A Calvert Thanksgiving

The County Times asked local officials what they had to give thanks for this year, both personally and professionally. Here are the responses we received:

Commissioner President Earl F. "Buddy" Hance

The Calvert County Board of County Commissioners are so proud of our Calvert County Government staff and the services they provide every day to our residents, businesses and visitors.

We hope everybody has a very happy Thanksgiving and get together with their families to celebrate all the great things we have before us today.

Calvert County is blessed to be a wonderful place to live and we all have much to be thankful for.

Let us also pause, give thanks and appreciate those who cannot be with their loved ones during the holiday, serving in the military, our emergency first responders or otherwise working during the holidays.

County Administrator Linda Turner

I can say that I am both personally and professionally very thankful for our accomplished and talented Calvert

County Government employees for their dedication and hard work. This season reminds us to pause and reflect on the many reasons we have to be thankful, and at the top of that list is the incredible team of public servants who make Calvert County a wonderful place to live and work.

As we celebrate Thanksgiving, I hope Calvert County employees, residents and visitors find plenty of time to relax, enjoy good meals and make lasting memories with family and friends.

State's Attorney Bob Harvey

I am blessed with a loving and talented wife who always keeps me pointed in the right direction, 4 successful and happy children, and 5 beautiful grandchildren. My plate is very full this Thanksgiving. I wish my coworkers and all the citizens of Calvert County a safe and bountiful holiday season.

Sheriff Ricky Cox As we gather with family and friends to celebrate Thanksgiving, I want to extend my sincere gratitude to the residents of Calvert County. This season reminds us of the importance of community, connection, and caring for one another, and I am truly thankful to serve such an engaged and supportive county.

Professionally, I am grateful for the dedicated men and women of the Calvert County Sheriff's Office. Their unwavering commitment to public safety, their professionalism, and their compassion for the community continue to inspire me every day.

I am also thankful for the strong partnerships we share with our local agencies, community leaders, and citizens, each playing an important role in keeping Calvert County a safe place to live, work, and raise a family.

Personally, I am blessed beyond measure by my family. I am deeply thankful for my wife, Susie, and for our three wonderful children. Their love, support, and understanding fuel my purpose and strengthen my resolve to serve our community with integrity and dedication.

From my family to yours, I wish everyone a safe and blessed Thanksgiving. May your homes be filled with peace, gratitude, and the company of those you hold dear.

Assistant Sheriff Lieutenant Colonel David Payne

Professionally: I am thankful for all the First Responders in Calvert County and especially for the Men and Women of the Calvert County Sheriff's Office who regularly put service above self.

Personally: I am thankful to be able to spend another blessed year with my wife Christina and our family, including our grandsons Brooks, Brantley, and Tatum.

Interim Superintendent of Schools Dr. Marcus Newsome

As we reflect on the origin of Thanksgiving first observed as a time for harvest, prayer, and community, I am reminded of the timeless power of gratitude. Like the early settlers who paused to give thanks for God's provision, I am personally grateful for the blessings of faith and family that sustain me daily. Professionally, I am thankful for the privilege of serving Calvert County Public Schools (CCPS), where our students are offered extraordinary opportunities to learn and grow. The spirit of Thanksgiving continues in CCPS through hope, generosity, and the strength of our community.

Board of Education President Jana Post

As a board of education member, I am thankful for family, friends, good health, our dedicated staff, and the continued opportunities for meaningful conversations.

Board of Education Vice President Lisa Grenis

This year has been an important year for Calvert County Public Schools (CCPS), with meaningful progress in many areas. I am grateful for the teachers and staff who continue to work so hard to give our students the highest-quality learning experience. I would also like to extend my heartfelt gratitude to our SRO officers for their diligent work and unwavering commitment to fostering a safe learning environment in our schools.

I am thankful we have refocused our mission on academic excellence, but we still have work to do to achieve our high standard to be the best in the state. I am committed to making academic excellence our top priority while supporting our teachers, staff, students, and families in every way we can.

Wishing everyone a joyful and safe Thanksgiving.

Board of Education member Melissa Goshorn

This Thanksgiving I pray everyone is able to reflect on your blessings while spending time with people that fill your cup! I'm especially grateful for Dr. Newsome joining our team, our students and families, our dedicated staff, and a community that always puts children first. Thank you for your trust and support - it's an honor to serve you all! Happy Thanksgiving! Stay healthy!

Chesapeake Beach Town Councilman Daniel Duvall

This year, I am especially thankful that I get to work alongside a Mayor, Town Council, and town staff who show up when it matters most. When our community faced the recent fire, Chesapeake Beach stood shoulder to shoulder with our neighbors. It's in those hard moments that challenge and test us that we see who we truly are as a town. Our citizens, neighboring communities, businesses, first responders, town staff, and elected leaders all showed through their actions how strong and caring Chesapeake Beach really is. I am grateful to be part of this team and to stand alongside everyone who steps up for our town.

Chesapeake Beach Councilwoman Laura Blackwelder

Happy Thanksgiving, family friends, neighbors, and fellow Chesapeake Beach and Calvert County citizens! We are all so fortunate to have a such beautiful place to call home! I wish you and yours safe travels, health, good food, and plenty of time to do what makes you feel happy with the ones you love.

This Thanksgiving, I am thankful to be spending the holiday right here in Chesapeake Beach with all four of my children, and I am especially grateful that it is my sister's turn to host our large family gathering!

Professionally, I am honored and fortunate to be part of a supportive, capable, collaborative, and resilient Federal team at the U.S. Census Bureau, and I am happy that we are all finally receiving paychecks again!

