New Owner Details Plans for Piney Point Terminal

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

A piece of property in St. Mary's County with a storied past is poised for a new lease on life.

Offshore Aviation Group (OAG), a company that has quietly operated out of an office at the Seafarer's International Union's Paul Hall Center in Piney Point for the last eight years, has announced the acquisition of the 320-acre Piney Point Fuel Terminal.

According to a press release, the company plans to transform the property into "a world-class center for unmanned systems development, testing, and operations, restoring the site's proud aviation and maritime heritage while positioning St. Mary's County as a global leader in next-generation technology."

The property was purchased by Steuart Petroleum Company in 1949. With a holding capacity as high as 500,000 barrels, the terminal was one of the largest in the United States. It has sat idle for many years.

It was the site of a torpedo factory during World War II and the battleground for one of the county's most hotly contested and politically charged episodes when in the mid 1970's Steuart attempted to locate an oil refinery there.

Then State Senator Paul Bailey introduced a bill into the Maryland General Assembly requiring a referendum on the issue. Even though Steuart launched an extensive advertising campaign, county voters on June 23, 1974, rejected the idea by 6,668 to 3,441 votes. The tide may have turned when a local, trusted physician voiced radio ads warning of cancer from the refinery.

Now, OAG CEO Robert Hicks told a recent town hall meeting at the Piney Point Lighthouse Museum, "The site has the potential of being unique in the entire world, and we want to promote that. It is a site that can advance not only the air technology, but the ground technology and the sea technology as well, into the next century."

"As part of its environmental and community commitment, the press release stated, "The project will involve completely removing storage tanks, and the entire pipeline that connected the facility to the pier on the Potomac River. OAG will re-open Piney Point Creek to local boaters and using the site for manned and unmanned systems test and evaluation and private sea-plane base."

"This is more than an investment in infrastructure — it's an investment in the future of St. Mary's County," said Hicks. "We are honoring Piney Point's legacy as a WWII naval test site while ensuring it remains a centerpiece for innovation, jobs, and leadership in unmanned technology."

Hick told the town hall attendees that the cleanup will be the responsibility of the previous owner. "They're the sellers. And it's a condition of the sale."

Offshore Aviation's plan includes:

- Expanding commercial manufacturing of OAG's 16 type, model, series Unmanned Systems to the site.
- Re-opening the runway and working with St. Mary's County, the Maryland Aviation Administration (MAA), and the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) to establish a private use airport to support commercial manufacturing, test and evaluation, and maintenance.

- Building commercial hangars for defense contractors and universities for dedicated airspace and sea space for unmanned systems testing.
- Revitalizing the boat launch and 1200-foot industrial pier to serve Offshore Aviation's growing fleet of Offshore Supply Vessels, strengthening the region's maritime and logistics capabilities.
- Creating a partnership with local organizations such as the Paul Hall Center and the Friends of the St. Clements Island and Piney Point Museums to support community events and potentially collaborate on a water taxi project and development of a World War II heritage museum focusing on the US Naval Torpedo Test Squadron history.

Hicks said, "We expect the short-term impact to the area to be about 90 high paying jobs and about $9 million in payroll annually...it's going to be an economic engine again, which it was for many, many years, but as you know, it's been dormant."

He explained, "I think the largest aircraft that we fly under a waiver is 120 pounds. So, we're building military grade drones, but these aren't necessarily aircraft that you would see on the battlefield. These are used for tests and evaluation. These are used for training. They're probably more in keeping with the size and scope of aircraft that you would equate to being remote controlled modeler type aircraft."

Potential seaplane activity is one of the concerns expressed by neighbors. Hicks said, "One of our ideas is to have Maryland's first private use commercial seaplane facility. This isn't something that's immediate, and it's not really a big impact, scary thing, where sea planes are going to be landing over your docks."

"We envision this more as a site where we could interest the community to come here for an event, essentially a seaplane fly in," he added.

Concern was expressed at the meeting about the reopening of the runway. Critics wonder about the need for another general aviation field with St. Mary's Airport close by.

Hicks said, "St. Mary's County Airport is difficult because general aviation is based on the premise of see and avoid. And when you have a system introduced to a see and avoid structure, half of that system is not essentially looking out and avoiding the other pilots of aircraft that come in...So having the private airport here will allow us to monitor the traffic and to work with the Navy to keep our unmanned systems and the manned aircraft from coming into the same airspace."

Hicks said the general aviation operation would average five takeoffs and landings a month.

Commissioner Eric Colvin's district includes Piney Point. He spoke at the town hall meeting and has been generally supportive of the project when taking about it at commissioner meetings.

Superintendent Blasts State Report Card

Criticizes Emphasis on Absenteeism

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The recent release of the annual Maryland Report Card for the state's school systems, and each of its schools, has prompted School Superintendent Dr. J. Scott Smith to rail against the program.

The report card shows that the elementary, middle and high schools do not meet the annual target for academic proficiency. The only target metric that St. Mary's County Public Schools (SMCPS) meet is elementary school "progress in achieving English language proficiency."

Each school is given a score of one to five stars, with none in the county achieving either a one- or a five-star. One school, Spring Ridge Middle School, got two stars. Leonardtown High School received four stars, while Chopticon and Great Mills got three stars.

Thirteen schools in all have four stars, an increase from 11 the previous year.

But Smith feels the star system is unfair in that it puts too much weight on chronic absenteeism. That's defined as missing two days a month.

The school system's 6,905 students had an attendance rate of 91.9 percent.

Each grade level has a scoring system, and 75 percent gets a school a five-star rating. There is no flexibility. For instance, Evergreen Elementary School got a score of 74.9 percent, earning four stars and just missing the top level by a tenth of a point.

Smith said, "So if that doesn't make sense to you, that's okay. It doesn't make any sense. You have points arbitrarily determined for ratings that go down, and schools can have different denominators."

He added, "So, some schools have a possibility of a hundred points. Some schools only have 85 points. Some schools might have less than that. If you had less than that, then everything carries with it a greater weight that's not accounted for. And then ultimately it's turned into a percent, which isn't rounded, which then has turned into a star. And most people would think that a five star means an A. So, you'd have like 90 percent and above. Oh no, a five star is a 75 percent. Why is it a 75 percent? We don't know. They've never really talked about why 75 percent."

"And Evergreen Elementary School's 74.9 percent isn't close enough. We also have a two-star school...at Spring Ridge. To be a three-star school (it) needed 45 percent, and they have a 44.8 percent. So, they miss being a three-star school by 0.2 percent."

