Calvert's Teacher of the Year: Teaching the Politics of the Past

Bill Voshell of Calvert High School

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

"It's very humbling," said Bill Voshell about being chosen Calvert County Teacher of the Year. "There are a lot of teachers I've worked with that are just as deserving, if not more."

Voshell is a Social Studies teacher at Calvert High School, teaching world history and AP world history, to mostly 11th graders.

He grew up in Caroline County on the Eastern Shore.

"I'm a bit of what I call a recycled teacher," he said. "I started with Calvert County in the mid to late nineties, and I taught for a number of years, and then I left the school system and did some corporate training and then did some of my own business, retail stuff. About 12 years ago I came back into the system again. I did some long-term subbing, and then I did a half day stint as a family and consumer science teacher at Mill Creek Middle before they had a social studies spot for me at Calvert High."

Why leave and come back?: "I wanted to explore some other opportunities. And, I think eventually, as the years went by, I kind of realized that teaching is probably what I was designed to do."

He explained, "When I did my undergraduate work at University of Maryland, I didn't know what I wanted to do, but I knew I enjoyed history, so I focused on that. And then I was offered an undergraduate Teaching Assistantship with some classics courses. And I enjoyed doing that, and that's when I started to think about maybe I'd pursue teaching. When I was at Maryland, I also did some tutoring. They had a program where you could tutor some of the athletes. And there were a couple of guys who went on to play in NFL football that I tutored a little bit."

He moved to Calvert in the late 90's when he started teaching full time.

For role models, he had two teachers in middle school, a husband and wife, and then another mentor when he started student teaching, Mr. Cornier. "I would say that anything I do right in teaching is because of him."

As with most selectees, he's not quite sure why he was chosen. He said in his application, "I made it a little more personal. I picked some students that I had in the past and I had this year, and when I did the videos, I had the students read me the questions so I could respond to the students."

Voshell was asked about his choice of Social Studies. He said, "I certainly wouldn't consider myself a history expert, but I certainly find it interesting. So, my goal is to try to find ways to make it interesting to the kids. It isn't how well they do on the test, but if they end the school year and they're pursuing on their own. There's one unit where I do literature of World War I. It's kind of cool at the end of that, I've had kids come back and say they were watching 'All Quiet on the Western front.' It's on Netflix. The fact that they're pursuing that on their own outside of the classroom, I kind of feel like that, to me, is the victory, that they'd be kind of lifelong learners on their own."

Over time he has also taught American government, civics, US history, AP US History, criminal justice, and criminal law."

The school board is grappling with how to handle politics in the classroom. With the divided country, he was asked if that poses challenges.

Voshell noted, "History is just politics of the past." He said he likes teaching world history. "We can study somebody like Genghis Khan and all the horrible things that he did. We can also study somebody like Genghis Khan and look at all of the ingenious things that he did. And then we can say, okay, well was this guy horrible or was this guy a strong leader? How do we evaluate this guy? And we can disagree about him and have discussions about him, because it's the politics of the past, we're not as emotionally attached to it."

Or Magellan. "He got himself in a situation and some of his men decided not to go to his rescue because they didn't like him, and other people did go to his rescue because they did like him. So, we evaluate why did they, or why didn't they go to his rescue? What would you do? And in the process, we practice having conversations about different viewpoints. What can we agree on? What can we disagree on?"

He added, "So that's why I like the world history, because we're able to have those kinds of disagreements and practice civil discourse, with something we're studying."

He noted, "I'll tell kids we'll cover a topic, whatever it might be, and I'll tell some story or some anecdote and I'll say, don't trust me. Look it up for yourself. I'm not lying to you on purpose, but I might have my facts mixed up, so why don't you back check me to see if I'm giving you the correct information. So those are tools that I feel like are useful for people in today's political realm, to not just take what someone is sharing with them, but we often corroborate things."

He's done some travel to see what he teaches firsthand. "I've been to Turkey several times. I've been to England several times. I've been able to go to Paris. And just this past year I had to go to Portugal."

As a role model for other teachers, he said, "I think one of the things that would help a young person be successful in teaching is just to kind of be their authentic self. Teaching is sort of like art. Different artists have unique characteristics and are known for certain things. And I think teachers are the same way. I think all of us who teach have strengths and we play to those strengths. And I think it is a sort of a form of personal expression in how you decide what activity you're going to do."

He was asked if it was true that teachers get as much from the students as the students get from them."

He responded, "I think there's some truth to that. I know when you're trying to convey something, I remember in particular, I can make lots of different stories, but I had a student who was an ESOL student, so English was not his first language. And we were learning about the French Revolution and talking about the reign of terror and all you had to do is be accused of something and you could get your head chopped off. So, he says, you know, this is a student for whom English, a second language. He says, oh, so the guillotines is kind of like Twitter, right? Even though you aren't in the wrong, you get persecuted by it. So, for somebody to sort of leap and make that connection, and that's the kind of stuff that (you hear)."

Annual Water Quality Monitoring Report Presented

Calvert Partners with Chesapeake Biological Lab

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

For 38 years, Calvert County has partnered with Chesapeake Biological Lab for an annual Water Quality Monitoring Program. Initially it concentrated on Solomons Harbor but later expanded to include the Patuxent and Bay estuaries.

The program assesses Mill Creek and 11 other tributaries: Fishing, Plum Point, Parkers and Flag Harbor on the Bay side, and Hall, Hunting, Battle, Island, St. Leonard, Hellen's and Hungerford on the Patuxent side.

