to 75 acres within an existing oyster sanctuary, as well as ground-truthing to assess the area before construction. NOAA awarded the funding as part of its Transformational Habitat Restoration and Coastal Resilience Projects under the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law and Inflation Reduction Act.

"This is an exciting time for oysters in the Chesapeake Bay," Maryland Department of Natural Resources Secretary Josh Kurtz said. "Just as we're finishing the tributary phase of sanctuary construction and seeding, this $10 million award will help us with future oyster restoration throughout Maryland."

The construction will be part of a new project at one of several proposed sanctuaries. The Maryland Department of Natural Resources identified several possible sites, which will be presented at the August 19 meeting of the Oyster Advisory Commission to receive stakeholder feedback on the sites.

The grant comes as the Chesapeake Bay Program's 2014 Chesapeake Bay Watershed Agreement hits its 10th anniversary. The agreement outlined a goal to restore oyster habitat and populations in 10 tributaries—five each in Maryland and Virginia—by 2025.

According to this summer's Chesapeake Bay Oyster Restoration Update for 2023, four of Maryland's five large-scale oyster sanctuaries are initially complete, and work on the last site in Manokin River is well underway and scheduled to be complete on target in 2025. Harris Creek, the first Maryland sanctuary to be targeted, is now considered fully and successfully restored.

Maryland now has more than 1,000 acres of restored oyster reefs, which is equivalent to 1.5 square miles or more than 800 football fields. Last year, the state had record-setting oyster spat plantings and an outstanding natural spatset.

The eastern oyster, the species found in the Bay, is a keystone species. Oyster reefs provide important habitat for Bay fish and crustaceans, and oysters serve as natural filters that remove excess nutrients. Scientists estimate that adult oysters can filter more than 10 gallons per day in the Chesapeake Bay.

Oysters are also an economic driver for the region. In the 2021-2022 and 2022-2023 oyster harvest seasons, Maryland oystermen have brought in dockside values of $21.5 million and $31 million, respectively, a result of two years with the highest land-fall of oysters since 1987.

Letters to the Editor

Prioritizing what's best for our county

I am pleased to respond to Mr. Philip Wentz's July 18th letter regarding my reaction to not being endorsed by the teachers' union.

I participated in the EASMC's endorsement process, which can be viewed on the EASMC website, because I was invited to answer its questionnaire and to be interviewed. I thought both would be publicly informative. Having responded to questionnaires from the news media and having participated in public forums, I saw no reason to decline the invitation. After all, I am an Educator and former public-school teacher.

To be completely honest, I had mixed emotions about sitting down for the EASMC interview because of my more traditional, conservative views. Frankly, many of my positions on the issues conflict with the union.

When the EASMC representative called me in advance to say that I was not endorsed, he informed me that the choice was not decided by the panel that had conducted my interview, those at the local level, and that the decision was made at a higher level. It's not that I felt entitled to the endorsement, but because I taught in the public school, worked closely with other educators, Administrators, Support Staff, students and parents, I was hoping that the Union would take this into consideration and make the right choice.

It's no secret that our education system is failing. Look no further than many high school graduates feeling unequipped to deal with the complexities of adulthood; doing their taxes, filling-out job applications, completing official forms, writing a resume, knowledge of interest rates, budgeting, balancing a checking account, are but some of the problems that many post-high school graduates are facing. In my years of living in the county, I have seen the public school system increasingly go astray from the fundamentals. It seems today, that these concerns have, more or less, escaped the minds of higher-ups in the county. Frankly, I'm less concerned with aligning my policies, or personal opinions, with that of large, organized groups, rather my priorities lie with what's best for residents of our county.

NAVAL AIR STATION PATUXENT RIVER News

New Contract Award to Help Train Fleet to Counter Electronic Warfare

The U.S. Navy awarded the Phoenix Air Group Inc. a $165 million contract June 28 for Contracted Air Services (CAS) flight hours to simulate a variety of airborne electronic warfare (EW) threats to train, test and evaluate shipboard personnel and aircraft squadron weapon systems operators and aircrew.

"Fleet training against airborne electronic attack forces is a priority and a critical path to achieving electromagnetic spectrum superiority," said Capt. Greg Sutton, Adversary and Specialized Aircraft Program Office (PMA-226) Program Manager. "The CAS EW jet services contract provides an ability to simulate both the threat and overall spectrum density of the current and future high-end fight of which is essential to effective aircrew training."

The contract includes use of 10 contractor-owned and operated aircraft that can support up to 5,000 flight hours of EW jet capabilities per year for fleet scheduling on the East and West Coasts. They can be used in a variety of venues, from basic "school-house" air intercept control training, large multinational exercises, and small, single unit training exercises, including target/banner tow missions supporting the Navy, Department of Defense (DOD) and non-DOD agencies.

"CAS affordably fills critical and mandatory training requirements, mitigating readiness gaps and capability divestments," said PMA-226 CAS EW Integrated Product Team Lead Matt Rhodes. "It provides fleet air defense training to include evaluation of evolving threats via uniquely modified aircraft configured as required to simulate Fleet Forces Command identified hostile EW near peer threats for air-to-air and air-to-surface training events."

