Leonardtwn Sees Flurry of Development

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

With two new businesses, two annexation requests and two liquor license votes for approval, things seem to be picking up in Leonardtown, St. Mary's County Seat, and its lone town.

One of the state's fastest growing towns, development will really accelerate with the long dormant Tudor Hall Farm project, part owned by the town and part by a developer, said to be nearing realization, although plans have yet to be submitted, according to Planning and Zoning Administrator Mike Bailey.

The new Weis Market recently opened in Shoppes at Breton Bay, close on the heels of another of their stores in Charlotte Hall. The grocery store fills the spot left vacant by the close of McKay's Food and Drug.

The new Tractor Supply, whose concept plan was approved on Oct. 20, is the W. M. Davis's Development @ McIntosh Run at 25845 Point Lookout Road, north of the Dominos, a pharmacy & Bon Appé Sweet Shop.

The site consists of 3.939 acres on the south side of Maryland Route 5 (AKA Point Lookout Road).

According to the staff report to the town planning and zoning commission, "The site consists of several parcels being combined to create a 3.939-acre site. GBT Realty Corporation is proposing a one-story commercial retail building approximately 21,930 square feet with a 20,000-square-foot outdoor display area at the rear of the building. The proposed development is required to have...one space per 200 square feet. The consultant has proposed 84 parking spaces, due to the fact that part of the building is for warehousing, which normally doesn't require parking.

Bailey told the planners that the original concept plan for the property, from 20 years ago, consisted of "a 47,000-square-foot hotel, a 31,000-square-foot retail space, a 11,000-square-foot office space, and a 2,900-square-foot restaurant space, and 2,700-square-foot bank space."

Bailey pointed out, "When you look at just the Tractor Supply by itself, it's not to that extent of development."

The new retail store is on the side of the old Pennie's Bar, behind which was an active Rocking Chair Softball field. Its four walls hosted many after-game lively parties.

The two annexation requests provide for room for more residential and commercial development.

The first request is for property across the street from the shopping center. According to the staff report, it is "approximately 16.35 acres of land, known as the Hall Annexation, generally located at 40895 Greenhill Lane, Leonardtown Maryland 20650."

The report said, "The site is presently zoned RPD (Rural Preservation District) under the St. Mary's County Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance and is proposed for Town zoning as CH (Highway Commercial District). The parcel is developed with a single-family dwelling and an accessory storage shed."

The report went on to say, "A preliminary constraints review found several sensitive areas (highly erodible soils, wetlands) and it is noted that additional studies will be required at the time of development if the property is annexed."

The second property, according to the staff report, "is approximately 55.39 acres of land, known as the Johnson/Anthony & Johnston Property Annexation, generally located on Cedar Lane Road Leonardtown Maryland 20650."

The report says, "The properties are currently zoned RL - Residential Low Density under St. Mary's County regulations. The applicant for Parcel 235 is requesting Planned Unit Development (PUD) zoning from the Town as all large farm parcels are PUD within the Town. The property is included in the County development district. Parcel 266 would be R-SF. A concept plan has been provided for Parcel 235, outlining a preliminary vision for future development. This plan will continue to evolve as the review and permitting process moves forward."

The support for the two liquor licenses before the St. Mary's County Alcohol Beverages Board include a new restaurant where the Ye Olde Town Cafe long stood. Rucci's Italian Kitchen & Grille, as requested by Jamil Jamaldinian, will be located at 22685 Washington Street. The license would include outdoor seating on the sidewalk."

This would be the second location for the popular restaurant in White Plains. Former Charles County Commissioner Bobby Rucci owns it.

On their website, Rucci wrote, "At Rucci's we pride ourselves in offering the freshest and finest quality foods and authentic Italian fare. Our Southern Italian recipes have been handed down from generation to generation.

"Bobby's Bourbon Bar features over 100 bourbon offerings, hand crafted cocktails, and a well-balanced wine list. You won't want to miss our Sunday Brunch either.

"We hope you enjoy this time in our 'home away from home.'"

The second letter of support involves "the transfer of the Class B restaurant license of The Front Porch from Jeffrey Lewis, LLC to MJP23, Inc. (Gautam Patel and Shailesh Patel). The transfer includes the current licensed outdoor serving area. The Front Porch is located at 22770 Washington Street."

Mr. Patel said he planned no changes.

County GOP Reacts to Government Shutdown

The St. Mary's County Republican Central Committee (RCC) is encouraging our Maryland U.S. Senators to vote on the clean continuing resolution to reopen the Federal Government.

The RCC commends the St. Mary's County Commissioners for their advocacy on behalf of all the residents of St. Mary's County in writing to the Maryland Senators to end this Democrat Shutdown.

Our incredibly hard working and important Federal Government employees should be paid for the work that they are doing, and the blatantly partisan attempts by the Democrats to refuse to keep the government operational are a disgrace and embarrassment to our great nation. The RCC is proud and supportive that the St. Mary's County Commissioners have taken proactive steps to work with local partner agencies and ensure that St. Mary's County residents are supported.

Furthermore, the continuing shutdown will result in additional hardships on the American people as important services are unable to be provided. The RCC is disappointed that Governor Wes Moore is not backfilling SNAP benefits and is still wasting time advocating to further gerrymander the state of Maryland, one of the worst gerrymandered states in the entire nation.

Governor Moore's plan to provide funding to nonprofits lacks transparency and does not provide the funding directly to the people in need. This "Schumer Shutdown" only serves to weaken our nation and make life harder for all Americans. It disproportionately hurts hard working American families. Senator Schumer has said, "Every day gets better for us", he certainly isn't referring to US citizens.

The over-taxation by the Maryland General Assembly and Governor Wes Moore has directly led to exorbitant energy costs and prohibitive fees on vehicle ownership, again disproportionately hurting the residents that the Democrat Party claims to be advocating on behalf of. Democrat policies at the state level have made home ownership more expensive and contributed to the concerns over housing availability. Democrat policies have also led to an energy crisis, historic $1.6 billion in tax/fee increases, plus a downgrade in Moody's credit score for the state of Maryland.

The RCC thanks our Senator Jack Bailey, Delegates Matt Morgan and Todd Morgan, and the Maryland Freedom Caucus for advocating on behalf of all the citizens of Maryland and standing opposed to these excessive cost increases that make it harder for people to live, work, and raise families in the state of Maryland.

Central Committee Chairwoman Jennifer Boyd commented "This needless shutdown is for political posturing, and it is hurting hardworking Americans. Our Democrat Senators should immediately vote for the clean resolution to reopen government and prevent any further unnecessary hardships."

The St. Mary's County Republican Central Committee strongly condemns the continued shutdown and encourages Senator

Van Hollen and Senator Alsobrooks to vote to support the working citizens of Maryland by reopening the Federal Government.

The St. Mary's County Republican Central Committee is the governing body and the official spokesman for the Republican Party in St. Mary's County. They cooperate with the Republican State Central Committee for Maryland and with the Republican National Committee. They seek to educate and register new voters, assist Republicans running for public office, and promote the principles, objectives and platform of the Republican Party. The St. Mary's County Republican Central Committee is made up of 9 community members elected by the Republican citizens of St. Mary's County. They hold monthly meetings that are open to the public.

Chamber Acts as Community Nexus

Officials Brief Commissioners

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The St. Mary's County Chamber of Commerce briefed the Commissioners of St. Mary's County on Nov. 4 on their mission and activities.

Board Chairman Ryan Schlotterbeck said, "The Chamber prides itself in being the nexus between business, government, community, and your support helps us create and maintain that nexus, to continue to support the business community."

Chamber President/CEO Dr. Christine Bergmark said, "Whether it's a shop on Square in Leonardtown, a family-owned restaurant, professional service, or a growing technology company, each contributes to the strength of our local economy and the character of our community."

She said, "Support for and membership in the St. Mary's County Chamber of Commerce is not just simply a cost of doing business, it's a strategic investment in the future of our county. This last year, we developed a new strategic plan, and among our core values are leadership, collaboration, advocacy, and education. And these aspects are woven through everything that we do."

The Chamber does that through round tables, educational events, and forums, including presentations from a representative of the governor's office, the Maryland Comptroller, and "on November 12th, we're bringing representatives from the Department of Labor to talk about the Family Leave Act...and then on December 3rd, we have a session on how upcoming tax changes can affect our businesses."