Student Member of the Board said, "I went to Evergreen Elementary School when I was in elementary school, and then I went to Spring Ridge Middle School. And it never really came to my mind that there was a difference in the educational quality, seeing phenomenal teachers, the phenomenal staff, our building service workers, our school maintenance, all that work together to make our schools what they are. And so, I don't really believe that the stars are representative of the hard work that we put in."

The school board was told at a recent meeting by staff that chronic absenteeism counts for 15 points of the score, while in elementary and middle schools, only 12.5 points goes for ELA (English) and 12.5 points for math.

A student could be counted as absent if they were out sick or for another valid reason.

Smith said, "The amount of work that all the teachers and support staff and counselors and psychologists and that we're all doing to move up this measure when there are reasons why children are absent from school. There are reasons, and whether it's lawful or unlawful or illness related or whatever, it doesn't matter. So, we're going to keep doing all the work that we're doing, because this is the single largest driver for why people aren't at the next level with the stars. If the chronically absent element was addressed and more successful, each one of them would move from four to five, from three to four, and from two to three."

Board member Mary Washington stood up for the emphasis on absenteeism. She said, "What's concerning to me is the chronic absenteeism."

Washington said, "In elementary, even though 76.6 percent are not chronically absent, you have 24 percent who are chronically absent. That's a lot of students," adding, "That makes it difficult for the teacher because students aren't there to learn." She added the same concerns for middle and high school.

Washington added concerns about math proficiency, particularly in middle schools. "That's almost a national security issue, when we won't be having people who may have the necessary math skills to perform scientific, engineering, AI, computer technology."

She added, "I realized that everybody's doing everything that they can, and we need support from the parents to make sure the students get to school on time and they're ready and willing, and ready to learn math."

Board Vice President Cathy Allen added, "The fact of the matter is we have to report out things as they are given to us. I just don't think they're reflective of what's truly going on in our schools. And I think that's a huge problem. And the idea that to be absent two days a month, especially with the mental health issues that our students are facing, to say that's chronically absent, misses the point of taking care of our students."

Libraries to Distribute Surplus County Computer Equipment

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The Commissioners of St. Mary's County have approved donating no longer used computer equipment to the St. Mary's County Library for their use and to distribute to county citizens in need of the equipment.

Director of Information Technology Bob Kelly told the commissioners on Nov. 18, "This nonprofit donation program was actually authorized by resolution by the County Commissioners of St. Mary's County in 2015. And within that resolution, it says, whereas an in-kind donation to a nonprofit organization or agency of surplus personal property. So, what's kind of implied is that we're giving this equipment to nonprofits for the purpose of helping the nonprofit specifically."

Kelly added, "After 10 years plus of having this program, I've noticed that in the last six months to a year, the response from the nonprofits is that the need isn't quite as relevant as it was when we originally started the program. So, we have this excess computer equipment."

That's where the library comes in. Director Michael Blackwell said, "They're Windows 11 machines, and as you're aware, the Windows 10 is no longer going to be supported by Microsoft. So, we anticipate there might be a demand among citizens who have older machines."

Blackwell explained, "The first place we'd like to be working is the Charlotte Hall Veterans Home. We send staff up there to do computer lessons and troubleshoot people's devices. And if there's any veterans who would like a Windows 11 machine, we'll take that up there, help them set it up and sort of set up the native Microsoft security."

He added, "We also have computer classes at St. Mary's Caring, and we do outreach there. So, that's another place where citizens might find that they could use a newer machine. We support information literacy, and if you're going to be an information literate consumer, what's going on in the world today, a nice machine would certainly help."

Blackwell noted at the Judy Center Early Learning Hub, "there are two families who are starting a workforce training program, and they could both use a laptop and that will be a small but ongoing demand."

And he added, "We, can use one of them

St. Mary's Library Director Michael Blackwell

ourselves. In our meeting rooms, people will want to do a program, and they'll forget to bring their device," adding, "We'd also allow people to check them out and use them in the library."

"And finally, we actually could use a few ourselves for assistant branch managers who are currently using tablets and could have a better work at home situation when they need to be calling into the office remotely if they had a laptop instead."

Kelly said the equipment is not only laptops but also things like printers and cables. He said, "We have a lifecycle replacement program that you fund, so that we replace equipment before it breaks because when equipment breaks, people aren't working and services are not being provided."

He said the computers are wiped clean of any stored information before being turned over to non-profits and the library.

Commissioner Mike Hewitt said before running for his first term he wasn't convinced of the need for libraries because everyone had a computer. And then he hung out at the old Leonardtown Library for a while and found out that wasn't the case, particularly for senior citizens and underprivileged.

He said one senior citizen told him he couldn't afford the cost of the internet provider.

"I became a big fan of a new Leonardtown Library after that day," he said.

Arrests Made in Lexington Park Robbery, Stabbing

Deputies from the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office arrested two suspects on Tuesday, Nov. 18, in connection with a robbery and stabbing that took place on Nov. 16. The arrests follow an investigation that began when deputies responded to a report of a suspicious incident on Spyglass Way in Lexington Park on Sunday, Nov. 16, 2025, shortly before receiving a second call reporting a walk-in assault victim suffering from stab wounds at the Bay District Volunteer Fire Department, also in Lexington Park.

The victim reported that while meeting with an acquaintance, multiple suspects confronted, robbed, and assaulted him before he was able to escape, return to his vehicle and drive to the firehouse for help. He was flown to a regional hospital, treated, and later released.

On Tuesday, deputies arrested Devonte Twain Harrod, 26, of Lexington Park, and a 16-year-old female in connection with the case.

The suspects were transported to the St. Mary's County Detention and Rehabilitation Center in Leonardtown, where both face charges of armed robbery, robbery, first-degree assault, second-degree assault, and theft of $100 to less than $1,500.

Law enforcement agencies are prohibited from publicly identifying a juvenile, even when charged as an adult, due to legal protections safeguarding the juvenile's identity throughout the judicial process.

The case remains under investigation. Anyone with information is asked to contact Detective Kortnie Marsch of the Criminal Investigations Division. Anyone with information is asked to contact Detective Marsch at 301-475-4200, ext.

'Local elections are where real change begins'

Once upon a time, St. Mary's County was a close-knit, rural community — a place where neighbors knew each other, traffic was light, and our local values guided local decisions. Sadly, that vision has been lost. Today, we find ourselves overtaxed, overdeveloped, and overcrowded, with many long-time residents feeling pushed aside in their own hometowns.