The EW jets contract is a firm-fixed-price, indefinite-delivery/indefinite-quantity contract with work scheduled to begin this August and completed in August 2029.

Pax River Firefighters Promoted, Named Navy Civilian Fire Chief, Inspector of the Year

Four of Naval District Washington (NDW) Fire Department personnel stationed at NAS Patuxent River were honored in a ceremony July 11 in front of family, friends and colleagues.

The gathered crowd were welcomed by NDW Fire and Emergency Services Chief Kevin Grinder in a bay of Fire Station 2, before honoring the newly promoted Fire Inspectors on the Pax River firefighting team.

"Each time a member is promoted it signifies a few things," said Grinder. "First, it shows that they were successful in their previous position and that leadership knows they are up for taking on a new task, it shows they were motivated to take and successfully complete the required training, and third I shows their commitment to the department and the civilian and active duty military community we serve."

Grinder then welcomed to the front Firefighters Robin Jones and Ray Currie, both promoted to Fire Inspector. The position requires them to be responsible for fire inspections, fire extinguisher and flightline extinguisher training, plans review, code enforcement, food truck inspections, burn permits, and a host of other tasks. Fire inspectors also assist in staffing and overtime mitigation and special events while continuing to ensure the safety of residents, visitors, and personnel at Pax River.

Grinder then moved on to accolades, recognizing two of NDW's top performers of the previous year.

"Each installation was tasked with submitting nominees for the multiple categories of Commander, Naval Installations Command awards – firefighter of the year, fire officer of the year, inspector of the year, etcetera," said Grinder. "These nominations were then sent to a panel that consisted of the deputy N3, emergency management director, and safety director, where they were reviewed and a winner in each category was selected and forwarded to CNIC as NDW's nominee. Beginning in 2022 our management team felt that we also needed to recognize these individuals locally to show our appreciation for the work they perform."

First to be honored was Fire Inspector Mike Fuhrman, announced as the Navy Fire Inspector of the Year 2023.

Fuhrman's achievements were varied and many in earning this award. In the execution of his duties he single-handedly performed 297 inspections and ensured all deficiencies – 212 in total – were documented and brought to compliance, executed more than 157 hot work permits with zero mishaps, and worked with the Naval Air Warfare Center- Aircraft Division (NAWCAD) safety department to identify safe muster locations for military and base populations. He made professional development a priority, instructing a HAZMAT tech class for the region, became a Maryland Fire and Rescue Institute-certified fire investigator, maintained Maryland State EMT certifications, instructed all flight line fire extinguisher training at NAS Patuxent River, and conducted more than 20 fire safety presentations to more than 1,500 personnel at Pax River.

Fuhrman also served as the lead fire department representative for the flight line, providing subject matter expert guidance to hangars and hot pits, was the liaison to the NAWCAD safety division providing practical fire education to their personnel, and was recognized by his supervisor as a "Superior Performer" earlier in the year for outstanding customer service to the base population.

"I never thought I'd be a fire inspector, I thought I'd be riding a truck forever," Fuhrman said after being presented the award. "But I want to thank the chiefs and the guys and gals here, because they're what really made this possible and it means a lot."

Grinder then recognized Fire Chief Ryan Gallant as the Navy Civilian Fire Chief of the Year 2023.

Among his many achievements, Gallant managed fire safety for 31 bases, 200,000 personnel, and approximately $20 billion worth of assets, and overseeing 200 plans reviews and $1 Billion in renovation projects. He was cited for spearheading the implementation of a 60-hour workweek for inspectors, resulting in a maximized inspection output of 30%, a 40% reduction in backlogs, and a $200,000 savings in overtime. Gallant proactively engaged in 16 hours of Outward Mindset training, taking that training and mentoring eight peers on mindset transformation. He certified in tactical emergency care, enhanced active shooter response capabilities, and EMT-B.

Gallant's skills were in high demand to critical assets and teams throughout the region. He supported the White House Secret Service Fire Auxiliary program, training 12 U.S. Secret Service agents in White House fire suppression and HAZMAT incidents, and served as the active shooter exercise liaison to the National Capital Region Fire Interoperability Planning Team. He also revamped the extinguisher course, training 500 employees in periodic checks and emergency operations, replaced 8,000 extinguishers in the region, and obtained $50,000 for flight line extinguisher repairs.

"It's tough competition once you're standing up against other chief officers, because there are so many great ones in the region," said Gallant upon receiving the award. "Thank you to everyone who does this job every day and helps us complete the mission, because it's a daunting task."

Capt. Douglas Burfield, NAS Patuxent River Commanding Officer, reinforced Gallant's theme of mission preparedness as he addressed the awardees and the Fire and Emergency personnel in attendance.

"We don't have an air station without a fire department," said Burfield. "Whether it's in a building, in the air, or on the ground, the work you do is essential to our mission here, and I want to thank you for the hard work you do every day to keep us safe and mission ready."