Main CBL researchers Lora Harris and Dr. Jeremy Testa made the annual report to the county commissioners on June 3.

One thing has become clear, even if the water hasn't, and that is that water quality is often influenced by the weather. Dry years are better for the water quality because there's less runoff of nutrients from the land.

The last two years have been relatively dry, so the reports for then haven't been so bad. Which led Commissioner Catherine Grasso to ask at the end of the presentation, "Am I correct in from what I've seen that we're looking pretty healthy. Parker's Creek has some fluctuations there, but in general, are we looking water wise healthy in Calvert County?"

Testa responded, "I think in the recent years we have looked relatively healthy given the variability of the weather that we see. There are some problem spots that we've identified. And so, I don't think we can have a kind of a one-size-fits-all designation for how the county is as a whole. But, for example, there are parts of Solomon's Harbor that looked like there were some sort of negative trends happening, but recently they may have reversed. And so, we may learn in the next few years and feel more confident about saying that maybe we've turned the corner. But we may see something different."

Harris observed, "I'd say it's an analogy to people who had those days where you're one paycheck away from a problem. So, we've had two good years, 2023, 2024, they've been drier and that one paycheck away for me is one wet summer. So, we want to have it so that we can withstand wet summers and we're not there yet."

Commissioner President Buddy Hance observed about Solomons Harbor, "If you look at the headwaters of those creeks, there's a tremendous number of residential homes on septic. So, my hypothetical question to you is if that was under (central) sewer, what kind of an improvement would we see, do you think, in Solomons Harbor?"

Harris said, "I think we've hammered this for years and years, that wastewater is the thing that needs to be dealt with. And you know, Jeremy and I have also been trying to think creatively about that. There's BAT (Best Available Technology) systems which are incredibly effective. But we haven't documented it in the tidal water yet. We've done it in the groundwater and watersheds, but not out in the tidal water. There're some places that may be expensive to sewer. Could they instead have annual pump out programs? So that we're almost using them more as storage systems."

But Hance responded, "You talk about those costs long term. I'm not sure that's cheaper than going to a full system. Because you have efficiencies in the full system and you were talking about putting a BAT system, every one of those individual homes pumping out, twice a week, twice a month, the expense of that to the owner. I mean, at the end of the day, you've got one system that you can maintain serving so many homes."

Harris retorted "Well if we can talk you into an engineering analysis, I'd be happy about that."

Not discounting the idea, Hance said it would be helpful to the county if the cost of such an engineering study was known.

No Charges in Fatal Police-Involved Collision

Maryland Attorney General Anthony G. Brown announced on June 3 his decision not to seek charges in the November 2024 fatal police-involved collision in Chesapeake Beach.

On Saturday, November 16, 2024, at approximately 8:50 p.m., Calvert County Deputy First Class Taylor Strong was parked in a marked police cruiser conducting traffic enforcement near the intersection of Route 261 and 17th Street in Chesapeake Beach. A gold Ford Mustang passed Deputy Strong's location traveling southbound on Rt. 261 at a high rate of speed. After the vehicle passed Deputy Strong, he pulled his cruiser out of its parked location and activated his emergency equipment to conduct a traffic stop. The driver of the Mustang, later identified as Justin Foreman, failed to stop. Deputy Strong pursued the vehicle for approximately 1.6 miles on Rt. 261. The Mustang eventually left the roadway, crossed the double yellow line into oncoming traffic, struck a utility pole, and rolled over before coming to rest near the intersection of Rt. 261 and Locust Grove Road. Deputy Strong, along with another Calvert County Sheriff's Deputy, rendered aid to Foreman until emergency medical services arrived. Foreman was pronounced dead at the scene.

The Independent Investigations Division (IID) began investigating the fatal police-involved vehicle collision on Saturday, November 16, 2024, and concluded its investigation on Thursday, May 29, 2025. After completing its investigation and evaluating all the available evidence, the Office of the Attorney General has determined that Deputy Strong did not commit a crime under Maryland law. Accordingly, the Attorney General has declined to prosecute the involved officer in this case.

A copy of the IID's detailed investigative findings and analysis of relevant legal issues can be found in its declination report.

The conviction stemmed from an incident that occurred on July 13, 2024. On that date, Raley was working as a paid paramedic at the Dunkirk Volunteer Fire Department. Raley removed fentanyl from three vials intended for patient use and used the drugs for his own purposes.

Raley is facing similar charges in St. Mary's County, where he is currently incarcerated. He is no longer employed as a paramedic in Calvert County.

County Receives GIS Software Grant

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

Calvert County has been awarded a grant for enhanced Geographic Information System (GIS) software.

According to Public Safety Director Dave McDowell, "The Department of Public Safety — Emergency Communications Division presented a grant request to the Maryland 911 Board for a five-year subscription to DataMark's GIS software. This software provides tools to ensure the accuracy and reliability of the public safety's environment, while optimizing staff efficiency, reducing manual workload, and ensuring compliance with national standards."

McDowell said the $171,696.71 grant was awarded "for purchasing and implementing the DataMark software. There is no fiscal impact associated with this grant as there is no cost match required."

McDowell further explained, "This contract will provide two different services. One of them is man hours. As part of that contract, we can send GIS work to them, and their GIS specialists can do work for us, and it prevents us from having to hire more staff to do that work."

"Another thing that they're going to do, they provide a resource to us where we can upload our GIS data. And what that does is it compares all of our GIS data to the national or the next generation 911 data standards. And then it'll identify all the errors and allow us to easily make those corrections. So, really what it does it allow, when someone calls 911, their address is going to be right. We want to make sure we have all the most up-to-date information."