Our county leadership has failed us at every turn. They have allowed uncontrolled growth without the infrastructure to support it, burdened families and small businesses with higher taxes, and ignored the will of the people they were elected to serve. Too often, they bend to the state's agenda instead of standing up for what's right for our citizens. Leadership requires courage — the courage to say no when the state's plans don't fit our community's character or needs.

It's time for real change. I hope this letter inspires like-minded citizens to step up and run for County Commissioner or other local government leadership positions. Even serving for one term — four short years — could make all the difference. We need strong voices willing to restore balance, protect what remains of our rural heritage, and fight for the St. Mary's County we remember and deserve.

Your vote matters. Local elections — especially the primaries — are where real change begins. If you can't serve yourself, please vote for candidates who will fight for our citizens, protect our way of life, and put people before politics.

If we don't take a stand now, St. Mary's County will be unrecognizable — not lost to time, but to weak leadership and outside interests. We owe it to our future generations to turn this around and preserve what's left of the place we all love and call home, or sadly there may be nothing left to preserve.

'How would it be during an actual emergency?'

In mid-October I tried to get in touch with the St. Mary's County Emergency Management Department. No one answered at the director's phone number. I left two messages in October and another message during the first week of November. None were returned.

On November 4th there was a Public Forum. I mentioned to the county commissioners during the Public Forum my displeasure about the lack of communication from the Emergency Management Department to the public.

None of the calls were during any county emergency. Therefore, I don't see any reason why the calls were not returned in a timely manner.

I had several issues I was trying to reach the EM Department about but never could reach anyone. And there was not an alternate number to call.

I hear that it is important to the Commissioners that their EM Department be accessible to the public. I will probably never know why our EM Department didn't reach out to me until nearly two weeks later. By that time I decided to reach out to MEMA instead. I know they are far more receptive than our County Emergency Management.

I am concerned about the continued talk of eliminating the Ten Mile Radius Calvert Cliffs Nuclear Power Plant (CCNPP) sirens. Once removed the public will be informed of an emergency by limited means. It is unlikely that many folks would even know of an emergency at the CCNPP. This is because cell service in many parts of St. Mary's County is very poor. From time to time even radio station signals are poor. In fact, not long ago T-Bone and Heather were live on the radio talking about a vulture on top of the radio station antenna that may have been blocking the radio station signal. I admit, I was shaking my head when I heard about that news.

Over the above mentioned timeframe two Nor'easter storms went up the coast. One of the two was predicted to go up the Chesapeake Bay. Thankfully, it did not. However, there was significant erosion along the Western Shore of the Chesapeake Bay due to the storm surge and wind as the storms went up the coast. This produced hazards in the Bay, from branches and entire trees that were completely eroded from land.

Hitting a large branch or an entire tree with a boat will usually be a bad experience. And perhaps even deadly. In St. Jerome's Creek alone, I saw what I thought was just a medium sized branch in the creek. It turned out to be a tree. Well over 90 percent of it was underwater. It would have been nearly impossible to see it at night.

If our Emergency Management is not accessible during no emergency, how would it be during an actual emergency? Hopefully they will at least take care of St. George's Island.

McKay House in Belize Honors Manning and Marilyn McKay

House Built by St. John's of Hollywood Mission Team

Volunteers from St. John's Parish in Hollywood last month helped construct a home for a needy mother and her child in Belize City, Belize in honor of the late James Manning and Marilyn McKay, founders of The County Times Newspaper.

The Commissioning Ceremony and mass for the Manning and Marilyn McKay House was held in Belize City on Oct. 11 at 5 p.m.

The McKay's had their roots in Hollywood and were always active in the local, county and church communities. They were a couple who exemplified the term partnership. Their faith-filled and quiet outreach to those in the community who needed help in meeting their family's food and clothing needs was not widely known. The McKay's gave unceasingly of their time, talent, and treasure.

The McKay's passed on their commitment to faith, support for the church and community to their children and family, as six of the St. John's volunteers are McKay family members.

The nine total volunteers were joined by Chris Kunze, SCN, who welcomed the opportunity to visit Belize after living there between 2006 – 2017. As the Associate Director at Camp Maria, Sr. Chris also enjoyed the opportunity to engage in mission work with her local community.

The family that the mission team built for was Ms. Eugenie (Jenny) and her seven-year-old son, Mario. Jenny was in an abusive relationship for many years and recently left this situation. She and Mario have been living with her mother in a very small home with several other family members.

Jenny works full-time at a factory making foam mattresses and attends online school in the evenings to complete her high school diploma. She has dreams of receiving higher education. She was selected as a recipient based on her demonstrated perseverance, efforts to improve her situation, and the clear need for stable housing for her and her son.

The generosity of the St. John's parish and school have become this family's "village." Together with the team volunteers, those driving the volunteers to and from the airport, dress donations, the support of the children's choir and St. John's School alumni serving as lectors during the Mass, and financial donations during the annual collection, made this possible. Those who prayed for the mission and the safety of the volunteers closed the circle on this mission trip, made it possible, safe, and blessed.

In addition to helping build the McKay home, the volunteers had also brought plenty of shoes, books, composition books, pencils, balls, and beautiful handmade dresses donated from the "Dress a Girl Around the World" program for this mission effort.

The volunteers had a busy week. They enjoyed a tour of Belize City and visited a favorite local artist shop, Lizama's Woodcarving. The volunteers also visited the Hand in Hand Ministries (HIHM) Fowler Community Outreach Center.

The team spent time with the children in daycare and learned about the HIV/AIDS ministry. In the evenings, the volunteers learned more about HIHM's Building for Change Program, visited with the local SCNs, and relaxed to a performance by the Garifuna Dancers. They even visited one of the local firefighter stations.

The volunteers cherished the experience and will forever remember participating in the HIHM house build #549, the St. John's McKay House.

Volunteers from St. John's Parish and School in Hollywood traveled to Belize City in October to construct the Manning and Marilyn McKay House for a local family in need.

Members of the mission team gathered for the home's commissioning ceremony, Oct. 11 at St. John's of Hollywood.

I'm great with kids, other animals, and I always use my litterbox like a champ. My favorite pastime? Chasing toys with strings and showing off my best high jumps! When playtime's over, you'll find me snuggled up on a comfy blanket, purring contently.