EAA Chapter 478 Hosts Young Eagles Build and Fly Summer Camp

The Experimental Aircraft Association (EAA) developed a program called the Young Eagles Build and Fly (YE B&F) for youth to build and fly a remote-controlled (RC) aircraft. The idea was that the local EAA chapter would team up with the local Academy of Model Aeronautics (AMA) club to build and fly a model airplane. EAA sold a complete kit with a balsa wood airplane (SIG E KADET LT-40), tools, electronics, simulators and more at a very reasonable price to local EAA chapters to promote the program.

EAA Chapter 478 leadership discussed the program in the spring of 2023 but did not have the time or facilities to execute a summer camp that year. When the decision was made to conduct a YE B&F summer camp in 2024, a kit was purchased in the fall of 2023.

Planning meetings started in January of 2024 with EAA chapter members and the local AMA chapter, Patuxent Aeromodelers. The decision was immediately made to purchase a second airplane kit so we would have experience in building the model and that we could structure a program that could be completed during a weeklong summer camp. Under the efforts of EAA chapter members John Reinert, Don Byrne, and Charlie Fox, this second kit model was constructed and the plan for the summer camp was laid out to complete the building and flying of a similar RC model in just six days.

To also help us understand what was involved in working with a group of Young Eagles doing hands on projects, we conducted two day-long workshops, one in February and another in March of 2024. These workshops consisted of building a wing rib, electrical projects, simulator sessions, and flying drones. It also helped us identify future candidates for the summer YE B&F camp. Eventually, nine youths ranging from ages 12-17 were invited to attend the camp from those attending the winter workshops, from a local high school with an aviation program, and from the local Civil Air Patrol squadron.

On Monday June 17th, 2024, the YE B&F camp kicked off at the St Mary's airport (2W6) terminal building. The camp participants were assigned to three individual teams with three kids on each team. The first 2 ½ days were primarily construction and covering of the balsa wood model airplane. Knowing that we could not have nine kids trying to work on the model at the same time as the model building progressed and assemblies came together, we started doing separate sessions with the teams on different projects. All of the kids completed the FAA TRUST course under the supervision of Greg Stevens. Sid Wood led a workshop on building a wing rib and Chris Moody led a workshop on fabricating a metal cell phone holder. These projects provided hands on experience for building a full-scale airplane.

On Wednesday afternoon, we took a break and walked next door to the Maryland State Police who gave us a tour of their Trooper 7 helicopter. Thursday morning, we gave each Young Eagle an airplane ride, several for their first time in a small airplane. Thursday afternoon we toured the U of MD UAS Research and Development Facility. Meanwhile the building on the RC model continued and focused on the installation of the electrical components, programming of the transmitter and other RC model tasks led by Joe Allen, President of Patuxent Aeromodelers, with support from club members Rocky McCumbee, Larry Thomas, Larry Young, Michael Mazuc and others.

Friday was the last day at St Mary's airport and focused on such things as a weight and balance exercise, passing a simulator test flight of the model without crashing, drafting a preflight checklist, and finalizing the checkout of the RC model.

Early on Saturday morning, we all showed up at Helwig Field, the Patuxent Aeromodelers RC flying field. Paul Gambacorta, EAA Chapter 478 Vice President welcomed everyone and thanked the volunteers for a successful summer camp. Although it was an extremely hot day, each Young Eagle was given an opportunity to fly the RC model, again led by the expertise of the Patuxent Aeromodelers; they also demonstrated flying RC models, up to and including a turbine powered jet. We enjoyed hot dogs, chips, drinks and ice cream for lunch and then broke camp.

Since this was the first time for all of us conducting the build and fly program, we learned some lessons for improving, primarily working in the area with the electrical and RC flight components. Pictures of the week-long event were posted by our chapter photographer, Ken Barlow, on the EAA Chapter 478 website: Chapter 478 (eaa.org).

Overall, it was a great team effort by EAA and AMA members to successfully complete the Young Eagles Build and Fly program and a very rewarding week to see so many young people excited and involved in the world of aviation.

A View From The BLEACHERS

YOUNG AGAIN

By Ronald N. Guy
Contributing Writer

Professional All-Star games are antiquated. That's being kind. More bluntly, they are a waste of time. The products now are a competitive embarrassment and disgrace classics of yesteryear. MLB and the NHL have tried several gimmicks, most prompting more yawns than intrigue. The NFL Pro Bowl is dead. What? You didn't notice? Exactly. The NBA All-Star Game, once a must-see event, is now more like a Harlem Globetrotter's exhibition, only less entertaining.

Last Saturday night I sunk into the couch to enjoy some well-earned air conditioning after another soupy Southern Maryland day. Seriously, can we get a break? The free outdoor sauna is nice and all. The pores are loving it. Detoxification takes little more than a mid-day stroll around the cul-de-sac. But sheesh, the spontaneous sweating is a bit much.

Anyway, immediately following the perfectly executed couch landing, I reached for the remote – love that magic button-adorned, voice-enabled, handheld command center for lazy entertainment. I'm old enough to remember when my sister and I were the remotes, so forgive my strange appreciation for the run-of-the-mill household device. A quick scan revealed few intriguing sports options. What's this? WNBA All-Star Game featuring the women's Olympic team against a WNBA team comprised of stars who just missed Team USA's roster. I was skeptical, but with limited options I gave Alexa the order.