The commissioners approved the grant award after a public hearing at which no one testified.

Salty Joyner, 80

It is with deep sadness that I, and my daughters, announce the death of our beloved "Salty" Joyner on November 8th, 2024 at our home in Solomons, MD.

At her time of passing, she was under the comfortable care of family and Hospice of the Chesapeake. Several weeks prior to her death I asked if she wanted to have input or write part of her obituary. In true Salty fashion, her response was: "Tom we have been married over 61 years! If you can't write it, then what the 'Heck' was that all about?" So this is my eulogy to the most remarkable woman I ever met. For over 61 years, she was my love, my wife, my best friend, and my most constructive and loving critic. Her death does not define her. Moreover, it is merely a bookend to the preceding 80 years of a full, well lived, engaging life of love, accomplishment and caring.

So, here is Salty's story: She was born in Pearl River, NY on November 1st 1944 to the late Vincent George Law and Emily Sergeant (nee: Cochran) Law. Her birth announcements stated: "Her name is Emily Helen but we call her Salty". And Salty is the name she embraced as a child and made her own throughout her adult life. Salty was truly a one-of-a-kind individual. She was a Navy Junior whose parents and grandparents infused a deep understanding and appreciation of travel, literature, history, time, place and people. We met at Holy Cross Episcopal Church in Sanford, Florida on a Sunday in May 1963 and married 2 months later. She was 18, so her father had to sign a legal release granting permission for us to marry. Yet, ironically, she was one of the most mature women I ever met. By this time, she had lived at Midway Island (1947), Hawaii, The Panama Canal Zone, Morocco and 3 stateside Navy Bases. She fully understood, better than I, the term "Navy Wife", and all its implications for adventure, periodic relocations, long separations and extended single parenting.

In the ensuing years, we had three daughters to whom she was very committed. One daughter describes her as "One of the most intelligent women I have ever met, you were creative, dramatic, charismatic and funny as hell". Before there were fancy phones with GPS, Salty was a fearless traveler throughout Europe and not afraid to speak the language of whatever country she was visiting. She was a voracious reader and provided our daughters with a never-ending library of books to be read whenever a new trip was in the offing. Whether to Greece or Italy or Portugal, she had the perfect book to be read prior to each trip and was able to relay historical facts to the family throughout our many travels. To this day our family has a deep love for reading and traveling and exploring new cultures, new countries and languages.

Our family arrived in St. Mary's County in January 1979 under Navy orders. Having lived at 9 Navy Bases over the previous 16 years, Salty immediately became enchanted with the area and immersed herself in the history, culture and people of Southern Maryland, eventually calling this her first "Forever Home".

In the early 1980's Salty worked as an historical interpreter, educator and event's organizer at Historical St. Mary's City (HSMC). Her historical interpreter duties frequently meant first-person costumed role playing. For three years Salty was Production Manager for Madrigals Feast Evenings at HSMC. Later in the 1990's, Salty worked at Jefferson Patterson Park and Museum (JPPM) as part of the inaugural staff. While there, she developed and initiated "Children's Day on the Farm", which is still a favorite annual event each Spring.

Salty was also an accomplished writer and interviewer and used these talents to capture and write people's personal histories for St. Mary's College of Southern MD "The Mulberry Tree Papers" project and a St. Mary's County Documentation Project "Remembering Women's Work In St. Mary's County 1900-1950". In 1983, Salty commenced a two year project to cover the 18 month cycle of Tobacco harvest from planting seed to selling the cured harvest at the Hughesville Tobacco Market. In today's vernacular, she embedded herself with a single family to gain a full understanding of the people and the process. Her in-depth and richly descriptive article, "The Sotweed Legacy", was and is a lasting tribute to a family and a way of life that has since vanished from our area.

Salty was a committed Lay Reader in the Episcopal Church and was licensed to develop and deliver her own sermons, which were developed from a lay person's perspective and masterfully written and delivered. She was often asked to provide sermons at other Episcopal churches or deliver a sermon from a previous year.

Salty taught our daughters classic etiquette and how to plan, organize and host dinner parties and casual gatherings. In her final months she still had a great fondness for holding block parties and filling our house with friends, family and neighbors. She was very adept at building a sense of community amongst her neighbors. She loved to give people unexpected and clever gifts at parties and for no reason at all. She was especially kind and giving to the people who serve us. Salty felt that her life was generously blessed, always shared with others and over tipped generously to a fault.

Salty was an incredibly creative grandmother who would turn a weeklong visit with the grandkids into a five star cruise. She had a gift for making the sublime into fun, such as using shaving cream to create faces on trees. Her imagination and creativity channeled that of her grandchildren's into Pirate adventures with treasure maps, buried treasure and costumes. The grandchildren always left happy and eager for their next visit and all new adventures that awaited them.

In addition to her beloved husband, Salty is also survived by her daughters: Helen Elisabeth Joyner Murphy (Douglas) of Richmond, VA, Stephanie Susan Joyner of Wanblee, SD, and Rebecca Noel Joyner of The Hague, Holland; her sister, Karen Helseth (Phillip) of Jacksonville, FL; brother, Robert Law (Letty) of Fort Worth, TX; her grandchildren: Sean, Aiden, Gwen, and Astrid; and extended family and friends. She is preceded in death by her parents.