If you're looking for a handsome, playful, yet cuddly companion, then I'm your guy! Come meet me today. Adoption hours are Mon-Fri 11am-4pm and Sat 10am-3pm. ## MEET AVA

This gorgeous 5-year-old Lab mix is as sweet as she is chatty — she loves to "talk" and share her opinions. Ava is a total people-lover, but she has a special soft spot for the fellas! She does well with most dogs and enjoys playtime, though her confident personality can come off a little bossy. Ava is also okay with cats and is learning great manners in her foster home. She's working on sharing food and treats with other animals — she's a little protective of her goodies sometimes, but she's improving every day. If you're looking for a loyal companion with lots of love

(and personality!) to give, Ava might just be your perfect match. If you are interested in meeting with Ava or learning more about her please contact Animal Relief Fund (ARF) at 301-866-0303 or visit www.animalreliefund.org

Matching Funds Available for New, Expanding Farms

The Southern Maryland Agricultural Development Commission (SMADC), a division of the Tri-County Council for Southern Maryland, is excited to announce the 13th Round of the Southern Maryland Farmer Mini-Grant Program.

This program will award up to $60,000 in matching funds to help both new and experienced farmers start, diversify, or expand their agricultural projects.

Applications are now open and will close on Wednesday, December 31st.

Applications for the mini-grants offer awards of up to $3,000 per farmer and require a one-to-one dollar match. These grants are specifically designed to assist new and beginning farmers with small start-up projects, as well as to help experienced farmers (both urban and rural) diversify or expand their current agricultural businesses. All funded projects must be simple in scope and be completed within one year.

Grant funds can be used for a wide range of needs, including:

- Equipment and services to transition a farm's sales strategy (e.g., online sales, home delivery, on-farm sales).

- Purchasing foundation livestock and plant stock.
- Marketing and promotion of current farm operations.
- New fencing for enhancement, expansion, or protection.
- Hoop houses and materials for value-added food production.
- On-farm upgrades to enhance food safety, packing, and production, including freezers and refrigeration.

Since its establishment in 2016, the Farmer Mini-Grant Program has funded 208 applications, awarding a total of $361,763 to Southern Maryland farms.

Full details on the SMADC Southern Maryland Farmer Mini-Grant Program, including Round 13 Criteria, Guidelines, Eligibility, and access to the online application, are available on the SMADC website at www.SMADC.com under the "Farmer Resources" section on the Mini-Grants information page.

Wanderings of an Aimless Mind

Just One of the Best Anniversary Trips Ever!

By Shelby Opperman
Contributing Writer

I am still smiling from finally crossing off something off my bucket list that has been on there at least 20 years. We spent our 24th anniversary in Duck, NC in the Outer Banks from Friday through this past Tuesday. And on this trip we decided it was time to see the wild Spanish Mustangs of Corolla on one of the wild horse tours. We booked the Back Country Safari company tour which is a modified pick-up truck with two rows of bench seats facing each other. When they tell you to buckle up with the special seat belts you need to do it.

Our driver, whose name was Em or M, not sure, was the ultimate surfer dude adrenaline adventure junkie who also has a degree in computer science. He was so knowledgeable and so funny. The two hour trip from Corolla and right on the beach part of Rt. 12 to just short of the fence in the water at the Virginia line was amazing. Those drivers have to navigate lone, condemned homes on the beach and ancient stumps in the sand and ocean from the maritime forest that once covered parts of the beach and hundreds of feet into where the ocean is now.

When we got to the beach road he said that you will notice that there are really no rules, that there will be 4 or 5 lines of cars and not always are they on the right side of the road. I thought we were in England for a bit. Cars were stopped right by the waves either fishing or picnicking while trucks, cars, and tour trucks zoomed (between 15 and 35mph) around them. It was crazy, but exhilarating. Most of the people on our tour, including my husband, were freezing, but I was loving the fresh, biting air – it was like Mindy having her head out the window of the car. The day was extremely windy as evidenced by the thousands of knots in my hair at the end.

Our driver told us at the beginning of the tour that there was always a chance that we might not see any wild horses at all, but I was having such a good time that I wasn't too worried. After the first part of the tour alongside the ocean, Em drove us up and over the sand dune into rental neighborhoods of the beautiful homes on stilts you see throughout OBX. But these neighborhoods were off the beaten track with bumpy, hilly sandy roads that you only get to from the beach road. He said a few people live there year round and have to be pretty hardy souls. I have no idea if they are able to get deliveries or anything else. In this neighborhood of about 700 homes was where we first saw the Mustangs munching on sea oats and whatever else they could find in yards. The rich chestnut and ebony colors in the sun were beautiful.

After riding further into the sandy woods and roads, he said this is where the real loners lived year round that don't want to be bothered by people. There were a lot of crazy sculptures and vehicles put together from scraps all over. We drove by Dennis Anderson, the Gravedigger's house with his signature green color on the house and fencing. I was wondering how our driver knew where he was going through these miles of sandy roads when we came upon quite a few of the Mustangs. They don't seem to be fazed by anything and would move slowly and stare at us. We couldn't go forward because of this, so we were able to get some up close and personal photos before the driver had to back up down the road. I loved seeing all the horses, and to be this close was unbelievable. What a great trip. If you haven't taken the tour, please book it as soon as you can. What they call the shoulder seasons like early spring and late fall are the best since he said its total bumper to bumper traffic during the summer. Of course, we also had great romantic meals, spa days at The Sanderling Resort where we stayed and other amazing day trips during our time there, but my mind will always go back to those beautiful wild horses.

To each new day's adventure,
Shelby

He was later assigned to Attack Squadron 15 (VA-15) at NAS Jacksonville, FL, where he served on two Mediterranean cruises.

In 1952, while serving aboard the USS Wasp, tragedy struck when the ship collided with the USS Hobson, leading to the loss of 167 sailors—an event that deeply marked his service years. It was during this time that he met Margaret, who became his wife and lifelong partner.

In 2011, he proudly won the Gold Medal for his age group in the Delaware Senior Olympics 20K Road Race. He was also an avid fly fisherman, a lover of jazz and big band music, and a wine enthusiast. ### Shirley Wood, 81

Shirley Faye (Guy) Wood, beloved wife, mother, grandmother and great grandmother, passed away peacefully surrounded by her family on November 13, 2025. She will be remembered as a beautiful soul — kind, gentle, devoted to her family, and compassionate to all she met. Her legacy of love, strength, and grace will live on in every heart she touched.