Ninety minutes later, the WNBA All-Stars had beaten the Olympic team 117-109, and I was left convinced that I had just witnessed the greatest All-Star Game ever. That could be true, or reckless recency bias. But objectively, I'm confident it's in the top five all-time. Here's how I processed the moment.

The first player who appeared on the screen was Team USA's Diana Taurasi. She's my favorite women's basketball player of all time. Straight up gangster on the court. Shoots without conscience and ultimate confidence. Handles. Vision. Dimes. She does it all. If you're bothering to keep score – be it a WNBA game, an All-Star Game or a friendly backyard pick-up game – she's going straight for your heart and is looking to consume your spirit, hopes and dreams. She will do so with a wry smile and without an ounce of guilt. Love it. She's forty-two freaking years old and still killing it (challenge issued, LeBron).

Then I learned that Cheryl Miller was coaching the WNBA All-Stars. Miller was my favorite player as a kid. She was an alien in the early 1980's, a statement meant in the most complimentary terms. Miller was so far ahead of her time. Between Miller and Taurasi, there were greats like Sheryl Swoops, Lisa Leslie, Tamika Catchings, and Cynthia Cooper. Today's best player is A'Ja Wilson, followed closely behind by Breanna Stewart. The last few years have brought an influx of talent, including Angel Reese and Caitlyn Clark this year, two stars who promise to take the league to new heights.

Two things about the game jumped off the screen. First, the level of play was simply incredible. If there's a sport that has advanced more than women's basketball in the last 25 years, good luck convincing me of it. The second was the effort. The two teams were going at it. The pace was relentless. Both squads were taking and giving punches. Every player was putting it on the line, giving their best and raising the level of play in their teammates and opponents. As a sporting spectacle, it was beautiful: an authentic competition, stoked by nothing more than professional pride.

As one ages, psychological scar tissue tends to build. Hope doesn't shine as bright. There can be less laughing. Smiles aren't as wide. Complacency can settle in. Life, as is simply said, is hard – as much on the mind as the body. There are many available tonics – therapy, exercise, hobbies, strong social connections, mindfulness and intentional gratitude. All are noble pursuits.

Sometimes though, a group of women committing to a cause, projecting positive energy into the universe, developing a collective will and accomplishing something amazing is all that's needed to lubricate the mind, rejuvenate the soul and make you feel young, even if your date of birth suggests otherwise.

Virginia McDonald, 73

Virginia Anne McDonald, 73, of Mechanicsville, MD, passed away on July 21, 2024, in Leonardtown, MD. Born on July 22, 1950, she was the daughter of the late Hazel Virginia McDonald and the late James Arthur McDonald.

Virginia was born in Washington, DC, and spent much of her life in Prince George's County, before moving to St. Mary's County in 1999 to be closer to her daughter, son-in-law and grandchildren. When not at Bingo, work, or spending time with family, friends and especially her grandchildren (including fur-babies), she enjoyed staring out the kitchen window into her backyard, watching the hummingbirds, rabbits, and deer.

In the last years of her life, she was valiant in her struggle with cancer, demonstrating strength, courage, and independence. She never gave up the fight, maintaining her positive, pollyanna perspective until the very end. She was as resilient as she was stubborn. Her determination and optimism never faltered, and we loved her for it.

She is survived by her daughter, Terri Lemerise (Rob), her siblings, Francis McDonald (Eileen) of Leonardtown, MD, Marilyn Essex of Alexandria, VA, Dee Putney (Marc) of San Antonio, TX, Billy McDonald of Leonardtown, MD, and David McDonald (Joyce) of Savannah, GA, her grandchildren, Buddy and Breanna Lemerise, as well as multiple nieces and nephews.

In addition to her parents, Virginia was preceded in death by her siblings, Barbara Bowden, Tommy McDonald (LaVerne of Springfield, VA), Robby McDonald, and life-partner Bob Stevens.

The family will receive friends on Friday, July 26, 2024 from 1:00 PM to 2:00 PM in the Mattingley-Gardiner Funeral Home, Leonardtown, MD. Prayer Services, officiated by Father Ray Schmidt, will take place at 2:00 PM.

Contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

...I know you have to go home, Mom. It's okay to eat and run.

We are pleased to announce another Nature Walk & Talk at the farm. Join Maryland Master Naturalist Bill Cheeseman for a guided walk along one of our trails through the wonderful forest here. Learn about the variety of trees that are keeping you cool with their shade (and other magic), as well as many other plants along the way. We will also listen for any birds and try to figure out who they are. We might even find signs of other critters who were there before us. This is an informal, educational and fun way to spend some quality outdoor time in the woods around us.

We will meet at the pavilion at 9am, and start our approximately two-hour walk from there. The total Walk is approximately two miles on a natural surface trail with minimal elevation change. The trail is well maintained, there are very few exposed roots, and it is accessible to most with mobility challenges.