A Celebration of Life will be held at Asbury Solomons, Retirement Community, Solomons, MD on Friday, June 27th, 2025 at 02:00 PM in the auditorium followed by a reception.

A memorial service of remembrance will be held at St. Andrews Episcopal Church, California, MD on Saturday, June 28, 2025 at 11:00 AM. Subsequent to the service, a reception will be held in the Parish Hall followed by a service of inurnment at Trinity Church Memorial Gardens & Columbaria in Historic St. Mary's City, Maryland.

Condolences may be made to the family at www.brinsfieldfuneral.com

In lieu of flowers, it is requested that contributions be made to St. Andrews Episcopal Church, for the "Lakota College Scholarship Fund for Deserving Students". Mail to: St. Andrews Episcopal Church, 44078 St. Andrews Church Road, California MD 20619

Wanderings of an Aimless Mind

Is Time Zooming By Faster?

By Shelby Opperman
Contributing Writer

Every day seems so busy, can I just go back to childhood please? I know that everyone says this at least once, or maybe a dozen times in their lives. If I close my eyes and listen to the birds outside the open office window I can just about pretend I am in blissfully carefree childhood again. It was simpler only having a few channels to choose from, one telephone number, and no social media or cellphones with constant notifications. But that's all gone, and we have to live with the way things are now.

I loved the freedom of riding my bike everywhere, even miles away to Clinton Park without a lot of the worry kids have now about more cars on the road, and people texting and talking while in those cars. We could play outside until the streetlights came on or ever later with not as much fear of things that could happen – or maybe we were just ignorant of bad things that could happen. All in all, I am glad to have all those wonderful memories but worry about the grandkids and successive generations getting hit with so much constant new technology. I don't see many kids out walking with their friends to each other's houses or riding their bikes like we used to see or do. Cellphones, laptops, gaming and whatever new technology that is out there is keeping many kids inside more. Thank goodness lots of kids are still in sports and other outside activities like scouts or taking music or other classes. That's a good sign. I guess I am just a worrier.

I am going through more old photos and when I see the photos of me in the backyard where I grew up back in the 60s and 70s, I think how nice and peaceful it was. I miss those days of no worries, just having days on end of sitting under trees or on the hammock reading. Or days spent up in the holly tree and oak tree enjoying beautiful summer days. I don't know if kids don't notice humidity or if it really was less humid in Clinton since we weren't surrounded by water like here in St. Mary's County.

As I went through the pictures of my time at summer camp at Camp Maria in Leonardtown during the late 60s to early 70s, I wondered what happened to the friends I made there. It's hard to find girls that you were friends with from long ago since women usually, not always, take on their spouse's name. I did stay friends with Amy Rinker for all these years until her passing a few years ago. I remember when her father, Glenn Rinker the NBC Washington news anchorman from 1969 – 1976, came to camp to visit that all of us girls, and maybe some of the nuns, were in awe to meet someone we saw on TV every night.

As I sit here typing, my phone is busy beeping with calls, texts, emails, and other notifications. (I don't turn the volume off until my husband is home for the day.) My husband and I always say, "How did we live without cellphones?" I think lots of people wonder about that now. But we lived pretty well without them. My sons, along with lots of other kids, would be lined up around the payphone stand at the fairgrounds calling all of us parents to pick them up. And we did the same thing at their ages. Adults and young drivers knew where all the telephones were on local roads if needed. I know time or technology doesn't go backward, and in many cases like in medicine and healthcare, I wouldn't want it to go back.

People always say time goes by faster and faster as you get older, which is probably true because each year brings with it more distractions that make it feel like our lives are zooming by at the speed of sound, which I guess in some cases it is. Time to take a mental break I think. Every time I let Mindy the crazy hound dog outside to lay in the sun, she pauses, looks at me with pleading eyes and a softly wagging tail that I know are saying, "Mommie, please come out and sit with me". I think I'll make some time for that right now I hope you can too.

To each new day's adventure, Shelby

Dumpstaphunk to Headline Mulberry Music Festival

Dumpstaphunk at the New Orleans Jazz Fest 2025

One of New Orleans' most original sound makers is coming to "put it in the dumpsta" at St. Mary's College of Maryland (SMCM) on Friday, June 20 at 6 p.m. as Dumpstaphunk headlines the free 2025 Mulberry Music Festival.

The legendary funk collective will be joined by SMCM alum Carly Harvey, "DC's Queen of the Blues" and Baltimore's Kelly Bell Band, voted the mid-Atlantic's best blues band 12 years running.

Founded in 2019 by SMCM President Tuajuanda C. Jordan, the Mulberry Music Festival is designed to bring the community together to celebrate Juneteenth weekend. With Jordan slated to retire at the end of June, she is being honored at this year's festival, a special feature of which will be a fireworks display after the concert concludes at 9:15 p.m.

Dumpstaphunk has cemented its reputation as one of the most respected New Orleans musical institutions. Ivan Neville (keyboards/vocals) and Ian Neville (guitar), the sons of Aaron Neville and Art "Poppa Funk" Neville respectively, alongside original member Tony Hall (bass, guitar, vocals) have built upon their iconic NOLA legacy as they've transformed Dumpstaphunk into the city's pre-eminent 21st-century funk-fusion export. Critical acclaim and undeniable musicality permeate their four studio albums, while modernizing and reinvigorating the influential Neville/Meters family groove has been one of the driving forces of Dumpstaphunk since the band spontaneously formed during JazzFest in 2003.