Born on September 21, 1944, in Leonardtown, MD, Shirley was the daughter of the late William Leonard and Margaret Cornelia (Bowles) Guy. She was the devoted wife of Hamilton E. "Bubba" Wood, Sr. with whom she shared sixty-four years of marriage. Together, they built a beautiful life and a family filled with love.

Shirley devoted herself to raising her children until her youngest entered school. At that time, she began her second career in the St. Mary's County Public School System, Food Services Department. She worked at several schools and eventually became the Food Service Manager at Oakville Elementary School until her retirement in 2010. "Ms. Wood" as the children called her, cared deeply for the students and treated every child with love and kindness.

She had a passion for gardening and spent countless hours creating and tending to her beautiful gardens. She cherished camping trips with family and friends and never passed up a chance to "pull the handle" or scratch a ticket in hopes of winning a few coins. In her earlier years, she enjoyed softball, bowling, and was always ready for a good game of Pitch. Above all, her greatest joy in life was simply being with her family.

Shirley's memory will be cherished by her children, Hamilton E. "Tony" (Sandra) Wood Jr., William F. "Billy" (Cathy) Wood, and Deborah F. "Debbie" (Timmy) May; her grandchildren, Kyle (Brittani) Wood, Melaney (Vince) LoPiccolo, Kourtney (Billy) Rabbitt, Corey (Erica) Wood, Derrick (Leah) May, Kaitlyn Wood (Brad Sullivan), and Jeremy May (Shannon Hill); and her great grandchildren, Kayleigh, Kaiden, Kinsley, Kashton, Kamden, Wesley, Emma, and another great granddaughter soon to arrive, all who lovingly called her "Maw" and brought her endless smiles and joy. She also leaves behind her siblings: Margaret Ann (predeceased Leonard) Harding and William Leonard (Betty Jean) Guy.

The family will receive friends for visitation on Thursday, November 20, 2025, from 5:00 PM to 8:00 PM, with prayers recited at 7:00 PM, in the Mattingley-Gardiner Funeral Home, 41590 Fenwick Street, Leonardtown, MD 20650. A Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated on Friday, November 21, 2025, at 10:00 AM, in Immaculate Conception Catholic Church, 28297 Old Village Road, Mechanicsville, MD, 20659, with interment to follow at Mt. Zion United Methodist Church Cemetery, 27108 Mt. Zion Church Road, Mechanicsville, MD 20659.

Serving as pallbearers will be Kyle Wood, Corey Wood, Derrick May, Jeremy May, Billy Rabbitt, and Vince LoPiccolo. Honorary pallbearers will include her granddaughters: Melaney LoPiccolo, Kourtney Rabbitt, Kaitlyn Wood, great grandchildren: Kayleigh Rabbitt, Kaiden Wood, Kinsley Rabbitt, along with Brittani Wood, Erica Wood, Leah May, Shannon Hill, and Brad Sullivan.

Memorial donations may be made in Shirley's name to ACTS - A Community That Shares, Mechanicsville Rescue Squad, or American Cancer Society.

May her soul rest in eternal peace, and may her love continue to shine through the lives of those she so deeply cherished.

Misleading information on data centers

Efforts by Calvert Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) to inform residents about the benefits of data centers are reducing rather than increasing the board's credibility regarding these facilities because key information that it provided was vague or misleading.

The county hosted an Information session on data centers at the Prince Frederick campus of the College of Southern Maryland (CSM) on September 29. Residents found that the BOCC's handout and statements by the featured speaker, Kelly Shultz, CEO of the Data Center Alliance, were inaccurate or incomplete. These inaccuracies included, but were not limited to:

- Creation of high paying jobs. The handout implied (but did not explicitly say) that these facilities would create many "well-paying skilled jobs." Ms. Shultz made a vague reference to 100 new jobs. But experience from other locations indicates that most jobs in new data centers have been for maintenance, not well-paid positions.
- Ground water consumption. The county handout was vague about how much water centers would need for cooling and implied that new facilities could use efficient waterless systems or closed loop designs to recirculate water. Local rumors report that data centers might use processed wastewater from the Lusby sewerage facility, but it's not clear that that amount of water would be adequate for cooling requirements or whether they would need to drill into local aquifers for more. Large withdrawals could not only lower aquifer levels, thus jeopardizing supplies to residents' wells, but also allow arsenic to migrate into our water supply.
- Increased electrical costs. Ms. Shultz made the most misleading statement of the event when she said that concerns about data centers increasing electrical rates were "fake." A study by the Energy Information Agency of electrical prices in our region reported that PJM Interconnection, the company that manages the transmission and pricing of electricity in 14 nearby jurisdictions, including Maryland, saw increases of 15 percent to 20 percent between July 2024 and July 2025. The PJM Independent Market Monitor, an organization that studied PJM practices, found that PJM "led to customers being overcharged by a combined $1.454 billion" over a two-year period. Another study by the Brattle Group, found that increased electrical consumption did not increase rates, but, rather, the need to maintain, build, and upgrade poles, wires, and other electrical infrastructure were responsible for increases. This is a distinction without a difference. New data facilities require much more electrical power and often need expensive transmission system upgrades. Historically, new centers have increased nearby electrical rates regardless of the financial dynamic: PJM mismanagement, increased power demands, or system upgrades – or all the above.

Ms. Shultz referenced "Quantum Frederick," a massive data center project in Frederick County, Maryland, managed by TPG (The Texas Pacific Group) Real Estate Partners. This project has a 2,100-acre campus and a fiber optic network to feed data to Northern Virginia and will require PJM to manage a huge increase in electrical consumption from a network with a relatively fixed generating capacity. So, when Quantum Frederick begins operations, Calvert residents are likely to see continued increases in electrical costs. The only thing that was fake on September 29 at CSM was not our fears about increases in electricity rates but, rather, Ms. Shultz's characterization of our fears as fake.

These are a few of the concerns raised by Calvert residents at the September 29 data center event. If the Calvert BOCC wants to generate support for data centers, it needs to insure that the information it provides is credible. Otherwise, these events will more likely result in residents opposing, rather than supporting, these facilities in the county.

Leadership Southern Maryland Digs into the Region's Agriculture

Farming 4 Hunger Executive Director Bernie Fowler, Jr. takes the Leadership Southern Maryland Executive Program on a tour of Serenity Farm in Benedict. Participants learn that Farming 4 Hunger does much more than supply food to those in need. Photo by Joe Mortensen

The Leadership Southern Maryland (LSM) Executive Program met in October for a day-long tour and exploration of Southern Maryland agriculture.