She said they also provide an opportunity "for our middle schoolers to develop their leadership skills by identifying a challenge that's in their community and how they would resolve it through the lens of civics."

Bergmark said, "The Chamber provides visibility in a marketplace where it's hard to stand out. Membership puts members and businesses and nonprofits literally on the map."

She noted, "Our member directory, promotional events, opportunities, and partnerships ensure that businesses are seen and that their services are known. When people look for trusted businesses, they look to the Chamber."

Bergmark said, "The Chamber brings together businesses of all sizes, nonprofits, educational institutions, and governmental leaders. These connections open doors to customers, resources and partnerships that might not have been considered before. A simple introduction at a Chamber event can lead to a new contract, a new supplier, a new ally in any given business, such as our business after hours."

Bergmark observed, "Any and all of our events are intended to break down silos within the Chamber, within the community, to build social fabric, to convene, connect community, and to show common ground."

The Chamber is a watchdog in Annapolis. She said, "Our nonpartisan government affairs committee reviews bills and policies, as they make their way through Annapolis. And as you know, in the last few years, quite a few bills have gone through that were not particularly business friendly. Maryland's economy is slightly lower than that of the national average. And yet, in this year, the legislature passed some of the highest tax increases and fees increases in decades. And all of those hit in this year."

Bergmark observed, "St. Mary's County is unique. We're a place where history and innovation meet. We're a county rooted in tradition, yet home to innovative technology, world class education, and entrepreneurial spirit. Chamber membership demonstrates an investment in our community and in its future."

She said, "The Chamber has 379 members, business and nonprofits. We represent over 35,000 employees. Seventy-four percent of our members have fewer than 50 employees, and 15 percent are nonprofits. And we're thrilled to say we've had about 50 new members join just since January 1st."

Aging Office Receives Major Donation

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The St. Mary's County Department of Aging and Human Services has received a significant gift from a long-time supporter.

Mary Walters, a former employee of the department, has bequeathed $159,295 solely for the use of Department of Aging clients, including but not limited to client personal care items, medical needs, and minor home improvements not to exceed $2,500 per client.

According to Director of the Department of Aging & Human Services Lori Jennings Harris, Ms. Mary Aileen Walters was a dedicated employee of the Department of Aging (& Human Services). She was a champion for the needs and care of older adults."

Harris told the Commissioners of St. Mary's County at their Nov. 4 meeting, "She was not there for very long. Brandy Tulley, deputy director and I started the same year. And so, Ms. Mary Walters was there at the Loffler Senior Activity Center as the senior office specialist for a short time. I remember Ms. Walters mostly as a participant of the center. So, after she retired, she continued to go to the centers."

Harris said of Walters' donation, "She has described how she would like to see those funds used for older adults in our community."

She said, "We will develop criteria for how we would distribute these funds to individuals and/or families and not to exceed $2,500 per disbursement."

Commissioner Eric Colvin said, "This is an incredibly generous bequeath and very kind of her to think of others in our community."

The size of the donation was highlighted. Harris said, "I have not experienced it in my time here, so it's very generous and we appreciate it."

Harris said the monies would be distributed over several years. "Expand it and stretch it out as long as we can."

"I can envision assisting people with things in their home, for example, wheelchair ramps, because I think that's a need and they're very expensive."

Although it's a work in progress, Harris said, "If we do an application, it'll be a very simple application, but we would determine the criteria for which people would be eligible."

Jury Convicts Man of Four Counts of Attempted Murder

State's Attorney Jaymi Sterling announced on Nov. 5 that Cameron David Curtis, 22, of Drayden was convicted of four counts of attempted murder for his participation in the attempted murders of four separate victims following a six-day jury trial in St. Mary's County.

On May 3, 2025, deputies from the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office responded to the area of Chancellors Run Road and Pegg Road after hearing gunfire. The deputies located a vehicle with four male occupants, three of whom had sustained injuries from gunshot wounds. A comprehensive investigation revealed the shooting stemmed from an earlier altercation that started in Leonardtown and continued into Lexington Park.

"This was an extremely dangerous act of violence where multiple firearms were used during a vehicle chase, jeopardizing the lives of these four victims and countless members of our community," said Sterling.

Curtis has been convicted of the following nine offenses:

- Two counts, attempted first-degree murder (maximum penalty, life);
- Two counts, attempted second-degree (maximum penalty, 30 years);
- Four counts, use of a firearm in the commission of a crime of violence (maximum penalty, 20 years); and
- One count, handgun in a vehicle (maximum penalty, 5 years).

Cameron David Curtis

Curtis remains held without bond pending sentencing. He faces a maximum sentence of life plus 145 years in prison.

Senior Assistant State's Attorney Alena Moiser prosecuted the case on behalf of the citizens of St. Mary's County.

Detective Warren Forinash of the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office was the lead investigator.

The Honorable Amy Lorenzini presided over the case.

Six Members of Sheriff's Office Complete Crisis Training

During the week of October 27–31, six members of the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office (SMCSO) successfully completed Crisis Intervention Team (CIT) training held at the Harry Lundeberg School of Seamanship.

Graduates included Correctional Officer First Class John Edelen, Correctional Officer Branden Mills, Deputy Joseph Senatore, Captain Stephen Simonds, Deputy Phillip Davis, and Deputy First Class Alexander Tasciotti.

CIT programs are nationally recognized for equipping law enforcement officers with the skills to safely and effectively respond to individuals experiencing behavioral health crises. Beyond officer training, successful CIT programs enhance crisis response systems, advocate for essential services, and foster partnerships among law enforcement, mental health providers, and the community.

Throughout the training, participants learned about mental health law, emergency petition procedures, verbal de-escalation, traumatic brain injury, and developmental disabilities. They also heard firsthand accounts from individuals and families affected by mental health and substance use challenges. Officers practiced de-escalation techniques through role-play scenarios designed to help determine the most appropriate response for each situation.

The CIT program is a community partnership among law enforcement, mental health and addiction professionals, individuals living with behavioral health challenges, their families, and other local partners, all working to improve community responses to mental health crises.

In Southern Maryland, the program is a collaboration among the Sheriff's Offices and Health Departments of St. Mary's, Charles, and Calvert counties, the Maryland State Police, and other allied agencies. Captain Sarah Smith serves as the CIT Commander, Alexis Higdon, NCC, LCPC, is the CIT Coordinator, and Sergeant Anthony Whipkey is the Law Enforcement CIT Coordinator for the SMCSO.

Through their participation in this program, the graduates are now better prepared to respond with empathy, professionalism, and skill, further strengthening the Sheriff's Office's commitment to public safety and compassionate crisis intervention.

St. Michael's School Celebrates First Annual Harvest Festival

By Marcia Hart
Contributing Writer

The crisp autumn air and joyful laughter filled the grounds of St. Michael's School on Saturday as families from across Southern Maryland gathered for the school's first-ever Harvest Festival.

From pony rides and cotton candy to games, raffles and local vendors, there was truly something for everyone. Children raced from booth to booth with painted faces and sticky fingers, while parents and neighbors caught up with friends old and new during the family-friendly celebration.

"This was such a wonderful day," one attendee shared. "You could really feel the sense of community. It was like Ridge came alive."

The event featured hayrides, crafts, local DJ and recording artist Jeff Barickman and delicious treats, showcasing the creativity, energy and dedication of St. Michael's staff, students and parish volunteers. The smiles said it all; the inaugural Harvest Festival was a resounding success.

Amanda Cullison, event organizer and St. Michael's parent, said the goal was to create a day that truly reflected the heart of the school.

"The Harvest Festival was our way of bringing the community together and inviting everyone to see what St. Michael's is all about," she shared. "We wanted our neighbors to experience the warmth, joy and connection that make this place so special."

Cullison, who has two sons at St. Michael's — Tucker in first grade and Ellis in Preschool 3 — said her family's experience inspired her to help organize the event.

"I chose St. Michael's because of what it represents — faith, family and community," she said. "It's more than just a school; it's truly a family."

Principal Mary Van Ryswick, now in her first year leading St. Michael's after three decades of teaching there, said the festival is just one of many exciting things happening on campus.

"It's going great," she said. "We have happy students, dedicated teachers and a community that supports everything we do. We've added wonderful new opportunities this year — including our Junior National Honor Society and the return of our school band. There's such a positive energy here."