Named "D.C.'s Queen of the Blues" by Dr. Nick Johnson of WPMF Radio, Carly Harvey was featured in Big City Blues magazine in 2018 as one of the youngest blues artists to watch. Harvey is a dynamic Blues artist based in Washington, DC, known for her unique fusion of blues, jazz, soul, and Indigenous American styles. As a performer and band leader, Harvey has captivated audiences with her commanding stage presence and original sound. Her debut album Kamama reflects her dedication to her Afro-Indigenous roots and her belief in the power of music to heal, evolve, and connect us to the earth.

The Kelly Bell Band pulls together funk, hip-hop and blues to create an authentic sound all their own. The band's success has also been promoted by Bell's presence in Baltimore, where he is a regular on several area radio shows; performs as a professional wrestler; has written, recorded and acted in commercials; and has several television and movie appearances to his credit.

Guests should enter the campus from Route 5 (Point Lookout Rd.) or Mattapan Rd. and follow the signs & public safety officers to free parking areas. Those in attendance are invited to bring lawn chairs or blankets to help enjoy the event, as seating is not available. This year's festival will feature food vendors specializing in seafood, soul food and plenty of sweets from across Southern Maryland. The Townhouse Green opens at 5 p.m. the day of the event. Chaptico Woman Dies in Two-Vehicle Crash Deputies from the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office responded on Friday, May 30 at approximately 1:15 p.m., to a report of a two-vehicle collision in the 25000 block of Mechanicsville Road.

Upon arrival, deputies determined that a 2018 Toyota Highlander, operated by Marjorie Swann Boyers, 79, of Chaptico, collided head-on with a 2013 Chrysler 200, operated by Megan Nicole Rowley, 31, of Mechanicsville. A juvenile passenger was also in the Chrysler at the time of the crash.

Boyers was pronounced deceased at the scene. Rowley and the juvenile were transported by air to an area trauma center and remain in critical condition.

Due to the severity of the incident, the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office Collision Reconstruction Unit was requested and has since assumed the investigation.

Preliminary findings indicate that Boyers was traveling south on Mechanicsville Road when, for unknown reasons, her vehicle crossed the center line and entered the path of Rowley's vehicle.

At this time, speed and driver impairment are not believed to be contributing factors.

Anyone who may have witnessed the collision or has video footage of the incident or events leading up to it, and has not yet provided a statement, is asked to contact Corporal Vincent Pontorno at 301-475-4200, ext. 2337, or by email at Vincent.Pontorno@stmaryscountymd.gov.

Routine Health Fee Increases Rejected

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The Commissioners of St. Mary's County have rejected a request by the health department for environmental health fee increases every two years based on an inflation adjustment.

Health Officer Dr. Meena Brewster, at the June 3 Board of Health meeting, said doing regular increases would soften the blow as compared to doing larger increases less regularly. But Commissioner Eric Colvin said, "I can't vote in favor of this. I don't approve of automatic increases to any kind of fee. I think they should come back before a board to be approved in two years' time, or whenever there's a need for it."

Commissioner President Randy Guy added, "And it should be a public hearing for it."

Brewster explained, "The idea really behind making it automated based on inflation on a biennial basis is to decrease the impact to the person paying the fees. Typically, we've come before this board every five to 10 years. And so, the change in the fee may be a bit larger. If you do this it is actually based on a model that Calvert County adopted. Several other counties, including Carroll County, have gone to this automated adjustment process. And it, the reason for it is to make it an adjustment based on inflation to minimize the change in fee."

But Guy observed that a biennial adjustment may not be called for. "Sometimes you have to look at your performance of how you do this. With all this AI (artificial intelligence) stuff that may be coming on, it's going to be probably cheaper than we're doing it right now."

The commissioners did unanimously reject the biennial increase, although they did approve an environmental health fee increases for the fiscal year that begins on July 1.

Community Input Needed for 'St. Mary's 2050' Plan

Chopticon High School Holds 60th Graduation

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

With the weather finally cooperating, Chopticon High School held its 60th graduation outside on May 30.

Valedictorian Marie Cable said, "My fellow classmates, we made it from the first day of kindergarten to our final day of high school. We have all accomplished great things and come a long way from struggling to prove a triangle is a triangle in geometry to becoming academic warriors at the end of the quarters, getting those final grades done, to dealing with broken AC units and bathrooms that never seemed to be fixed, to those hard-fought battles on the athletic field, winning games that no one thought we could. Bringing home those SMAC regional and state titles. We have all overcome the obstacles put in our way and proved the doubters wrong as we sit here today eagerly waiting to walk across this stage and receive our diplomas and leave high school in the dust.

"Remember the obstacles you have overcome. So yet here are all the wonderful things you have accomplished and the memories made along the way. Do not forget the people who have helped you along your journey, shaping you into the person you are today. As we leave here today, we approach the end of a massive chapter in our lives, but with laughter, sorrow, joy, and more.

"We might still have three months with our families and friends, but those will go by in a flash and sooner than later fall will be approaching. But instead of coming to school with all of our classmates we have spent the past 13 years of our lives with, we will begin the next chapter of our extraordinary lives. Whether it's remaining in St. Mary's County to begin classes at CSM, join a trade or leave the county lines in the dust, we all have a bright future ahead of us, ready for us to conquer.

"So to sum up, in case you zoned out, never forget the obstacles you have overcome, the memories made along the way and the bright future you have ahead of you.

"I leave you with this quote by Paul Brent: 'Don't tell me the sky's the limit when there's footprints on the moon'."