Local Sailor Takes Championship in Last Weekend's Screwpile Regatta

By Tim Flaherty
Contributing Writer

There almost wasn't a sailboat race on Sunday's third and final day of the 2024 Screwpile Lighthouse Challenge Regatta. When racers awoke that morning, the forecast did not bode well for a steady breeze to build for a race to begin in time to meet the regatta's time limit rules.

Fortunately, for Lexington Park's Dewey Melton, the wind came up just in time, giving him the chance to break a three-way tie and win the PHRF 3 class. Melton and his boat, Dangerous, also won the PHRF Northern Bay "B" Championship with the win. (PHRF stands for Performance Handicap Racing Factor, and is widely used as a handicapping tool in sailboat racing.) That championship event was held concurrently with the Screwpile regatta for the second year in a row.

When Sunday's race was over, Dangerous had outduelled both Wicked Good and Pony Express to break the tie for an undisputed class victory.

Melton, who purchased Dangerous, a 1983 Olson 30, less than two years ago, has come a long way in skippering his boat in the short time he has campaigned it out of Solomons. "Last year, we were basically dead last in every single race," he said after receiving his awards in Solomons on Sunday. "After a year's worth of work with the team and the boat, it felt great going into the third day at least tied for first, even if we were losing the tie-breaker."

"I told the team at the beginning of the race, 'we are going to watch Wicked Good, and we are going to watch Pony Express, and we've got to cover at least one of them.' After that, we just sailed our race, and had the pace, and came away with first place. It was awesome!"

Members of the Dangerous crew for Screwpile consisted of Zach Feltonpriestner, James Bayess, Randy Stallings, Jonathan Nepini, Ben Jackson, and Wolfe Retsrab.

Screwpile 2024 was the 32nd edition of the annual event that is hosted by the Southern Maryland Sailing Association in Solomons. Courses were set up in Chesapeake Bay within two miles of the Patuxent River. There were three days of PHRF racing: one race was completed on Friday, three races were finished on Saturday, and the finale was held on Sunday.

In addition, a total of nine boats sailed one race each day on a "cruiser's course" that was scored under Chesapeake Racer Cruiser Association rules.

As usual, conditions varied for each day of this year's Screwpile. Friday saw a fresh easterly breeze for morning racing, but that wind died in the afternoon and PHRF racing was abandoned after one completed race. Saturday saw cloudy skies and a steady southerly breeze in the 11 to 12 knot range that created a three-foot swell rolling up the bay. On Sunday morning, competitors bobbed in the bay, swam, and played various water games while hoping for a sailable wind to build. When it did, their patience was rewarded with a steady south-south-easterly at about 8-knots.

Every class at Screwpile had first place up for grabs on the final day, something that Screwpile Principle Race Officer (PRO) Don Behrens said he had in mind while keeping the fleet in a waiting mode. "I always want to get races off whether there are classes under contention or not," he said. "But when there are classes that are tied, we want the racers to settle that on the water and not by a tie-breaker. So, I work extra hard to make that happen."

"Honestly, I had very limited confidence that the wind would come in time to get the race in. I knew that by 5pm, or even by 2pm, that we would get a sea breeze. All of the weather models said it would not come in early, but the fact that we started seeing evidence of it building right around noon made us be patient."

A total of about 30 people worked as on-water officials aboard seven "committee boats" on the two courses every day. In addition to Behrens, John Herbig was the PRO on the cruisers' course. Another 10 to 12 people worked shoreside to make the regatta happen. For the fifth year in a row, Jim Keen of Solomons, assisted by his wife, Jody, was the event Chairman. Zahniser's Safe Harbor Marina was the regatta base and hosted the after-race rendezvous every afternoon.

The only other locally-based boat that won its class was Norm Dawley's Pursuit, which won the CRCA Racer division. The winner of the Calvert County Trophy, awarded to the winner of the most competitive class, was Sitella, a Melges 32 racing in PHRF 1. Sitella is owned and skippered by Ian Hill, who sails out of Hampton, Virginia. With the Screwpile victory, Sitella also won the Northern Bay PHRF "A" Championship.

Forty boats from up and down the Chesapeake registered for Screwpile this year, and 38 boats were actually scored as participants. Full results can be found at www.smsa.com. Click the Screwpile tab and go to the Yachtscoring.com section.

Cove Point Park Sports Courts to Close for Renovations

The Calvert County Department of Parks & Recreation announces the temporary closure of the Cove Point Park sports courts for demolition and replacement. The closure is anticipated to last several months.

Beginning on Monday, July 22, two tennis and pickleball courts closest to baseball fields three and four will close. The two courts nearest the parking lot will remain open for use during this period. The tennis and pickleball courts are expected to be completed in early October 2024.

Immediately following the demolition of the tennis courts, the basketball courts will be closed for demolition and construction will proceed to both the tennis and basketball courts simultaneously. The basketball courts are expected to reopen in late October 2024, and will include a full scale, painted mural on the surface. Two Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) parking spots will be constructed near fields three and four, allowing access to the refurbished tennis/pickleball courts via a new accessible paved path. Additionally, a wider path will be constructed leading to the basketball courts from the existing basketball parking area.

Cove Point Park is located at 750 Cove Point Road in Lusby and remains open for activities during this renovation period. Find Park amenities and maps at <https://calvertcountymd.gov/covepoint>.