Van Ryswick said she hopes the Harvest Festival inspires more families to visit and see what makes the school special.

"We're inviting everyone to our Open House on November 12, from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m.," she said. "Whether you're a prospective family, a community member, or a current parent, you're welcome to visit classrooms, meet our teachers and see the amazing things happening at St. Michael's."

The Harvest Festival will now become an annual tradition, bringing together faith, fellowship and fun for the entire community.

The St. Michael's community invites everyone to join them next year for another day of celebration — and to experience for themselves why St. Michael's was voted Best of Southern Maryland in Private School, Preschool, Summer Camp, Place of Worship and Education Services for 2025.

For more information about St. Michael's, visit smsridgemd.org or call 301-872-5454.

CSM to Launch New Aviation Maintenance Technology Program

The College of Southern Maryland (CSM) is helping students fill critical workforce gaps in the region with a new associate degree program in Aviation Maintenance Technology.

The Maryland Higher Education Commission (MHEC) has approved the CSM Associate of Applied Science degree in Aviation Maintenance Technology program, making the college the first institution in the state to offer the associate degree with the FAA Part 147 Airframe and Powerplant certificate.

In a region populated with military facilities, aerospace businesses, and regional airports, the aviation industry plays a key role in the Southern Maryland economy. As these institutions grow, so will the need for skilled workers. The Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) projects aircraft mechanic occupations to grow by five percent nationally by 2034. In Maryland, that growth is expected to be more than 12 percent.

CSM president Dr. Yolanda Wilson says the new program graduates will be making a significant impact on the workforce development of the region.

"The Aircraft Maintenance Technology program is one example of how CSM is committed to creating new, innovative opportunities for students to succeed in order to meet the talent pipeline needs in Southern Maryland," Dr. Wilson said. "We are excited to welcome the future aviation maintenance technicians who will fill these important roles in our regional workforce and are grateful to our many community partners who shared their input during the program development phase."

According to the Aviation Technician Education Council (ATEC) 2025 Pipeline Report, the aviation maintenance industry posted its second largest year-to-year increase in new mechanic certificates, but it still won't be enough to fill the demand for skilled workers.

Dr. Bernice Brezina, Dean of the School of STEM and Professional Studies, said the new program represents a significant opportunity for CSM students to gain advanced technical skills while meeting critical workforce needs across Southern Maryland.

"This program represents a major step forward for CSM and the region," said Dr. Brezina. "As aviation technologies advance, so must the training that prepares the next generation of technicians. Our graduates will be ready to keep aircraft safe, support innovation, and strengthen the Southern Maryland workforce."

During the summer of 2024, CSM worked with an FAA consultant to form a regional Aviation Program Advisory Board, comprised of 30 local representatives from aviation businesses, local government, military installations, public and private school systems, and community groups.

Several board representatives submitted letters of support to MHEC illustrating a need for the program to meet growing employment needs. The backing from community partners, as well as the letters of support, were instrumental to the program getting off the ground.

In a letter from the St. Mary's County Department of Economic Development, representatives said the program will be a significant step in addressing the workforce gap and build a pipeline of skilled professionals to the region's growing aviation sector.

The FAA consultant, whose involvement was recommended by Director of Grant Development Tora Wright, worked with CSM faculty to shape the program curriculum and course syllabi, and helped design the lab to ensure it is outfitted with all necessary equipment and technology. Wright said the consultant played an essential role in getting MHEC approval, and will also be a critical resource when CSM applies for FAA approval for the program. Curriculum approval from the FAA is required for students to earn recognized certifications. Once obtained, CSM will launch the first semester of courses.

CSM is working closely with industry experts and community partners to make sure students are prepared to fill the positions needed to meet growing industry needs. This partner support is a vital part of making the program successful.

"Industry engagement is essential for workforce development. It's important to hear all voices, from industry leaders, to organizations, and the voices of students," Wright said. "It shows the community is behind you and we're meeting a need. Having that community support from those different voices makes our program stronger and helps our students."

The program will train students to diagnose problems with airframe components, identify and maintain propulsion systems used in aircraft, perform aircraft maintenance and inspections, understand Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) regulation and guidelines related to aircraft maintenance, and be prepared to test for a mechanic certificate and associated ratings.

Graduates will be prepared to step into several different roles in the aviation industry, including Airframe and Powerplant (A&P) mechanic and other entry-level maintenance technician positions, airframe or powerplant specialist, quality control or quality assurance inspector, and maintenance planner or scheduler.

Once established, CSM anticipates more than 20 students will graduate each year. Credits will be transferable to the University of Maryland Eastern Shore (UMES), which recently launched a bachelor's degree program in Aviation Maintenance Technology.

Dodge Performing Arts Center Celebrates Milestone

The Nancy R. & Norton T. Dodge Performing Arts Center

The Nancy R. & Norton T. Dodge Performing Arts Center is thrilled to announce it welcomed its 100,000th patron days short of the third anniversary of the grand opening on Sept. 24, 2022.

This significant milestone was reached on Sept. 20, 2025 during an Open House event welcoming many prospective students to the campus to learn more about SMCM, which holds a special meaning since the performing arts center hosted its first event on Sept. 17, 2022, with an Open House event.

"We are deeply humbled that so many people from across the region have journeyed to this campus, to this spectacular building, tucked away in a relatively remote part of Maryland, where their humanity has been nurtured, educated, entertained and restored by some of the world's most brilliant artists, lecturers, historians and educators," said Keith Hinton, executive director of the Nancy R. & Norton T. Dodge Performing Arts Center.

The crown jewel of St. Mary's College of Maryland, the Nancy R. & Norton T. Dodge Performing Arts Center, has featured acclaimed performers, renowned public figures, student-based events and local favorites for the past three years. The mission to host global talents on a hometown stage for the Southern Maryland community is surpassed each program year at the Dodge Performing Arts Center. The multi-platinum and Grammy-nominated R&B/soul superstars Average White Band set the bar high by giving a sold-out performance at the grand opening of the performing arts center in 2022.

Other great public figures who have graced the hometown stage and sold out the concert hall include Kelly Bell Band, The King's Singers, journalist Nina Totenberg, comedian and author Rainn Wilson, '80s tribute band The Reagan Years and many more.

"The Dodge Performing Arts Center was the product of a visionary partnership between SMCM and the state of Maryland, reinforced by the philanthropy of Nancy Dodge, and we're forever thankful for that support," said SMCM President Rhonda Phillips. "That we've achieved this remarkable milestone in just three short years is due to the work of many across campus and in our extended community, starting with Executive Director Keith Hinton and his dedicated staff."

Not only is the Dodge Performing Arts Center celebrated for its amazing performances, but it has also been awarded for its outstanding design. In 2023, the Nancy R. & Norton T. Dodge Performing Arts Center was named American Institute of Architects (AIA) Maryland's Public Building of the Year at the organization's annual Excellence in Design Award.

The celebration comes at an exciting time for the performing arts center, which has two blockbuster upcoming performances for the 2025-2026 season: the dynamic trio The String Queens on Nov. 15, 2025, and bluegrass legend Dan Tyminski on Feb. 14, 2026. These dynamic performers accentuate a season of musical and cultural events from student ensembles, community partners and distinguished guests.

The Nancy R. & Norton T. Dodge Performing Arts Center also houses the College's Music Department and includes classrooms, music labs, rehearsal rooms and a 125-seat recital hall. The building also showcases a 700-seat concert hall for music performances, lectures, colloquia, other large gatherings; a floor-to-ceiling curved glass lobby area for receptions; and a public art installation.

MEET BOOKER

Hi there, I'm Booker. I've been told I'm an ear-resistible goofball! At 18 lbs of pure energy, I'm a 2-yr-old mix who's ready to party! I came from a home with lots of other animals, so I'm used to having company. Somewhere along the way, I lost the top of my ear. We don't know what happened, but we're pretty sure it just made me 10x more dashing!

My motto? "Why walk when you can bounce?" I'm always excited and always up for a good time. Meet me Mon-Fri 11am-4pm and Sat 10am-3pm.