Principal Marc Pirner told the graduates, "No matter where you go, I hope you take this message with you. Please remember that every life comes with adversity, but it's how you respond to that adversity that will determine the quality of your life.

"You have two choices when facing life's challenges. You can respond thoughtfully with awareness and ownership, and therefore take responsibility for your life. Or you can react impulsively, emotionally and hand that responsibility over to your circumstances.

"Please understand that a happy and meaningful life doesn't come from avoiding hardship, but from becoming the kind of person who can face hardship head on and with appreciation. The most powerful thing you can do with your mind is cultivate a consistent mindset of gratitude no matter what life throws at you.

"With gratitude, adversity becomes an opportunity for growth. Mistakes become steppingstones to success, and failure becomes your greatest teacher.

"I know it may seem strange to be thankful for adversity.

Cultivating this mindset will require discipline to stay present in the moment, and discipline to redirect your mind. When you find yourself blaming or complaining without that discipline, it's easy to fall into a victim mindset, always anxious, always offended and stuck in a small comfort zone, stuck in the illusion that life just happens to you rather than understanding the reality that your mindset determines the quality of your life.

"So, I'm asking you now, what is your mindset? And is that who you want to be? I'm happy to say that for the vast majority of you, this is a message to keep doing what you're doing. But let's be honest, for some of you, this is a wake-up call to start taking ownership because we need you. This world needs you. Everyone here today and everyone out there, we're all in this together.

"And while you aren't responsible for other people, you will have a profound impact on other people. So, take care of yourself, so your impact on others is positive.

"I know each and every one of you is capable of what I'm asking because I've seen the evidence. I've seen your hard work in these classrooms. Your teamwork on these fields and your performances on stage, and I've seen the state championships, not just me, everyone in the stands here sees it too.

"We are proud of you, and we believe in you. So, as you walk across this stage today, be present in this moment, and as you move into the next chapter of your life, continue to practice that presence, practice gratitude, and take responsibility. If you remember one thing from today, let it be these four words: Be present and appreciate. At each new moment in life, be present and appreciate."

Great Mills High School Holds 96th Graduation

Photos by Ceandra Scott

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

Great Mills High School, St. Mary's County's oldest public high school, celebrated its 96th commencement on May 29. It was held indoors because of the weather.

Valedictorian Mark Hoffman said, "The Places You'll Go by Dr. Seuss is a book my English class read on the first and last day of school this year. Dr. Seuss writes, 'You're off to great places. Today is your day. Your mountain is high. So, get on your way.'

"And today is our day. We've spent the last four years climbing through late nights and early mornings, wins and losses, friendships and obstacles and everything in between. We've been moving upward, step by step, leading us to this exact moment. And now we've reached a summit, not the final one, but an important one.

"Graduation is a finish line, but it's also a launchpad. From here, our paths begin to split. Some of us will pursue college, other careers, the military, or time to simply just figure it all out. And that's okay. Forward doesn't look the same for everyone. It just has to be forward.

"The truth is the future is uncertain. It asks for something different from each of us. It demands courage, resilience, and honesty. We'll face setbacks, we'll make mistakes.

We might even feel lost, but as Dr. Seuss reminds us, you'll come to a place where the streets are not marked. Some windows are lighted, but mostly they're dark. When that happens, keep going. Set your own path if you have to.

"What we've learned here in classrooms, on courts and fields, on stages and in everyday moments isn't just knowledge, it's direction. What we carry with us isn't a perfect plan. It's something better. It's the mindset that got us through high school, the ability to adapt and grow even when we're in a situation that's uncomfortable.

"So, dream big, but stay grounded. Be kind when it's hardest and when you face doubt because you will remember that courage isn't about knowing what comes next. It's about showing up.

"Anyway, this diploma isn't just a piece of paper, it's your passport to the world beyond this stage."

Principal BeeJay Dothard reminded the graduates they are Hornets forever. "As long as you remain that Hornet, you can overcome any obstacle that comes your way.

"Here we have a Hornet acronym. 'H' is for honest. Always be honest and no matter the circumstances, honesty in your actions with your friends, with your relatives, and most importantly, honesty with yourself will keep you grounded and humble.

"(And) 'O', open-minded. Keep an open mind as you meet new people and try and explore new places. Make an effort to understand other people's perspectives. Open-minded means trying to understand things that are different. The best way to understand differences is to actually talk to people. So, did you know that conversation is an essential soft skill, that employers are actively looking for people that can collaborate and solve problems together?

"R' is for respect. Treat everyone with the respect that you wish to have. Remember, life has a unique way of sending back the same energy that you put out. We don't have to match their energy because that can change the energy that you receive back in your time of need. By treating others as if they're the most important person in the room, creates a ripple effect. And that comes back to you.

"And 'N,' strive for nobility in all that you do. Take pride in your work and uphold high moral standards for your work, your body and your mind. Let your words be loud and your actions resonate louder than your words.

"Showcasing your commitment to excellence. 'E' is for excellence. Cultivate excellence in every aspect of your life. Excellence is a habit as you begin this road called adulthood. Commit to building habits that will shape your future into what you want it to be. Strive for excellence even when those around you are not being excellent.

"Finally, 'T' is for team player. Understand that success is rarely achieved alone. The captain of the team understands that sometimes you have to take one for the team to be successful. The captain plays an instrumental role in uplifting others in difficult times and helping others feel confident. Be the example on a team that makes others feel like they need to work harder because they don't want to let you down."