"The LSM Executive Program brings together community-oriented senior professionals who want to understand Southern Maryland better so they can serve Southern Maryland better," said Executive Director Dr. Sybol Anderson. "Our day-long study of Southern Maryland agriculture is an essential ingredient in understanding our regional identity."

The group convened at the Solomons Mission Center where executive director Kelly Ward, LSM '25 provided an overview of the organization's mission and programs, which include a community garden, food pantry, clothing bank, and more. Local and state agriculture specialists Caroline Trossbach (Calvert County Department of Economic Development) and Sydney Garner (St. Mary's County Department of Economic Development) followed with a survey of major features and issues in Southern Maryland agriculture.

The executives traveled to the Loveville Produce Auction to experience local agriculture commerce in action. Southern Maryland Agricultural Development Commission (SMADC) executive director Shelby Hampton met the group at Serenity Farm in Benedict, Md., where they learned about the decades-long efforts of SMADC to support local farmers and watermen. A highlight of the day was learning about the mission of the nonprofit Farming 4 Hunger to serve those in need of fresh food in Southern Maryland.

The class also learned lessons in life and leadership with Farming 4 Hunger executive director Bernie Fowler, Jr. and his team.

Participants dug deep into intersections of agricultural industry practices and environmental sustainability efforts in an honest conversation about the 2025 Chesapeake Bay and Watershed Report Card with local farmer JR Cosgrove, LSM '22 (Horsmon Farm); watermen Capts. Simon and Rachel Dean (Patuxent River Seafood); environmental scientist Dr. Bill Dennison (Chesapeake Biological Laboratory); and state government representative Rachel Jones (Maryland Department of Agriculture).

The report card is published by the University of Maryland Center for Environmental Science to provide transparent, detailed assessments of the Chesapeake Bay and its watershed. In the 2025 assessment, the Chesapeake Watershed scored a C+ overall (an improvement over 2024), but the Patuxent and Potomac Rivers scored D and D+ respectively, with trends in water quality showing only modest improvement in the Potomac.

Participants learned about collaborative efforts among farmers, watermen, scientists, and government to protect the watershed.

Leadership Southern Maryland's flagship Executive Program is an interactive and life-enriching nine-month, tuition-based "behind-the-scenes" experience designed to enhance the collaborative abilities of our region's top senior professionals. LSM welcomes mid- to upper-level executives representing diverse geographic locations, industries, professions, ethnicities, genders, and other backgrounds who are committed to addressing the community needs of Calvert, Charles, and St. Mary's counties.

County Attorney Takes Job in St. Mary's

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The Calvert County Board of County Commissioners (BOCC), County Administrator Linda Turner and Calvert County Government staff "wish County Attorney John B. Norris III the best upon his departure to a new role in December," a press release said.

Norris is leaving to head the St. Mary's County Department of Public Works and Transportation. He was born and raised in St. Mary's County.

The release said, "Norris served with professionalism and distinction as the attorney for Calvert County Government for 14 years, starting in August 2011. Norris leaves Calvert County Government on Dec. 18."

The release goes on to say, "Norris brought to Calvert County a unique and powerful blend of technical and legal experience. He earned a Bachelor of Science in Civil Engineering and Technology before completing his Juris Doctorate, bridging both professions early in his career through a legal internship with the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency, where he advised on complex environmental law matters.

"He began his professional journey as a project engineer with NG&O Engineering, Inc., focusing on civil site design, permitting and development for industrial, commercial and residential projects. This technical foundation proved invaluable in his legal career, particularly in navigating the intricacies of land use, environmental regulation and infrastructure development."

As County Attorney, Norris has served as chief legal counsel for Calvert County Government, overseeing all legal affairs, "providing guidance on the county's most complex issues and supporting transparent, responsible governance. His work has ensured the county's compliance with state and federal law, strengthened policies and procedures and supported countless initiatives that have shaped Calvert County's progress over more than a decade."

"County Attorney John Norris is to be commended for his distinguished tenure with Calvert County and his excellent service to its citizens," said County Administrator Linda Turner. "The Calvert County Board of Commissioners, myself and Calvert County Government staff wholeheartedly congratulate him on his new venture in his professional career and thank him for his many years of faithful service to Calvert County."

Reflecting on his time with Calvert County Government, Norris shared, "Serving Calvert County has been a great privilege. I am deeply grateful for the 14 years I spent serving the citizens of Calvert County as County Attorney."

Throughout his tenure, Norris was widely recognized for his integrity, methodical approach and commitment to fairness. His combined expertise in engineering and law provided a rare perspective that strengthened the county's ability to evaluate projects, manage risk and uphold the highest standards of public service."

School Board Approves Operating and Efficiency Study Cost to be $330,000

Staff Writer

The Calvert County Board of Education has approved an operating and efficiency assessment of six of its departments. Cost will be almost $330,000. The study will be ready in time for the board to make decisions about the next fiscal year's budget.

The cost for the assessment by Public Works of West Chester, PA was three times the cost of the company that came in second in the ranking system used to evaluate the competing firms.

Supervisor of Finance Sheldon Taylor explained at the Nov. 13 board meeting, "An operating and efficiency assessment is an evaluation tool that provides insight on how effectively and efficiently, in our case our school district, uses resources to support education and organizational goals."

"Why do one here at Calvert County Public Schools?" he asked. "The assessment is a transparent way to provide a clear picture of how resources are currently used and assist with the FY 2027 through 2029 budget decisions by providing data driven information, supporting actual needs for our school district."

The primary focus areas are, he said, "Cost savings and resource optimization, operational effectiveness, alignment to the strategic plan, transparency and accountability." He said the final report will be posted on the school system website.

Departments to be studied are finance, human resources, information technology, instruction, special education, and student transportation.

Interim Superintendent Dr. Marcus Newsome said other departments weren't added in order to save costs for the study.

Newsome said of the winning company, "They've served over 200 jurisdictions. They've identified over $1 billion in savings. Their clients have accepted 99.5 percent of their recommendations, and they've conducted the most statewide deficiency reviews in the nation, as well as in Maryland."

He said, "Their team is comprised of experts, including former Maryland superintendents, experts in education instruction, law policy, school finance, school operations, information technology, communications, and strategic planning.

"Public Works is committed to us that they will meet our expedited deadlines by delivering an interim briefing by mid-December, a draft report by January 15th, and a final report by February 12th. They also will ensure actionable recommendations for the FY 27 through 29 budget planning process."

Funding will come from the board's local budget.