To see my amazing friends also available for adoption, "like" us on Facebook @ Charles County Animal Care Center or at <https://www.charlescountymd.gov/services/animal-care-control/animal-care-center>

MEET AVA

This gorgeous 5-year-old Lab mix is as sweet as she is chatty — she loves to "talk" and share her opinions. Ava is a total people-lover, but she has a special soft spot for the fellas! She does well with most dogs and enjoys playtime, though her confident personality can come off a little bossy. Ava is also okay with cats and is learning great manners in her foster home. She's working on sharing food and treats with other animals — she's a little protective of her goodies sometimes, but she's improving every day. If you're looking for a loyal companion with lots of love (and personality!) to give, Ava might just be your perfect match.

If you are interested in meeting with Ava or learning more about her please contact Animal Relief Fund (ARF) at 301-866-0303 or visit www.animalreliefund.org

Wanderings of an Aimless Mind

Like a Mouse Caught on a Hamster Wheel

By Shelby Opperman
Contributing Writer

A funny thing happened on the way home from my husband's cardiology appointment in mid-October. It was a beautiful day, and we decided to stop at National harbor to find some shoes for me (no easy feat – yes, I had to do the pun) and also get some appetizers and a drink at the Walrus Oyster and Ale House. If you've been there you know that they have some great seafood appetizers. I ordered a smoked Old-Fashioned.

After the Walrus, we headed over to Tanger Outlets where I went to the trusty Skechers, but that's where the fun stopped. I thought wow, it was getting really hot in that store, and as the minutes wore on I started noticing a red rash and hives creeping all over my body. And these weren't just any hives they were big and lumpy, and I was itchier than I had ever been with poison ivy. I was getting scared, and my ears were burning and felt like they were going to explode.

As we were driving home and trying to find a place with Benadryl pills and Benadryl liquid, I was looking up possible interactions of alcohol or seafood with a new biologic medication I had started on that Monday called Nucala that had been added to my other meds regimen of Cimzia biologic injections every two weeks, and all my other RA and OA meds. What I found that made my draw drop was that "Nucala is a fully-humanized monoclonal antibody produced in Chinese hamster ovary cells" Yes, you read that right, it is made from Chinese hamster ovary cells. The creepy factor in finding this out is about enough to have me end Nucala after one month. The funny part (I guess) is that when I read that part in the car to my husband about the creepy hamster, my husband started saying, "Oh no, I see hamsters coming out of your ears!" I think he did that to get me started laughing instead of panicking.

The following night at home on Saturday, Robert said, "Do you want me to make you a smoked Old-Fashioned to see if it was the seafood or the bourbon?" And yes, he is on my life insurance policy. I said sure, let's eliminate possibilities. That smoked bourbon tasted so good...right up until the hives and itching started all over again. Back to the Benadryl and another night of no sleep. On Sunday, we were heading to our favorite winery, Robin Hill in Brandywine, and I must admit that I was a little worried about trying anything. I got my wine slushie first, no problem, then I switched to the Pi'goat Blanc Rose wine, and thank goodness, I had no problems. We probably have 100 bottles of wine at home so at least I can drink that.

On the 24th, I had my pain management appointment for cortisone shots and told Nate about what happened with the allergic reactions and about the creep factor about the hamster thing. He looked at me and said, "Well you know, your Cimzia is also a Monoclonal Antibody treatment that is made using mice or rats." All I could get out was, "Oh no, I didn't need to hear that, 'squeak', oh no, 'squeak, squeak'". I told him that Robert was making fun of me about the hamsters, so I knew it was going to get worse now about the mice. I think Nate snickered at that point.

This morning Robert asked if he could make me a bourbon and ginger beer or ginger ale onight. I thought about it and said, "Well, I have all the Benadryl pills and lotions, 'squeak', I guess we could try it, 'squeak. We have the Clements Cuties/Dueling Keys event at the Moose lodge on Friday night, and I'd like to know what I will be able to 'squeak' drink". Or it could end up that the mice and hamsters are fighting inside me all night, 'squeak, squeak'. I need cheese!

To each new day's 'squeak' adventure, Shelby.

Josh Warner, 33

Joshua James Warner, beloved son, brother, nephew, friend, and cherished member of the Lexington Park community, passed away peacefully at his home in Lexington Park, Maryland, on October 20, 2025. He was 33 years old.

Josh was born on August 20, 1992, in Tucson, Arizona, the cherished son of Samuel Daryl Warner and Angela Michele (Bray) Warner. From an early age, he brought warmth and kindness into every room he entered. His life was marked by an abiding loyalty to family, a generous heart toward friends, and a quiet strength of spirit.

Josh grew up in a military family where he had the opportunity to travel the world. His travels began at an early age in Tucson, Arizona where he was born. At six months old, he moved to Seymour Johnson AFB, NC. From there, at the age of two, he moved to Elmendorf AFB, AK. At the age of ten, he moved to Mountain Home AFB, ID. During his time at Mountain Home, he had the opportunity to visit Korea for a month with his parents and sister. From Mountain Home, at the age of 13, he moved to Spangdahlem AFB, Germany. During that time, he traveled to various countries, some of those included Spain, Greece, Switzerland, France, Belgium, and Italy. From Germany, he moved to Nellis AFB, NV at the age of 16. After his dad retired from the military, he moved to Lexington Park, MD. After a couple years, Josh moved to Pullman, WA to attend Washington State University (WSU) to pursue his medical degree. In 2017, Josh moved back home to Lexington Park, MD. Josh made Maryland his home and rooted himself in the community of Lexington Park, where he loved his neighborhood, his home, and making meaningful connections with those around him. He had a talent for making each person feel seen and for turning simple moments into lasting memories.

Josh's passions were many: He loved cooking, kayaking, hiking, biking with his nieces, swimming, boating and jet skiing — anything that put him outdoors in motion, near water or trails. He adored his dogs, and cherished the pure, uncomplicated joy they brought. His playful spirit and appreciation for the natural world helped shape the way he lived and loved.

He is preceded in death by his loyal dog, Arkto — a faithful companion whose presence brought laughter, comfort and unwavering devotion.

Josh leaves behind his loving parents, Samuel Daryl Warner and Angela Michele (Bray) Warner; his dear sister, Taylor Grace Warner; his grandmother, Marlene Henrikson; his nieces, Brooklynn Allen and Maddisen Allen; and a wide circle of family and friends who will carry his memory in their hearts. Josh's departure leaves a hole in many lives — but his legacy of kindness, warmth and love will live on.

A celebration of life for Josh will be held at a later date by his family. In lieu of flowers, the family suggests that those wishing to honour Josh's memory might consider donating to an Animal Shelter or Run for the Wall (RFTW) as those were very near and dear to Josh himself. His family would also ask for those to reach out to someone in need, extend a hand of friendship, or simply offer kindness — small acts that reflect his gentle spirit.

Joshua James Warner will be remembered for his adventurous heart, his love of nature, his love for his family, and the light he brought into so many lives. May he rest in peace, and may his memory be a blessing.

Condolences to the family maybe left at www.brinsfieldsfuneral.com.

World War II Veteran Remembers His Service

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

Malcomb Gordon Grahame is one of Calvert County's few (if not the only) surviving World War II veterans. At 100 years of age, Grahame lives on the family farm in Owings. Still affable and chipper, he has vivid memories of his three years of service as a Navy Seabee.

Grahame enlisted while still in high school in St. Petersburg, FL but was allowed to finish his high schooling before being called to active duty in June 1943.

Because of his eyesight, he was "designated for special assignment," according to an interview conducted ten years ago by Fred Bumgarner of American Legion Post 206 in Chesapeake Beach. The article was published by the post.

While in Jacksonville he received his orders for that special assignment in the Navy's Construction Battalion (CB), thus becoming a Seabee member, and he spent his time building things, in the States and then Pearl Harbor, ending his career in Okinawa, Japan.

Bumgarner reported, "As the war progressed, particularly in the Pacific theater, there was a great need for men with construction skills to build aircraft runways, roads, barracks, port facilities, and the infrastructure to support them."

Bumgarner reported that one of Grahame's stateside stops was Camp Peary near Williamsburg, VA "for his combined Seabee boot camp and initial training. He learned the Navy way of simple construction techniques associated with building Quonset huts and oil tanks. While he hoped to learn more specialized skills, Gordon said his role at this point was more like that of a construction laborer. His group was designated "Super 8" at Peary which resulted in their being formed into CBMU 523, a maintenance unit."