"As you leave this stadium, a graduate of Great Mills High School, remember that you're not just a graduate. You are a Hornet. Embrace the virtues of being a Hornet and let them guide you towards success in whatever path your heart chooses.

"I was the first person in my family to graduate from college, and I was not an education major. I followed my heart, capitalized on opportunities that were offered to me. When I look back over my life, I've been living by these same Hornet virtues. So, I am living proof that it works. I didn't initially set out to be a teacher, but I believe I am right where I'm supposed to be, right here with you. So, continue to be Hornets. Listen to your heart. Success will follow."

Health Department Warns of Tickborne Red Meat Allergies

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

With the wet weather, tick season is in full swing in St. Mary's County.

One type of tickborne disease is called Alpha-gal syndrome or better known as "Red Meat Allergy."

According to the Mayo Clinic, "Alpha-gal syndrome is a type of food allergy. It makes people allergic to red meat and other products made from mammals. In the United States, the condition usually begins with the bite of the Lone Star tick. The bite transfers a sugar molecule called alpha-gal into the body. In some people, this triggers a reaction from the body's defenses, also called the immune system. It causes mild to severe allergic reactions to red meat, such as beef, pork, or lamb. It also can cause reactions to other foods that come from mammals, such as dairy products or gelatins."

St. Mary's Health Officer Dr. Meena Brewster talked about Red Meat Allergy at the June 3 meeting with the county commissioners, sitting as the Board of Health.

The health officer said, "Typically within two to six hours of consuming red meat, they might get some severe allergy symptoms. The allergy symptoms that can happen when you ingest food that is causing the allergy, include severe stomach cramping or pain. There may be a rash or hives starting on their body. They could have nausea, diarrhea."

She added, "If individuals start noticing that they're having these symptoms, and it can vary from person to person, the severity can vary. Some people may even be at risk for anaphylaxis when they consume red meat, but it does vary from person to person how much of an allergy response they have."

Brewster said there's a video on the allergy on the health department's website.

She said, "It's difficult to manage when it has such an impact on your lifestyle. This is why we're concerned about it, and we're encouraging St. Mary's community members to be mindful of tick bites. We've typically associated Alpha-Gal syndrome with the Lone Star tick, the one that has a little white star on its back, but more recent findings suggest that actually the deer legged tick may also be carrying what's causing Alpha-gal syndrome."

Regarding recovery, she said, "Some people do improve. We've definitely seen that. We've had it now for some years or at least known about it for some years. We've definitely seen people where their symptoms have improved over time or lessened in severity. And some people have even begun tolerating certain types of red meat products like dairy, for example. But this varies from person to person, how their body responds to it."

She said there is no treatment, although "it's relatively new, so I'm sure that's something that we'll start to hear more about in the years ahead."

Although there have been no reports of the avian flu (H5N1) in St. Mary's County, Brewster urged individual with backyard flocks to monitor them and report any anomalies to the Maryland Department of Agriculture at 410-841-5810.

Hearing Set for 1,000-Unit Housing Project

Stewart's Grant Requests School Capacity Allocation

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The Commissioners of St. Mary's County (CSMC) will hold an evening public hearing on June 24 to consider a request to modify the agreements for the planned unit development (PUD) in Lexington Park called Stewart's Grant. Included in the request is the setting aside of school capacity for the more than 1,000 units in the development.

Assistant County Attorney John Houser, at the commissioners' June 3 meeting, gave the background on the project. He explained, "A Planned Unit Development is essentially a zoning layer, kind of a floating layer that sits atop the base zoning that allows for certain flexibility or kind of innovative, unique approaches that can be taken within the confines of that floating layer."

Houser said, "Stewart's Grant consists of just under 400 acres in Great Mills, right near George Washington Carver Elementary. It has some vintage to it. The original proposal was applied for in the planning Commission in 1992. It was approved by the Commissioners of St. Mary's County in 1997 with a major amendment to the PUD in 2004 to facilitate the transfer of the land that George Washington Carver would be built on. Since 2004, there has not been a major amendment at the commissioner level."

Houser added, "Obviously the project, which is a mix of predominantly residential, but with the commercial component as well, never was built. The development team will say that there were attempts to try here and there over the years, but for one reason or another, issues with the property, issues with the current use of the property, the underlying market never got off the ground. What has happened though in the last three years is a new development team has been making concerted effort with the development plan to get it going this time around."

Houser explained, "The planning commission approved in 2023 a concept site plan for a reduced number of residential units. Originally proposed were 1,622 residential units. That number, first reduced down to 1,125, is now 1,084 proposed dwelling units. Fifty percent will be townhomes and the remaining half split, more or less equally, between apartment units and single-family dwellings."

Houser said, "Last year has been spent by the development team making sure that they are in fact ready to go forward at this time and that we're not passing a major amendment, not going through this hurdle just for it to die on the vine after we go through all the trouble with it."

Houser said the project required a large amount of upfront infrastructure work before the July 2027 home construction can commence. For lenders to support the project, they needed assurances that it would be allowed to proceed by the county, hence the desire to get classroom space locked in before the ten-year buildout of the project.

He explained, "We have 539 available high school seats, 808 available middle school seats, 785 available south elementary school seats. What are required for Stewart's Grant are 165 high school seats, 116 middle school seats, 233 elementary school seats. The balance that leaves us are 372 high school seats, 692 countywide middle school seats 552 seats in the south elementary school system. And, on average since 2021 to 2024, we have been allocating 13 and a quarter high school seats every year, nine and a quarter middle school seats, and 1.75 south elementary school seats, because elementary school development for one reason or another is going into the north side of the county, not in the south."