Chesapeake Beach Adopts Campaign Finance Restrictions

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The Chesapeake Beach Town Council, on a 4-to-2 vote, on July 18 passed campaign finance regulations that limit individual contributions to $500 and restrict donations only to town residents. An amendment that would have allowed non-resident business entities in town to make contribution failed on a tie vote with Mayor Pat Mahoney breaking the tie by casting a vote against the amendment.

Prior to the vote, three people spoke against the restrictions. Kristin de Phillip, who lives outside of town but is property manager for Horizons on the Bay, said, "In 2020, when the town released their comprehensive plan, it stated that 23 percent of households within the town were occupied by renters." She said an updated figure was 22 percent.

She said, "This means that there are roughly 570 households within the town limits that are rental homes. One could assume even when being conservative, that with real estate taxes on those rental homes, the $2.7 million that the 2024 general budget collects for real estate tax, that that 22 percent is going to be about a half a million dollars, give or take, depending on the state assessments."

She said the ordinance is "removing their opportunity to try and have somebody to sit at those seats and represent them. I'm hoping that the council understands that the impression that's being given to these owners who do contribute to the town economy and to provide their tenants with an opportunity to reside inside of the town that they might not otherwise afford, that they don't matter, that their voice doesn't count."

Former mayor Bruce Wahl, who is a candidate to return to his old seat, said he favors campaign finance disclosure, but opposed the limitations in the ordinance and said any vote should be postponed until after the election.

Wahl said, "My brother, my two sons, and my two stepdaughters do not live within the corporate limits of Chesapeake Beach, but they are all supportive of my efforts to run for mayor. If this ordinance is adopted as presented, my children, my brother, they will not be able to support me with any campaign funding."

Wahl added, "My son-in-law's brother and his family live on 5th Street in Randall Cliffs. They live about 200 feet from the town limit, and they live very close to Brownie Beach. They would not be able to support my campaign, although they have a keen interest in the outcome of the election, because what happens here in the municipality affects the people that live in Randall Cliffs just south of the town limits."

Wahl said the $500 limitation on contributions is much lower than the $6,000 limitation elsewhere.

Mahoney said, "In my seven elections, I've never accepted a penny from anybody. And that's the way that I wanted it. It never wanted to be beholden to anybody because that's what happens when you take money."

Councilwoman Elizabeth Hartman said, "I can understand if you have property here and investment here, you want to have a say in it. But it is different when you live here and you're here every day, and you have to pay all the expenses of living here, than when you've invested in here and you're renting your property to get money back from it. It is a different experience to live here."

Councilman Greg Morris, who is a candidate for mayor, said, "I can assure everybody in this room that it's coming from a good place. The timing of it on the surface certainly looks suspect," but he added, "We know that this is needed, especially in this town today. In today's environment, how much money do we need to run for office in a small town? Thousand dollars, $10,000; is $25,000 enough. And to some of the opinions mentioned up on the dais this evening, just the thought that that is possible in this town suppresses the average folks from trying to get involved at all. This town thrives on its volunteers."

He said, "All of my campaigns have been a hundred percent funded by me. That is small town."

Councilman Larry Jaworski said, "From an economic development point of view, as I always speak, what I've heard so often over the eight years I've held this seat from our local businesses is that they are concerned that they don't really have a voice in what goes on here at the council. And our town's economy is based on the economy of our local businesses. So, it just concerns me that they feel they don't have a voice to articulate."

Councilman Charles Fink said, "I echo what Councilman Jaworski said, that businesses should have some voice there. They contribute to our economy. And I would support contributions being made by a business incorporated in town with the same spending limit to any individual candidate as an individual."

Councilwoman Valerie Beaudin, also a mayoral candidate, said, "I've run for five elections, been elected five times, and I've yet to accept a penny from anyone else because I also do not want to be beholden to anyone or anything. And so, I think I'm not frightened about scaring away people because if you don't accept anything, you don't have anything to report and everything's good."

It was an amendment introduced by Fink to allow businesses to make contributions that failed on the 5-4 vote.

Former Mayor, Two Council Members File for Chesapeake Beach Mayor

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The race to succeed outgoing Chesapeake Beach Mayor Pat Mahoney has heated up, with three announced candidates, a former mayor and two town council members.

Former Mayor Bruce Wahl candidacy to return to office in late April. Council members Valerie Beaudin and Greg Morris announced their candidacy at the July 18 council meeting.

Mahoney quickly interjected himself into the race by blasting Wahl and praising Beaudin and Morris. He said he might make an endorsement later in the campaign.

Of Wahl, Mahoney said, "Thirty-six years ago, in 1988, Bruce Wahl was appointed by Mayor Gerald Donovan to the town council.

Bruce was loyal to that administration for his entire time in office. Well, this council and I have supported the will of the people and successfully opposed a any expansion of slot machines in town and support an increase in revenue from that when in office. Bruce was the opposite. He supported gaming. He vehemently opposed increasing the gaming revenue tax, which would bring more revenue and services to our citizens. So, just to be clear, because I read something advertised on social media, to be clear to the world, you will not see a Bruce Wahl sign in my front yard. This is not the same town it was in 1988. Probably, you know, close to a large percentage of our registered voters weren't even born in 1988. Our citizens expect more and deserve better now."