Grahame said, in an interview with the County Times on Nov. 5, that he always aspired to more construction training, but always ended up doing the hammer and nails stuff instead.

He said he once asked for more training and instead ended up with 30 days' worth of extra KP (Kitchen patrol) duty.

Grahame's ship arrived in Japan from Hawaii after the Japanese surrendered but before the peace treaty was signed, so instead of getting on the battlefield that he had hoped for, he helped with construction of roads in Okinawa before being sent home.

Grahame was an only child. Being around dozens of other men on ship and in the bases he served was perhaps the most lasting impression that the war left. He missed that camaraderie so much that he almost decided to re-enlist.

While on duty he received word that his father, who had lived in Calvert County on an ancestral farm before moving to Florida, had passed away. His father had left the Maryland farm to him.

After working in groves in Florida for a while, where he insists he wore out his legs climbing ladders to pick fruit, he moved to Calvert to take over the farm he inherited from his father.

It was a tobacco and corn farm, but the corn proved so unprofitable he switched to cattle and it remains a livestock farm today, operated by his son-in-law.

That move from Florida to Calvert with his wife also proved to be a lonely one, as he didn't know anyone here. But he soon began to fit in due to congregation at his family's ancestral church, All Saints in Sunderland.

He also joined American Legion Post 206, which was then in Huntingtown and has continued to be a member of the post after it moved into new quarters in Chesapeake Beach.

Grahame hopes to attend the annual Veteran's Day ceremony in Chesapeake Beach this year as the day has become a big one for him as he remembers his comrades who have passed away.

Grahame's daughter Martha Hyde attributes her father's longevity to several factors. One is his diet. He eats a complete breakfast (bacon and eggs) daily along with lots of vegetables throughout the day and a glass of wine at night. He has, however, continued a long-term habit of chewing tobacco, although he doesn't smoke.

She also attributed his good humor. He is always laughing, mostly at himself. He also is a voracious reader, including histories and two newspapers every day.

Veterans Day is also important for Hyde. She is the All Saints Church chair of the national organization called Wreaths Across America, which lays wreaths on graves of veterans at Christmas time.

This Sunday Nov. 9, weather permitting, All Saints will have a special ceremony, in conjunction with Wreaths Across America, in which veterans buried in their graveyards will be remembered. She said, so far, more than 40 have been identified.

Serving Those Who Served

Veteran Turned Veterinarian Honors Service and Camaraderie

By Vada Mercer
Contributing Writer

For 20 years, Navy veteran Herb Yee served our country around the world. Now, he serves our community through his on-call veterinary practice.

Yee, now 65, filled many roles in his 20 years of service, including duties as naval flight officer, navigator, tactical coordinator, and mission commander.

After graduating from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1982, he began flight school and was assigned to a P-3 squadron, whose mission was focused on anti-submarine warfare and maritime surveillance.

While flying a routine surveillance mission over the Sea of Japan in 1986, Yee and his crew made a remarkable discovery. They were the first to spot Russia's newest fast-attack submarine, the Akula class, previously unseen by U.S. forces.

"It was the highlight of our six-month deployment," he said.

Another mission in 1994, when Yee served as operations officer for his squadron, involved answering an emergency distress call made from a Ukrainian merchant vessel. After several days of search and rescue efforts, two merchant sailors were rescued at sea.

One of Yee's earliest memories as a navigator came during a training flight to Midway Island, a remote Pacific atoll known for its population of Laysan albatrosses, more commonly known as "Gooney birds."

He saw thousands of these birds on the island, and found their behavior humorous. To take off, the birds took a "running start." When coming down, they would crash-land on top of each other.

"This now quiet atoll island is a stark contrast to what it was 41 years ago when the island and airfield were protected by sailors and marines manning anti-aircraft batteries," he said. "To think that I was standing on a little sandy beach in the middle of the Pacific Ocean that was a turning point in the war in the Pacific was quite surreal."

During his career, Yee deployed aboard the USS Nimitz during Operation Desert Storm and earned several honors for his service, including the Meritorious Service Medal and the Navy Commendation Medal with a gold star.

Yee met his wife, Christinia Yee, at a crew member's wedding in Treasure Island, CA.

"I have enjoyed many years, many deployments, many different duty stations and a life of great experiences," his wife said. "All because of Treasure Island."

Christinia Yee faced the struggles of being a wife to a service member, but she looks back on those moments with fondness.

"The best, very best option is to take the orders and look at it as an adventure. A chance to meet new people and see places you might otherwise not see," she said. "Sometimes you may wish to wipe away those orders, but hey, it's only two years, or maybe with a little luck, less."

After two decades of service, he felt it was best to return to civilian life, and went back to school to earn a doctorate in veterinary medicine at Virginia Tech, graduating in 2010 at 49 years old.

Today, he is self-employed in St. Mary's County, taking veterinary work on-call. He and his wife care for more than 15 horses and several sheep on their farm, Arabesque.

Every Veterans Day, the Yees celebrate the past veterans and current active duty members.

"I'm proud of the service Herb put in and the work he did. Others are continuing in this tradition and we should all be proud of them," Christina Yee said. "But also understand that it isn't just the service member, but the family that also serves!"

Herb Yee will always remember the camaraderie he felt with his fellow service members, many of which he has kept in contact with.

"It's a good way to commemorate everybody who has served or is still serving in active duty," he said. "All my brothers and sisters in arms that I've had the pleasure of working with over the 20 years I served."

You are having a good day.

Good days start with comfort, care, and gratitude for your service. Every day, we have the honor of caring for veterans—men and women who once served our nation and now face progressive illness with courage and dignity.

Vietnam Veteran Finds Peace After War

By Vada Mercer
Contributing Writer

During his service in the U.S. military, William “Bill” Crawley was adored among a Vietnam village for bringing extra ice cream to the kids. When he returned home, he was denied help from a VA hospital and labeled a baby killer.

Crawley, now 76, served in the Army from 1969 to 1971, including his year of training. He was first deployed in Cam Ranh Bay alongside his brother, Samuel Crawley, who worked as a chef for fellow soldiers during his three years deployed.

Crawley was a foot soldier with no official title, a truck driver who picked up supplies and food, a guide for convoy operations, and a coordinator for shifts at smaller communication compounds.

“I’ve seen some things that I shouldn’t have seen. I got shot at,” Crawley said. “It’s all part of being in Vietnam.”

Crawley recalled his time with a sense of nostalgia. He would sneak out of the compound at night with friends, staying out so late that he would barely make formation the next morning. Some nights he would use the supply truck to sneak women back into the compound.

One night, tension among soldiers turned violent, and a knife was pulled. A friend of Crawley’s who had gone through basic training with him, George Frank, jumped in the way of the knife.

“He got stabbed instead of me,” Crawley said. Frank survived the attack, but the moment stuck with Crawley.

Bill Crawley

After being discharged, Crawley attended school in D.C. and learned to weld. He became an ironworker, creating functional pieces like chairs and tables. He still crafts metal art today from his home in Lusby, and says working with his hands keeps him grounded.

“Everybody got to do their part, whether you like it or not. Because if we didn’t, America wouldn’t be America,” he said. “I move when I want to move, and I go when I want to go. So I’m happy, you know? I think this is a great country.”

As Veterans Day approaches, Crawley says he’s grateful to have made it home, and grateful for every day ahead of him.

“Every day I wake up, I say it’s a great day in the morning,” he said. “And it is, because I made it this far.”

Chesapeake Beach Mayor Relates Veteran’s Service

Chesapeake Beach Mayor Bruce Wahl has shared his service record for this Veteran’s Day to The County Times.

“I served in the United States Army from 1968 until 1971. I was an Infantry Lieutenant and served in Vietnam from December 1969 until January 1971.

“My first assignment was as a Training Advisor for the Vietnamese Infantry Officers’ Candidate School in Thu Duc, near Saigon. After four months in the country, I was transferred to American Forces Vietnam Network (AFVN), which provided radio and television to support the American (and other nationality) troops with a ‘Taste of Home.’ I was the commander of Detachment 3 in Pleiku, which was in 2 Corps, and very near the Cambodian border.

“Upon my return from Vietnam in January 1971, I secured a job as a broadcast engineer at a company just being created, ‘National Public Radio.’ I worked at NPR as either employee or consultant unit 2019, when I finally retired.