Commissioner Mike Hewitt, although he supported the public hearing, had some reservations. He said it didn't seem fair to tie up another potential development by setting aside school capacity for Stewart's Grant.

But the large amount of school capacity even with Stewart's Grant counted, was noted by other commissioners.

The school system is getting ready to launch a redistricting process and perhaps close some schools because of the large number of vacant seats.

In addition to accommodating school capacity, there are three other PUD changes, including reducing the width of two roads in the subdivision.

Health Department Intensifies Measles Monitoring

No Cases but Positive Wastewater Sample

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

With measles outbreaks in other parts of the country, and three deaths in Texas, the St. Mary's County Health Department continues to be vigilant in monitoring the situation in the county. St. Mary's County Health Officer Dr. Meena Brewster gave a status report on June 3 to the Commissioners of St. Mary's County when then held their semi-annual meeting with her as they were sitting as the County Board of Health.

Brewster reported no measles cases in the county, but as part of a new wastewater treatment plant monitoring project, one positive test was indicated. The health department talked about that in a press release issued the same day.

The release said, "New testing for measles virus in St. Mary's County wastewater was launched in May as part of WastewaterSCAN, a national pilot study of Stanford University in partnership with Emory University, to test wastewater samples across the country. A person with an infection can shed virus in their urine or feces. Monitoring wastewater is a tool for early detection of emerging illness in a community and allows healthcare providers and public health agencies time to prepare before cases may be known or disease spreads."

"The WastewaterSCAN pilot study began testing wastewater samples for different infectious agents in early 2023 and added measles virus in May 2025. Data from this national study is now available to the public on their data dashboard."

"Thus far, five wastewater samples collected from the Marlay Taylor Water Reclamation Facility (in Lexington Park) have been tested for measles virus markers. The first sample on May 16 detected measles virus; subsequent testing on multiple days from the same facility did not detect measles virus."

The release went on to say, "St. Mary's County Health Department (SMCHD) reminds the community to stay aware of measles signs and symptoms and keep up to date with measles vaccination. Measles vaccine is the best protection for preventing measles infection. SMCHD encourages all community members to speak with their healthcare provider about their immune status and need for measles vaccine."

"SMCHD offers measles vaccines to all St. Mary's County community members, regardless of ability to pay. During June and July, community members may contact the St. Mary's County Health Department Health Clinic at 301-475-4330 to schedule an appointment for a vaccine. Additionally, measles vaccine for all community members will be available at the back-to-school immunization clinics currently scheduled as below:

Spring Ridge and Margaret Brent School-Based Health Centers

- Every Tuesday and Thursday from July 29 – August 14, 2025, from 9:00am – 12:00 pm
- Saturday, August 23, 2025, from 9:00am – 1:00 pm
- Saturday, September 27, 2025, from 9:00am – 1:00 pm

Main Health Department in Leonardtown

- Friday, September 5, 2025, from 9:00am – 12:00 pm
- Friday, September 12, 2025, from 9:00am – 12:00 pm
- Friday, September 19, 2025, from 9:00am – 12:00 pm

According to the health department, "Measles is a highly contagious respiratory disease (in the lungs and breathing tubes) that causes a rash and fever and spreads through coughing and sneezing. An infected person can spread the virus for up to four days before becoming symptomatic."

Measles signs and symptoms:

7 – 14 days after infection:

- Fever greater than 101 degrees
- Runny nose
- Red/watery eyes
- Cough

2 – 3 days later:

- Tiny white spots may appear inside the mouth

3 – 5 days later:

- A rash of flat red spots begins to appear on the face and spreads downward over the entire body
- Small red bumps can develop on top of the flat red spots
- Red spots may join together to form larger red areas

The health department says, "If you notice the symptoms of measles, immediately limit your exposure to others. Individuals who are concerned about possible exposure to or infection with measles should call their primary health care provider before visiting the office in order to receive appropriate guidance and take precautions ahead of a visit."

Dr. Brewster said at the June 3 meeting, "The majority of these (nationwide) cases are in individuals who are either unvaccinated or where their vaccination status is not known. In Maryland, we've had three measles cases that have been associated with international travel, not the West Texas outbreak. Those were earlier this year."

She was asked who was the most susceptible. She said, "Those individuals who are non-immune. So typically individuals who are not vaccinated for measles. Measles vaccination is the best protection we have in preventing measles. And vaccination with measles can be up to 97 percent protective against infection."

She observed, "In this day and age, not a lot of people have seen measles because it was largely eradicated...several decades ago from the US at least. We've seen periodic cases pop up associated with travel and so forth. But more recently we've been seeing more and more associated with locally transmitted measles here in the US amongst primarily individuals who are not vaccinated."

She was asked if citizens should be concerned about that one positive wastewater test.

She responded, "Absolutely! A wastewater sign of it is definitely something for us to tune into, which is why we are communicating with our public and getting our local healthcare providers in the know, getting them ready, and we continue to advocate for prevention."

Regarding the Marlay Taylor test, she said, "We had one positive sample, and then we retested and the retests were negative on subsequent days. That makes us less concerned about an ongoing presence of measles, at least in the distribution for that wastewater treatment facility."

Brewster noted that in Sacramento, California there "was another one that was identified as having a positive wastewater sample in the past couple of weeks as part of this national study. They have had multiple positive tests with an escalating load of measles virus in their sample. So, for them, they're much more concerned about measles being an ongoing transmission in their communities."