The County Times was unable to reach Wahl for comment. His campaign Facebook page quote Mahoney when he was vice president as praising Wahl. The posting said, "Bruce Wahl's vision for Chesapeake Beach has always been clear: a community where leadership is about service, not personal gain. His advocacy for fair compensation for town council members and the mayor's office demonstrates his commitment to attracting diverse and dedicated leaders.

"Bruce Wahl's leadership, experience, and dedication make him the ideal candidate to lead Chesapeake Beach once again."

At the council meeting Beaudin said, "Moving here in 1997 after receiving a doctorate in geography, I've had the pleasure, the honor of serving on town council for 20 years. We've raised our daughter here, and I understand there's been many accomplishments and many challenges that have occurred in this past 20 years, but it has been wonderful.

"So, looking at that 20 years and then looking at the opportunity to run for mayor, I decided that this was a good path for me to take. And there's a few things that I wanted to share with you. First, when we were listening to the sheriff today, we heard about the CVS ATM 1 (theft)...I will ensure that we live in a safe and secure town. We will do everything in our ability to ensure that we can limit the number of break-ins to cars, break into homes, and have personal and property safety. I can't think of anything more important than safety.

"Next as shown by our ordinance that was just passed (campaign financing), I believe we need to protect our town against the destructive forces. Not only sea level rise, I am the chair of the green team, but we also need to protect our town against the destructive forces of developers and things like short-term rentals that may want to try to change or destroy our neighborhoods in our marina environment. And so, I want to protect our town and keep it livable and maintain our quality of life.

"And finally, I think one of the biggest issues in this campaign will be the waterpark. And this is what I will propose, is that we're going through the process now. I don't see a major change. I think we need to strictly monitor the budget that allows us to rebuild our town aquatic facility, while at the same time developing more park amenities."

She said, "I will not accept a penny from anyone as I run for mayor, I assure you. And over the next three months, what I do hope to do is go door to door to mostly listen to your concerns, and then I will be able to add to the list above that I just started to enumerate."

Morris said, "I have an announcement. With the help from a very wide support base, my family, trusted colleagues past and present, friends, old and new, but maybe most importantly, through my own experience and tempered vision of what we can be. I've made a very difficult decision this past July 11th. I declared my candidacy for Mayor of the great and historic town of Chesapeake Beach. As I like to plan with the end in mind, I see myself as mayor of this town. I see myself fulfilling those shoes. This isn't just a passing fancy. I maybe like to be mayor. You can maybe go into council like that, but you cannot go into a mayor race where you may win with the idea and fancy the notion of filling those shoes. I see myself bringing people together through words and actions. I see myself allaying the fears of our residents and town staff. If the world or mother nature comes down hard on us, I will be there standing tall on the horizon. I can see the next young town council today faceless, tomorrow eager to help lead this town through the next four years with the refreshed energy, vigor, and perspectives they require a mayor that can pull their varying opinions together and move issues forward effectively. A mayor that is committed to the things that our families want and need from their town, which is a continuation of this body's work. A mayor that is committed to engaging, advancing, collaborating, building, and as needed, pushing this town forward. A mayor who is for the people and by the people. I respect this institution, and I'm eager to get to work."

Calvert County Planning Commission member Lisa Williams has been hit with an ethics complaint and Chairman John Toohey has been charged with biased opinions during the ongoing debate over the proposed Lusby Villas apartment project.

Concerns heard at a July 9 public meeting about the proposed 276-unit Lusby Villas garden apartment project spilled over to the July 17 planning commission meeting. During the time set aside for public comments, 20 people spoke, most opposed to the project, although some did chide the audience for failing to come forward until the 11th hour in the process. The planning commission is scheduled to take a final vote on the project at their August 21 meeting.

Concerns continue to center around traffic, crime, and the environment. Ted Haynie, president of the Solomons Civic Association, but speaking as a representative of the Friends of Mill Creek, said, "I totally believe that we need affordable housing in Calvert County, and we need low-income housing in Calvert County to better serve our community. This is just not the right spot."

"This project sits right at the headquarters of Lake Lariat that feeds into the headquarters of Mill Creek. All that goes into Mill Creek, St. John's Creek, Back Creek, Solomons Harbor, and then of course ultimately into the Patuxent River and Chesapeake Bay. I've heard no evidence presented at any of the hearings that I've been to that says that this will not have any negative impact on our water quality."

Haynie added, "We are in Mill Creek, an urban watershed. We're densely populated when you get to 15-percent impervious surfaces. I said this at the last hearing, that's bad. And it begins to have a negative impact when we're at 20 percent and I have evidence, and I'd be happy to share it with the planning commission that can prove that we're at 20 percent imperiousness in our watershed area and now you're proposing a project that is only going to exacerbate that problem."