“I moved to Chesapeake Beach in 1985, and soon thereafter became a member of the

Chesapeake Beach Mayor Bruce Wahl

Town Council. I served on the Council for nearly 20 years, then served as Mayor from 2008 until 2016. After an eight year hiatus, I successfully ran for Mayor again in 2024. My current term will expire in 2028.

“I am very honored to be back in service to the citizens of this beautiful waterfront town!”

Veteran Reflects on Service, Sacrifice and Brotherhood

By Marcia Hart
Contributing Writer

For Navy veteran and St. Mary's County staple Thomas Chayka, service to his country wasn't just a duty. It was a calling shaped by faith, family and a lifelong sense of camaraderie.

"I grew up in Brooklyn, New York," Chayka recalled. "Our parish had what we called Sea Cadets, like young Navy. We wore uniforms and learned all about the Navy. So by the time I finished high school, I knew what I wanted to do."

At just 17 years old, with his father's signature, Chayka enlisted in the U.S. Navy in 1962, beginning a career that would span more than 20 years. His role as an aviation maintenance administration specialist placed him at the heart of Navy aviation operations, keeping meticulous records to ensure the safety and readiness of every aircraft.

"My job was to take care of all the paperwork and logbooks on the aircraft," he said. "No part that was due for replacement ever got past its time limit. It was all part of the safety program."

Over the course of his career, Chayka worked on P-3s, A-4s, A-7s, F-4s, helicopters and even the old SP-5M seaplane. His service took him around the world from Great Lakes, Illinois to Memphis, San Diego, Vietnam and Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, where he served three years with his wife and eldest son.

"I spent five different tours in Vietnam," he said. "Only two of those were in-country, but every tour was different. You learn to trust the people you serve with."

That sense of trust and friendship remains one of the most meaningful parts of his service. "The best thing about being in the military is the camaraderie," Chayka said. "You get to know people, you trust them and even 40 years later you still run into each other. I bowl every Thursday night with someone I was stationed with in Gitmo (Guantanamo Bay) in the 1970s."

After retiring as a First Class Petty Officer (E-6) in 1983, Chayka and his wife Barbara made St. Mary's County their home. They raised three children, Tommy, Bobby and Chrissy, who all attended local schools and participated in choir, cross country and other activities.

Today, Chayka continues to serve through a group called the Band of Brothers, a local organization dedicated to helping veterans navigate VA claims and give back to the community.

"One of our members, Harry, helps veterans file for VA claims," Chayka explained. "He's been doing it 12 to 15 years, and he knows what he's doing. We meet every two weeks and we also give back, like buying hoodies for local elementary school kids around Christmas."

While he won't be walking in this year's Veterans Day Parade due to mobility issues, Chayka will still proudly represent as part of the Knights of Columbus.

Reflecting on how far the country has come in recognizing veterans, Chayka's voice softened when he shared about his return from Vietnam. "When we came back from Vietnam, we didn't get a lot of thanks. Nobody did," he said quietly. "So it feels good now for people to recognize the sacrifices that were made. A lot of people gave up more than I did, legs, arms, eyes, ears."

For younger generations considering the military, Chayka offers practical but heartfelt advice. "It's a good career. There are road bumps but the military takes care of you. My medical issues are covered by TRICARE and Medicare. You don't find many jobs that do that."

As this Veterans Day approaches, St. Mary's County honors heroes like Thomas Chayka, men and women who served not for recognition but for love of country, faith and one another.

"It's all about giving back," he said with a smile. "Once a Sailor, always a Sailor."

Leonardtown Celebrates 50 Years of Veterans Day Tradition

By Vada Mercer
Contributing Writer

Leonardtown's Veterans Day parade celebrates its 50th anniversary this year on Nov. 11 with over 2,000 people participating, including color guard, active duty military groups, service member scouts, marching bands, and local businesses.

The parade will begin at 10 a.m., starting at Ryken High School and ending at the Leonardtown Middle School. A memorial ceremony will take place in the town square after the parade.

With 5,000 to 8,000 spectators expected to turn out, Leonardtown businesses extend their hours to accommodate visitors. Some businesses have themed promotions and discounts for veterans and service members.

The event is able to be held thanks to the support of dozens of Leonardtown community volunteers.

"The parade is not a fundraiser or a revenue-generating event. It's a completely free celebration dedicated to the community," said Aris Molina, Leonardtown's public relations and event coordinator. "The parade organizer and all of the support team are all volunteers making a difference in their community."

The Veteran's Day parade began in 1975. It was held in Lexington Park until 1993, when it was moved to Leonardtown. Since then, the event has grown exponentially.

The original organizer was the late veteran Clancy Lyall, who served in World War II and the Korean War. In 2005, his longtime assistant and fellow army veteran Tom Warren briefly took over in organizing.

In 2007, the current event organizer Connie Pennington took over. Pennington is a veteran herself, and her family is full of veterans. Outside of this event, she runs the organization "Southern Maryland Vacations for Vets," which provides free local week-end retreats for recovering service members and their families.

"I have hosted hundreds of recovering vets with all levels of injuries, several of which have passed away," Pennington said. "We owe this honor to all of our Veterans, alive or deceased, healthy or ill. Freedom is not free."

For the parade, Washington and Fenwick Street will be closed from 8 a.m. to noon. Downtown parking and traffic will be limited to residents, business owners, and employees only.

Visitors are encouraged to park at the College of Southern Maryland, the St. Mary's Fairgrounds, or the St. Mary's County Governmental Center. Parade volunteers will assist with parking and street detours.

In the event of inclement weather, the parade will not take place, and the memorial ceremony will be moved to the Leonardtown Town Hall. The cancellation decision would be posted day-of at 8 a.m. on the town's Facebook page and the St. Mary's County government website.

"With a large military and military-affiliated population in our community, this event provides a meaningful way for everyone to come together in appreciation and celebration," said Molina. "It's a cherished tradition that fosters community spirit, gratitude, and pride."

Lighthouses to Join 'Bells of Peace'

The bells at St. Clement's Island Museum and Piney Point Lighthouse Museum, two historic sites overseen by St. Mary's County Government's Museum Division, will toll on November 11, 2025, at 11 a.m. to honor the 116,516 Americans, including the 27 St. Mary's County natives, who died in World War I.

BELLS OF PEACE: A WORLD WAR I REMEMBRANCE, launched in 2018 to commemorate the centennial of World War I, is a collaborative program announced by the World War I Centennial Commission in coordination with the Pritzker Military Museum & Library, the Society of the Honor Guard of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the American Legion, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, whereby American citizens and organizations across the entire country are invited to toll bells in their communities twenty-one times on November 11, 2025, at 11 a.m. local time. The bell tolling provides a solemn reminder of the sacrifice and service of veterans of World War I, and all veterans.

Bells will be tolled in communities across the nation, in places of worship, schools, town halls, public carillons, and cemeteries, to mark the anniversary of the Armistice that brought an end to hostilities, in what Americans fervently hoped had been "The War to End All Wars."

This nationwide program is designed to honor those American men and women who served over one hundred years ago during World War I. The war ended by an armistice agreement between the warring countries at 11 a.m. on November 11, 1918. World War I took place between July 1914 and November 1918 and was one of the deadliest conflicts in world history. Over nine million combatants and seven million civilians died as a result of the war.

The United States officially entered the war on April 6th, 1917. Some 4.7 million Americans stepped forward to serve in uniform during the war; two million of them were deployed overseas to fight, and 116,516 of them never made it home.

Optimist of the Year Award Presented

On September 28, much to his surprise, Dave Spigler was presented with the Solomons Optimist Club's annual "Optimist of the Year Award" by Club President Candace Milcarzyk at an impromptu meeting that came about when the actual presentation at this year's annual picnic had to be cancelled due to the weather.

With no notice or hint of what was about to take place, President Milcarsky handed Dave a package containing a beautiful blue Optimist plaque for his volunteer contributions in caring for the youth of the community and support of the club's ongoing efforts during the past year. He was recognized for organizing a very successful Essay Contest and an Awards Dinner that followed. His efforts to draw great interest in this program by visiting several English classes at local public schools and a parochial school in southern Calvert County succeeded in attracting more than 50 submissions from students in grades 7-12.

This was the largest participation ever and led to a very difficult selection for the top three entries.