The board has been critical of an audit previously ordered by the county commissioners. Newsome said, "I think the one that the commissioners did was just a performance review of finance for procurement. I think HR was included as well."

Board member Melissa Goshorn had sticker shock over the cost. She said, "Doing an official assessment is extremely important, but $330,000 is a lot. It's definitely more than I'd expected. I don't know what I expected. It's a lot of money. I just have to say, there's general concern. Recently we have elementary schools that are already limiting copies that can be made on paper. So, if we can't make copies in elementary schools, but we can spend $330,000 to find out we can't make copies in elementary schools."

Newsome said the board did have the option of selecting the second-highest ranked bidder at one-third the cost. But using an automotive analogy, Newsome said it would be a matter of picking a Mercedes-Benz or a Buick.

The average savings of Public Works studies has been two percent, although they could also say that more money needed to be spent.

Member Paul Harrison, an accountant, observed, "If they say... somewhere in the neighborhood of 2 percent, each point is $2.8 million. So, if we cheapen out of the operational efficiency audit, I hate to leave $2.8 to $5.6 million on the table because we..."

School Board President Jana Post finished his sentence with "cheapened out."

The board unanimously approved the contract.

School Board Changes Public Comment Policy

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

When the Calvert County Board of Education was barraged with complaints about removing their antiracism policy, one of the criticisms was that they made the decision before the public had a chance to speak at the public comment portion of the meeting.

The board heard those complaints and at their Nov. 13 meeting changed their policy accordingly.

Now the board will hold the first meeting of the month as a business meeting at which they make decisions. At those meetings, the public forum will be at the beginning of the meeting before votes are taken.

The second meeting of the month will be a work session at which decisions will be made. At those two meetings, public comments will be held at the end.

For both meetings public comment will still be held to two minutes each and no more than 30 total.

The change was brought up by board member Joseph Marchio, but the actual suggestion for what was finally approved came from board Vice President Lisa Grenis.

In making the decision the board looked at what other school boards are doing. President Jana Post said, "In looking at some of those other boards of education, they only have public comment at the meeting at the beginning of the month. The second meeting is considered a work session where they don't have public comment because it's strictly just a work session."

Board member Melissa Goshorn was reluctant to remove the second public comment session. She said, "I understand what we're trying to do, but as somebody who was a regular public commenter in these meetings for many, many years, my schedule might not align. And there could be things that somebody in the community has to share that might not be specifically related to a policy that we have on the agenda or a decision that we're making."

Interim Superintendent Dr. Marcus Newsome said, "I have worked with a number of boards, and we have a variety of approaches. The one I feel is probably more effective for a school district of this size and the demographics would be to schedule one business meeting per month, where you would focus on policy, allow the public to speak at the beginning of the meeting so that their comments could possibly influence the decisions of the board, also be considerate of those who have families and children at home. And I think it's an opportunity to demonstrate the transparency and trying to work collaboratively with the board. And then the second meeting would be strictly a work session where the board could dig a bit into some of the topics."

Grenis offered the compromise agreed to. "What about the possibility of having public comment at the beginning of our business meetings, but public comment at the end of our work sessions. That way they get to speak at all of them, but we get to hear their voice before we put something up for vote. I think that's more transparent than voting and then hearing public comment."

Ward Farm Construction to Begin

The Calvert County Department of Parks & Recreation announces that site preparation, including staking out work areas, bringing supplies to the site and setting up temporary facilities, begins this week at Ward Farm Recreation and Nature Park. Construction is scheduled to begin in late November on a new multipurpose community building and restroom facilities.

Ward Farm Recreation and Nature Park is located at 10455 Ward Road, in Dunkirk.

The need for a restroom facility in the lower parking lot was identified in the park's master plan. This, coupled with the need for community buildings and a permanent early voting facility in District 3, inspired the design.

The facility will feature 2,000 square feet of programmable indoor space plus an additional 1,000 square feet of unenclosed outdoor area. Three restrooms, including men's, women's and family spaces, will also be available year-round.

Construction is expected to be completed before early voting begins Thursday, June 11, 2026.

Development of Ward Farm is funded in large part through the Calvert County Youth Recreational Opportunities Fund (CCYROF), which was established in 2012.

Ward Farm Recreation and Nature Park opened to the public in 2022. Several passive and active amenities listed in the 2015 master plan are now available in the park, including athletic fields, a playground, a 10-hole disc golf course and a tot-lot playground.

Chesapeake Beach Apartment Fire Under Investigation

Two Dozen People Displaced

The Office of the State Fire Marshal is investigating a multi-unit apartment fire that displaced two dozen people and caused an estimated $1.5 million in damages on Monday Nov. 17 in Chesapeake Beach.

At approximately 6:36 a.m. fire crews from Calvert County and surrounding counties responded to the 3900 block of Gordon Stinnett Avenue following reports of a fire. Firefighters observed flames throughout the courtyard area, which eventually spread into the attic and through the roof.

The fire destroyed 14 apartments and displaced approximately 25 occupants. All occupants were accounted for, and one was transported to the hospital for treatment. The fire also caused an estimated $250,000 in content damage.

Deputy State Fire Marshals determined the fire originated on a first-level balcony in the courtyard area. The preliminary investigation indicates no evidence of a criminal act. High winds and the fire's exterior location contributed to its rapid spread and damage.

All fire companies in Calvert County including the North Beach Volunteer Fire Department responded. The Calvert County Sheriff's Office assisted at the scene with the investigation.

The Town of Chesapeake Beach and the Calvert County Departments of Public Safety and Community Resources coordinated with the Red Cross, joining multiple community groups to assist those affected with immediate resources.

For those affected or displaced by the fire who have not yet been interviewed by the Red Cross, contact the Red Cross at 1-800-Red-Cross (1-800-733-2767).

Monetary donations, food and toiletries are being accepted at Bayside Baptist Church for immediate needs. To donate, visit www.baysidebaptist.com/give and select "Chesapeake Fire Relief Fund."

Donations for assistance with housing stability and long-term support are being accepted and coordinated by Calvert Family Advocates at www.calfam.org/donate.

The cause of the fire is under investigation.

Commissioners Begin New Era in New Building

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

"Today marks a new era in Calvert County Government as we move into this new space," said Commissioner President Buddy Hance, sitting on a new dais and overlooking a crowd sitting in a new, much larger, meeting room.

The Calvert County Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) were meeting for the first time on Nov. 18 in the new 103,000-square-foot, four-story, $40 million County Administration Building that now dominates old town Prince Frederick's skyline.