Tracy Malloy criticized Chairman John Toohey for his statements in support of the project. "Mr. Toohey, you are supposed to represent all of Calvert County, not just what's best or maybe best for you and your family in the future. If you are allowing these surveys and studies to be grandfathered in, you are putting all the taxpayers in Calvert on the line financially. The safety, the quality of our children's education and the health of local waterways are all at extreme risk."

Several speakers also criticized commission member Lisa Williams for allegedly failing to report her real estate interests. An ethics complaint has been filed against her.

Myra Gowans, of Calvert Citizens United, said, "Toohey says this is a good project. And I'll tell you why, because I really want my kids to live down here in this county and they can't afford it, and I don't have enough room in my basement, so this would be a good place for them to start out. That my friend is personal bias."

Lisa Allen said, "In 2022 to 2023 there was a study done by the FBI on the Chesapeake Ranch Estates. It gave the rating for crime a D- Plus. That's the FBI seeing our Ranch Club right now, in 2022 to 2023 was a D-Plus. It also said minor crime went down 7 percent. Property crime went down 11 percent. But violent crime went up 15 percent."

An updated transportation study for the project is reportedly being done. But David Bury of Breezy Point expressed concern about the timing for the Aug. 21 meeting. He said, "I'm very pleased to see that the county ordered a new traffic study, because of the data in the old traffic study. It is very, very badly needed. And whether that traffic study actually shows that those will generate too much traffic to allow a determination of adequacy under the public facilities ordinance we don't know until we see the study. My concern about trying to make a timeline for the late August site approval date is that this traffic study also has to go up to Maryland SHA (State Highway Administration) for evaluation after that study is completed. So, by the time the study is completed there is some lag time in which SHA has to review it. I'm not sure that you'll actually be able to make that August deadline."

County Democrats Rally Behind Harris

By Dick Myers

Calvert County Democrats are rallying behind the candidacy of Kamal Harris as she became the presumptive party presidential candidate with the decision by President Joe Biden not to seek re-election. This came on July 21 just a month before the Democratic National Convention.

Going to that national convention as one of the 5th Congressional District representatives will be Calvert County Democratic Central Committee Chairperson Cindy Yoe.

Yoe told The County Times, "I have heard nothing but positive things. What I'm hearing from people is they're very excited about it."

Yoe said the vice president is a familiar figure for local Democrats. "I think that she's been out in public a lot and we have seen her a lot over the years."

Regarding Biden's announcement, she was asked if countians were calling for him to pull out. She said, "I had not heard that personally from the people that I was talking to. So, it was a little bit of a surprise to me. I was actually traveling. I was sitting in the airport when I found out on Sunday."

Yoe was asked if Harris' candidacy would rally Calvert's African American population. She replied, "I think it is, but also, I have heard from some African American residents who have called and talked to me because they were all very, very fond of President Biden. So, I think they were motivated anyway, but I think that this might motivate more younger voters. I don't know what generation they're in. I know there was a Generation X and a Generation Z, but I think that it might motivate, from what I'm hearing, some younger voters to come out to the polls."

Democrats in the county were already motivated because of Trump's GOP candidacy to be re-elected. "We are motivated. And between the presidential election and the local election, yes, we are very motivated."

Between now and the November election the party will be at events such as the county fair, and also registering voters. She observed, "I think there are enough people registered, we just have to work harder on getting them to turn out to vote."

She's excited about going to the convention in Chicago. "I've never done this and I never even thought about it." Adding, "Who knew it was going to be such an interesting convention. There's been so much going on."

Congressman Steny H. Hoyer (MD-05)

released the following statement endorsing Harris: "This historic moment is a testament to the strength of American democracy. The values Democrats are fighting for — decency, freedom, and equality for all — transcend any one person or election."

"Now, it is imperative that we come together and defeat Donald Trump at the ballot box this November. I am proud to offer my full support to my friend Kamala Harris. Vice President Harris has shown herself to be a strong, experienced, and effective leader. Her service at the local, state, and federal level makes her uniquely qualified to be President of the United States."

"The very soul of our nation remains on the line, and I am confident that Vice President Harris will lead our party successfully and protect the values American and Maryland families hold dear."

Maryland Democratic Party Chair Ken Ulman released the following statement in regards to Joe Biden choosing to not accept the party nomination.

"Joe Biden is among the best and most consequential presidents in American history. In three and half years, President Biden navigated the country through COVID and the worst economic crisis since the Great Depression, passed historic investments in infrastructure and climate, lowered prescription drug prices for seniors, passed landmark gun safety legislation, and so much more.

"Our country and party owe Joe Biden a debt of gratitude. As President, he is a remarkable leader that has always put his country first."

Governor Wes Moore, in an email fundraising blast, said the target was Trump. He wrote, "Donald Trump still falsely claims the 2020 election was 'stolen' from him. He brags about an attack on our nation's democracy. He has been found guilty of 34 felony charges. And now, he's running again for President to continue his career built on fraud and lies — only for his own political gain."

"Donald Trump failed us, repeatedly, which set our country back significantly. He put his own interests over the country's, and his own petty grievances over people's freedoms. If Trump is elected, he'll take away our freedoms — abortion rights, health care, the freedom to vote."

"I'll work every day to make sure he doesn't get that chance again."