Additionally, Dave served on the Club's Board of Directors and was involved in many of the club's efforts during the year.

He provided support to club leadership, offering expert suggestions and ideas for tackling issues as they occurred. He proved especially helpful in the promotion of this year's Kenny Hoofnagel Scholarship Program.

He played a pivotal part in the planning and holding of this year's Annual Optimist Dinner held at the Calvert Marine Museum. He served as this year's Master of Ceremonies and recognized several club members for their long time support of the organization. Their efforts were publicized with a photo on the front page of the Calvert County Times and in the story he prepared for that edition of the paper. Further, he played a part in putting together plans for the club's annual picnic, but unfortunately this big community event was cancelled at the last minute due to weather.

Dave has earned a reputation for his many various efforts to help those less fortunate than himself over the last several years. With his wife Deborah, he has involved himself supporting the youth as a Sunday School teacher at his parish, and Religious Education Director. A charter member of Knights of Columbus Council 9258 in Solomons, he has held most officer positions within the organization, and his efforts were recognized when he was selected by the Maryland State Council as the Maryland Citizen of the Year 2010-2011.

Further, he was especially thrilled to learn his selection by the County Commissioners as "The Most Beautiful Person of Calvert County" in 2013 for his many volunteer efforts.

Many folks in the community know Dave by his nickname "Spiggy" and are fully aware of his 20 years of supporting local charities as one of the infamous Washington Redskins "Hogettes." These 15 fun guys were known for their hilarious efforts in supporting their team, but their true purpose was to support Children's Hospital. They are credited for having help raised $130 million for the sick kids during their 25 years of existence. Dave claimed to be the "cute blonde in the blue granny dress!"

Dave has always stated he never set out to accomplish any of these efforts for recognition or award. He has always looked out for folks less fortunate than himself to offer a hand where possible. It's just the way he was raised. These honors go to his parents.

November Features Shelter Adoption Promo

The Linda L. Kelley Animal Shelter's November adoption promotion, themed "Thanks for Giving Me a Home," runs through Saturday, Nov. 29. In celebration of National Adopt a Senior Pet Month and Thanksgiving, adoption fees will be waived for animals eight years and older.

Animals of all ages are available for adoption, including dogs, cats, rabbits, roosters, pigs and more. Adoptions include spay or neuter surgery, microchipping, age-appropriate vaccinations and a starter care package to help pets transition into their new homes.

Standard adoption protocols still apply. All potential adopters will go through the shelter's usual screening process to ensure each animal is placed in a safe, loving and appropriate home.

"We're thankful for every adopter who opens their heart and home to a senior pet," said Crystal Dowd, deputy director of Public Safety. "Older animals make wonderful companions and deserve a loving family to call their own."

The shelter is open Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. To schedule an intake appointment, call 410-535-7387. The shelter is located at 5055 Hallowing Point Road in Prince Frederick.

Partnerships Highlight of Burnett Center Open House

Oct. 16 event at Burnett House

There was a joyful spirit on a perfect fall evening as people from the Calvert County community came together to bless the newly restored Labyrinth at Calvert Homestead and celebrate the Burnett Center for Hope & Healing's growth as a vital resource for those living with illness and loss.

Community members, local leaders and members of the health community attended the event that was held Oct. 16 at the center at 4559 Sixes Road in Prince Frederick, which is part of the Hospice of the Chesapeake family of services.

Guests first enjoyed hors d'oeuvres and the opportunity to learn about the integrative arts programs the organization offers. This includes veterans care, pet therapy, art therapy, and healing energies, including Compassionate Touch and reiki.

Hospice of the Chesapeake President and CEO Becky Miller stepped onto the portico to express gratitude to the Calvert County community and shared the organization's vision for the future — including expanding partnerships with local healthcare providers and county agencies to ensure more residents have access to hospice, supportive and grief care services.

"Good news, bad news: We are living longer, but we are living longer with advanced illnesses and diminishing resources. This phenomenon is going to require communities to band together, get creative and pool resources to allow our older population to remain independent and healthy in the community," Miller said. "This is something community-based organizations have always done. We are able to do so much because of our partnerships and friendships, old and new."

One such partnership is with CalvertHealth. Kara Harrer, CalvertHealth Associate Vice President of Ancillary Services, shared how intertwined the medical center is with Hospice of the Chesapeake, from palliative and end-of-life care to having representation on the hospice organization's board. "Beyond the bedside, our partnership extends into the community. Through initiatives like the Community Health Improvement Roundtable, we are engaging leaders and organizations to address key health needs, including end-of-life care," Harrer said.

Then, all of the guests followed the path that leads to the labyrinth next door. Special guest Barbara Burnett, who generously donated the Burnett Center property in memory of her husband, Robert Burnett, shared her gratitude to Hospice of the Chesapeake and the Calvert County community for helping her to realize her hopes that both the labyrinth and the Burnett Center would provide a peaceful space for reflection, healing and community connection. With the help of a youth organization from North Carolina, Burnett created the labyrinth in 2001 to help her cope with the grief of losing her husband. "I can only hope that all that walk or just stand inside will find their peace and answers as I did," she said.

The labyrinth is open to the public during daylight hours. For how to access the labyrinth, visit <https://labyrinthlocator.org/labyrinth/the-calvert-homestead/177/>.

Residents Invited to Chart Future of Open Space

The Calvert County Department of Parks & Recreation invites citizens to provide input on the Land Preservation, Parks & Recreation Plan (LPPRP), a five-year strategic plan that guides land conservation, park improvements, recreation opportunities and open space priorities throughout the county.

Citizens can provide input by taking a survey addressing the conservation and development of outdoor recreation opportunities in Calvert County over the next five years. The survey is available online at www.CalvertCountyMd.gov/LPPRPSurvey.

"We're excited to set in motion a plan to capture Calvert County's goals for future recreation development and land preservation," said Parks & Recreation Director Bob Branham. "This plan cannot move forward without public input, and we encourage all residents to take the survey and help us shape the county's future together."

The county's most recent LPPRP was adopted in August 2022 and used similar public input to identify community priorities and guide investments in new facilities, park upgrades and land preservation initiatives.

Information on the 2022 LPPRP can be found online at www.CalvertCountyMd.gov/LPPRP.

School Board Considers Student Telehealth Access

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The Calvert County Board of Education is considering a policy that allows students to access telehealth services at school under some very strict requirements.

At the Oct. 23 school board meeting, Director of Student Services Cecilia Lewis said, "This policy responds to House Bill 522, which mandates that each local educational agency, or LEA, develop a telehealth policy for secondary students aligned with state guidelines. These guidelines were developed by a work group led by the Maryland State Department of Education and the Maryland Department of Health to enhance and expand student access to telehealth services during the school day. The law allows each LEA flexibility in developing policies that suit local needs and resources provided they are consistent with state guidelines. LEAs also have the authority to determine which type of school-based telehealth appointments they will offer."

Lewis said, "The proposed policy allows parent-student initiated telehealth services, which are appointments between students and external healthcare providers, without formal agreements. With our LEA, the focus is on behavioral health services for students in grades six through 12 to address limited local access and reduce time away from instruction and other school experiences."

She said once the policy is approved "we will develop corresponding procedures. The procedures will address all essential elements of the legislative requirements, including details regarding equity and prioritization of access, confidentiality, parent and student informed consent, in-person support protocols and provision of services. The procedures will also include guidelines regarding appointment scheduling, coordination and availability of school schedules, consent, physical space, staff roles, crisis response, and academic impact surrounding expectations for missed instruction and makeup work. We believe this policy will enhance student well-being while supporting academic continuity."

Lewis said regarding impact on staff, "We certainly have evaluated the necessary resources as well as time, which is why we are proposing a limited access with some scheduling restrictions. The schools would determine, based on their calendar with testing schedules, and limit how many telehealth appointments would be available per week."

Lewis observed, "In addition to that, because we were not allocated any additional staff to support the supervision of students throughout this, we're requiring parents to be present to supervise their child during these appointments."

School Bboard President Jana Post wanted to know what would happen if a student wanted a private session.

Lewis responded, "It is your policy, so certainly you can help drive any final decisions, but we are recommending that the parent is present throughout that session. And that is because in a traditional setting, a doctor is physically present with that child. So, you have supervision with another adult in a telehealth situation, particularly in a school setting where they're under our care and custody. When you're working with behavioral health, we would not want a child to be at risk with potentially the person on the other side being virtual and not seeing potential self-harm."