Hance said, "Recently we vacated the courthouse, which has served as the home base for county government for over 200 years. And, if you think back over the decisions that were made in that space on Calvert County's future over all those decades and commissioners serving the citizens of Calvert County, it's truly humbling."

He added, "As we left that space, to think about what occurred in that room over the period of time, and to think that those decisions are still in place today and have made the county what it is today."

"Today we're in this new space that future boards will make decisions that will also shape Calvert County's future. For nearly three centuries we've been here in Prince Frederick operating as county government. The courthouse burned down twice, so we lost a lot of historical records because of those fires. But we're moving forward and this space that we're in today has been a wonderful addition in just the past month when the first departments started to move in for the first time."

Hance said, "Citizens can come into this new building, especially if you need a permit, and every service you need to get a building permit is right here. There's no more where you need to be and figure out who you need to see."

Hance noted, "I can't thank enough JR. Cosgrove, director of public Works, who oversaw this project. It was a massive undertaking for us. The building came in under budget, not quite on time, but almost, but it turned out great. And we have to thank all the directors of the different agencies for their help."

He said, "Moving in was very smooth transition. IT (Information Technology) has been in this space for two months, making sure everything goes on smoothly, got all our employees connected appropriately. I expected hiccups and bumps, but at least I don't know of any. If they happened, they weren't very challenging."

Hance looked out over an audience of county dignitaries, many of whom spoke.

Former county administrator Terry Shannon said, "I just want to say I'm very honored to be here this morning and this building is beautiful. Congratulations to staff. You do have a wonderful staff. And Happy Thanksgiving."

Just retired county administrator Mark Willis said, "My hat's off to staff. Without staff pulling together the way that you did and with the commissioners providing the guidance that you have provided the entire time. And I'm talking from day one, you were involved in this. You knew what was going to happen and ultimately, what you directed staff to do, was to make communication better on behalf of the citizens of county. And that's exactly what's happening. They can walk into this building, ask for the services that they require, and they walk out with an understanding of how they're going to obtain that with full involvement from staff."

Former county commissioner and deputy county administrator Wilson Parran said, "I served as a county commissioner for eight years, and two of my fellow commissioners are here with us today. Congratulations! This has been a long time coming. It's has been a lot of tough decisions that you have to make in terms of prioritizing to determine what's the most important project for the county at the time. And this is a wonderful location and a wonderful building that will serve our citizens for many years to come."

Former commissioner Pat Biehler said, "It's an honor and a pleasure to be here today. First of all, I'd like to thank you all for all the improvements that have been done in St. Leonard. It's been an outstanding job that has been done."

He added, "I want to thank Public Works, the water division, and the contractor. St. Leonard really has come a long way in the last couple of years. It's been a long haul, but it's turned out beautiful."

About the new building, Buehler said, "I served from 1990 to 2000, and we actually purchased the property that this building setting on. It's one of the first things we did. And we knew at some point in time the county was going to have to build, and our plans were at the time for us to tear down the existing building that was here and rebuild it. This turned out beautiful."

Former commissioner Susan Shaw said, "I think it's a testament to the continuity of how things work in Calvert County that we have so many past commissioners here. Those of us who served in this job know, David Hale (former commissioner president) used to call it a 'zero sum game,' that you're constantly balancing the needs of the community against the money that you have or don't have. And that is the biggest challenge for those people who think that this building wasn't needed. They didn't try to juggle things all over the place at the courthouse to try to make it work, from giving the county administrator a little tiny office because that's the only space that we had available, to the commissioners being in offices with no windows."

Former commissioner Jerry Clark said, "I was commissioner for 12 years. I'd just like to point out one thing. Right now, you have 34 years' worth of commissioner experience in this room for the first district commissioner, myself and Commissioner Buehler and Commissioner Hart. We know (there's) a lot of good things down here. We want to thank you for everything you've done in the first district in advance. We'd like to thank you for everything you'll do in the future for the first district, which hopefully will be soon."

He added, "What a wonderful day. I can remember the day we sat in the commissions room and started talking about this building. It was many years ago, and we were all kind of just beating our head. We put it into CIP and then 2008 hit and 2009, and we pushed out everything, pushing out hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of projects to make the budget balance."

He added, "I want to thank you for the job you do. You are living up to the tradition. You weren't elected for the easy votes. You're elected to make the hard votes, the ones that we expect you to make, whether we agree with you or disagree with you."

Former commissioner Kelly McConkey said, "I remember when our board, started this project and it was going to go over on Dares Beach Road. And I'm glad that the board decided to put it here. It was going to save a lot of money. The place turned out fantastic. I'm actually jealous because I feel like I was in the slums across the state compared to here."

The tragic fire that displaced 25 people in Chesapeake Beach was on the minds of many people who attended the first meeting in the new building, including town Mayor Bruce Wahl. He said, "As many of you know, we had quite a tragedy in Chesapeake Beach yesterday with a fire at Courtyards of Fishing Creek. One whole building has been destroyed. Fortunately, nobody was injured. One person lost a pet, which she's very distraught about. But, other than that, the community has really raised up and is helping everybody. I was sworn to secrecy not to tell you who was taking care of everybody, because they don't want to be glorified for that, but the businesses in the town have really stepped up, and the citizens of the town have really stepped up. And fortunately, all of the people that were residents of that building are safe in the town."

Regarding the new building, he said, "This is fantastic. And so, congratulations and we appreciate it."

North Beach Mayor Mike Benton quipped, "I'm so happy that you're almost as nice as our town hall."

He added, "Seriously, what an amazing building. I haven't gone on a tour yet, but if it's like what we see here, it's absolutely amazing for the residents."

He added, "(You) stepped up and made the toughest call probably in a long time. So, congratulations."

State's Attorney Bob Harve said, "We've spent a lot of time talking about what a wonderful building this is, but I think we all know that this building wouldn't mean anything without the people who work here, the people who have gone before. And the people who we have now. You know, there's a phrase, 'public service.' I think the citizens of Calvert County know that in this building, they receive public service from the employees, from the commissioners, from the people who are standing up in front of us."

Sheriff Ricky Cox, who hopes to have a new headquarters of his own someday, also added his condolences to the fire victims.

He said of the building, "It's awesome (for) the people and the citizens. It's good for them. That one stop shop, they can come and get what they need. But they'll stop coming to the sheriff's office thinking that's a county service company over here. The staff did well. We have good employees that work for our country and made this building what it is today. I always like moving forward and it's good to see everybody in this room."