"There could be cases where a child could be cutting themselves and someone on the other side of the screen is not able to see that," she said."

A room for telehealth would be allocated although not necessarily exclusively.

Lewis added, "So I think it's an additional layer of support so that in cases where a parent may find a provider in Annapolis, but their child attends Southern Middle School, that's quite a distance for them to have to leave and come back. So, it's going to at least minimize some travel time, a lot of travel time, missed instruction and other school experiences."

The record will be left open for 30 days for comment.

School Board Lays Out Budget Priorities

Union Representatives Log In

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The Calvert County Board of Education at their Oct. 23 meeting gave their first crack at budget priorities for the next fiscal year. Interim School Superintendent Dr. Marcus Newsome will be presenting his proposed budget in January.

Member Paul Harrison suggested math coaches and “SROs (School Resource Officers) at the remaining elementary schools.”

Member Joseph Marchio advanced the need for additional Safety Advocates and SROs at the elementary schools.

School Board Vice President Lisa Grenis said, “I want to start with the absolute priority, and that’s honoring all negotiated agreements with CEA, CAESS and CASA.”

She added, “I also think we need to hire more special education teachers, IEP (Individual Education Plan) facilitators, and instructional assistants to help support with the IEP and 504 process.

Grenis said, “I talked to Dr. Newsom about this. We started with gifted and talented teachers this year, and it looks like we would need two more for next year. But I think that decision needs to be a data-based decision and perhaps a survey to see how it’s working. I don’t want to just say hire more without evidence that what we’re doing is efficient and productive in the schools.”

She added, “I really would like to see reimbursement for extra work, extra pay for the staff that are responsible for the Purple Star schools. I’m hearing it as a tremendous work. And, I don’t think we’re talking a huge budget item, but they should be reimbursed.

“We also have pre-K teachers who are preparing for Excel visits that is high intensity, high overtime, and they’re not getting reimbursed for that.”

Grenis said, “We talked about Blue Ribbon schools. If a teacher is stepping forward to do something like that, once again, highly time consuming, they should be reimbursed.”

Grenis observed, “One that I think is a very low budget item but should be a priority is to ensure quality and differentiated staff development for all staff, not just teachers. It should be at all levels.

“And I think the only other one we haven’t discussed was adding a shared dean position between Mount Harmony and Huntingtown Elementary. I’m hearing that they are grossly understaffed at those two buildings, so perhaps one could be hired and shared between the two.”

Board member Melissa Goshorn said, “I don’t disagree with anything anyone has said, but we all were a part of this process last year, and I didn’t get a money tree recently, so I just want to bring some realism to this process.”

She added, “There are three main areas that are focus for me generally. Student safety — we talked about advocates and SROs. Direct to student support -- we talked about math coaches. Every position you mentioned, I think, supports direct to student support.

“And then I think the other area we need to focus on is operational effectiveness. In order to be able to fund the budget, because again, none of us got a money tree... I think we need to do two things as we approach this budget process. I think we need to do a staffing adequacy and utilization assessment in whatever way you want to think about that. We have a lot of people and a lot of needs.”

She added, “People are working way too much. We already know we have supervisors doing four and five jobs. We need to look at all of our people, all of the positions and figure out what everybody’s doing. And then we need to figure out what really needs to be done. And everything that we do and everything we prioritize should be how are we supporting students?”

In that regard, she said, “We might want to consider investing in a process optimization specialist so that someone can just take a look around.”

“I’d also like to add a hundred more teachers,” Goshorn said, “But in order to do any of those things, we need to do some assessing first.”

Goshorn observed, “We have a lot of long-term subs that have been long-term subs for a long time. If we could get a dollar amount of what it would add to the budget to convert those to full-time positions, I would like to see what that impact would be.”

School board President Jana Post looked back a hundred years and what school systems were required to do. “And then you fast forward to today, and the list is vastly different, and it is incredibly long.”

So, she said, “It would seem that we have to prioritize what the most important things are based on all of these things.”

Student Member of the Board Allison Jones said, “I especially agree with the need for teachers in the special needs departments, and instructional assistance as well as the assistance to our students. Coming from a military child perspective, I know when I came back to the States, I was far behind in math, because they had a far different curriculum from what they do in the States, and it took a lot of time for me to catch up.

“So, any assistance that can be provided to students to really catch them up, and this can be for students that are new, that are behind, that have been homeschooled, it can be very challenging. So, the assistance is greatly appreciated, and it is greatly needed for those students who are struggling.”

At the public forum, Calvert Education Association (CEA) President Jason Oates said, “I want to thank our elected board for prioritizing some of the budget requests we made last year. Thank you for restoring the fourth assistant principal at both Calvert and Patuxent high schools.

Thank you to the board staff and building administrators and the HR department for your efforts to fill counselor vacancies. Thank you to the elected board for continuing to make staff and student safety a top priority. Without safety, learning can’t happen. Thank you for your understanding of the value of learning for our gifted and talented students. The addition of GATE teachers both fixed an equity issue and filled a hole that has existed for years.”

Oates said, “I recognize that balancing cost is challenging. I respect that budgeting is your responsibility. I ask that you remember that my responsibility is to advocate for what’s best for educators and in turn, our students. Earlier this week, I sent you an email with eight requests... I want to draw your attention to my first request, which I’ve also heard tonight. I’m asking you to continue to honor all negotiated agreements with CEA CASSE and CASA, including steps, Colas, and incentives without cutting staff and without increasing class size.”

His budget priorities other than honoring the agreements, as presented by email, are:

1. Add IEP Facilitators: Please consider adding IEP facilitators to reduce the workload currently falling on administrators, deans, counselors, and special educators. This would allow these professionals to focus more fully on supporting students and instructional needs.
2. Add a Shared Dean Position: We need an additional dean split between Mt. Harmony Elementary and Huntingtown Elementary. The increased demands administrators make shared leadership support essential for effective school management.
3. Increase Learning Specialists: Increase learning specialists for departments such as visual and performing arts, health and PE, and science, where current supervisors are managing multiple programs simultaneously. Some are doing the equivalent of four to five positions compared to similar roles in neighboring counties.
4. Hire More Special Educators and Speech-Language Pathologists: To truly support inclusive practices, we must ensure appropriate staffing levels — and that means hiring SLPs, special education teachers, and Instructional Assistants, not relying on long-term substitutes.
5. Prioritize Mental Health: Fully staff every building with their own counselors, psychologists, and social workers, and improve recruitment and retention for these critical roles. Mental health support for students and staff is no longer optional — it’s essential.
6. Expand Safety Staffing: Expand safety staffing by adding elementary and more middle and high school safety advocates. Every school should have the personnel necessary to ensure a safe and supportive environment for learning.
7. Fund the Peer Assistance and Review (PAR) Program: Last, the CEA and

CEA President Jason Oates

CCPS teams are in the planning phase of the Peer Assistance and Review program — a Blueprint-mandated initiative. Fully funding this program will help us recruit, support, and retain the very best educators here in Calvert County.

Calvert Association of Education Support Staff (CASSE) President Stacy Tayman asked the board to “prioritize filling vacant positions. “We have heard at several board meetings that CCPS has realized significant savings due to unfilled positions and that of the original $17 million of the fund balance we thought we’d need to use to balance the budget, less than $7 million has been needed. Most concerning is that the largest underspending came from employee benefits, like retirement health insurance and group life insurance. Because positions weren’t filled, salaries were also under-spent. Staff are absorbing the workload, while the monies are being used to cover other expenses.

“CASSE agreed to the lowest pay increase of our current contract for this fiscal year, understanding the financial challenges from past budget issues. But now with $10 million in underspending and ongoing vacancies, we must prioritize staffing and support. Reduce the number of long-term substitutes and roles meant for instructional assistants, hire and train permanent staff.”

She asked the school board to evaluate secretarial support. “Elementary schools typically have two secretaries while middle schools have three, but nine out of the 12 elementary schools have comparable or higher enrollment than middle schools. Elementary school students often require more hands-on support from front office staff than their older peers. From managing parent communication or transportation changes, providing emotional reassurance, the demands on elementary front office staff are both frequent and intensive, and this support significantly increases the workload and complexity of front office responsibilities.”