As my first year serving as a Councilwoman for the Town of Chesapeake Beach wraps up, I am thrilled to be playing tennis and pickleball again at the recently refurbished Beach Elementary School courts, and grateful for the efforts of Town Staff and all who helped make that happen.

Additionally, I am fortunate to work with a group of outstanding volunteers on the Walkable Community Advisory Group, who make working towards a safe bicycle and pedestrian friendly town a pleasure.

Chesapeake Beach has some of the most dedicated volunteers that I have ever encountered, and we all benefit from the work that our many volunteer committees and community organizations have been doing recently and in years past. My Council colleagues and I are the lucky ones to be living in and serving in this great community!

Finally, as the last leaves of 2025 drift down, I reflect that nature provided yet another spectacular show in Chesapeake Beach this fall. What a blessing! I look forward to seeing everyone out and about this winter holiday season!

Chesapeake Beach Town Councilman Jonathan Evans

Dear Calvert County Residents,

I hope this message finds you in high spirits as we enter this season of gratitude. I want to share what I am thankful for both personally and professionally and I hope that you can reflect on what you are thankful for as well.

On a personal note, I'm incredibly grateful that God has led my wife and I to raise our children here in Calvert County. Our Chesapeake Beach Community and Chesapeake Church Community have enriched our lives, and our proximity to the Chesapeake Bay is an added blessing. The support and closeness in our community make Calvert County a welcoming place that I am proud to call home.

Professionally, I am thankful for my role at Calvert Cliffs Clean Energy Center and my opportunity to serve as a Councilman for Chesapeake Beach. I'm particularly excited about leading the Waterpark Committee, which is set to bring an exciting new amenity to our Town and County in 2027. Working with dedicated individuals who are committed to improving our community has been incredibly rewarding.

As we celebrate Thanksgiving, let's take a moment to reflect on our blessings and the positive impact we can have on each other's lives. I'm honored to be part of this amazing community and look forward to creating more wonderful memories together.

Wishing you all a joyous and blessed Thanksgiving!

Safety Council's Goal: Zero Fatalities

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

Calvert County has a newly reconstituted Traffic Safety Council. Fifty members strong, the council has as its mission the reduction of traffic fatalities in the county to zero.

Some council members gathered at the new county commissioners' hearing room on Nov. 18 for a proclamation in honor of World Day of Remembrance for Road Traffic Victims, held this year on Nov. 16.

Observed globally, this solemn day honors those who have lost their lives or were seriously injured in road traffic incidents. It also recognizes the enduring impact on families, communities and the first responders who serve them.

In 2023, the Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) adopted the Calvert County Strategic Roadway Safety Plan (SRSP), reaffirming the county's commitment to preventing roadway fatalities and injuries through targeted, coordinated actions.

Council member Jessica Gaetano, transportation planner in the county's planning department, said since the adoption of the plan, "the Calvert County Traffic Safety Council was re-instituted and included collaboration on a regular basis with our partners at the local, state, and nonprofit level. This time last year when we recognized this event, the county had 14 fatalities on our roadways. Currently in 2025, we only have two confirmed fatalities. While we acknowledge that even one life lost on our roadways is too many, we're optimistic that we're working towards our shared goal of zero deaths on Calvert County roadways."

To aid in the battle the county has initiated a new software system called "Crash." Gaetano said, "It's local data that we are getting biweekly. So, we have the most up-to-date crash information so that we can move to improve all of our initiatives for zero deaths."

Kara Buckmaster, representing the Department of Public Safety on the council, said, "We support the council with hazard information and countywide assessments. Other members of the department include emergency communications. They help with the mapping and GIS aspects of it."

Sergeant Roscoe Kreps, head of the sheriff's office support services unit, said, "My team and I manage the traffic safety grants that we get through the Maryland Highway Safety Office, and we do enhanced, high visibility traffic enforcement to try and get distracted driving, impaired driving, speed enforcement and pedestrian and bicycle violations to get lower."

Of the new software, he said, "We can use that to identify hotspots of any of those four categories or combinations of them and direct our enforcements to those areas to better identify and address those issues."

Director of Public Safety Dave

McDowell, said, "It's an honor to be a part of the Traffic Safety Council and the hard work that they put in every day to try to make our roads safer."

McDowell said, "Myself over the years and several other people in this room have responded to crashes in this county. Sometimes it's not a good ending. So, anything we can do to educate ourselves and educate the public to reduce those incidents is more than worthwhile."

Maryland State Police Prince Frederick Barrack Commander Lt. Jimmie Meurrens said, "We have so many people from so many different organizations represented and coming together to try to have a positive effect on traffic collisions, fatalities in this county. I think that it's a testament to the data that's been collected and disseminated. That really shows why maybe we're seeing a decrease in collisions in this county. It's still in no small part to all of that work done behind the scenes as well as the work that's done on the street every day by the men and women of the County Sheriff's Office."

He said, "We must recognize that fatalities and serious injuries are often a result of a choice. We all make choices every day. Everything's about a life choice. Sometimes people choose to press a little bit harder on that gas pedal than they should. Sometimes people choose to pick up that phone to take that call, to send that text, to watch that video while they're driving. That's a choice. And I just ask that everybody choose wisely and remind everybody that we remain unwavering in our commitment as a state police to ensure that Calvert County is a safe place to live, work, and visit."

State's Attorney Bob Harvey said, "The criminal penalties that attach to persons convicted of automobile manslaughter in the state of Maryland are frankly ridiculously low. Last year, Senator (Jack) Bailey introduced legislation to double the punishment available for persons. Automobile manslaughter legislation unanimously passed the Senate. Unfortunately, it died in the House of Delegates without even coming up for a vote." He said Bailey intends to introduce the bill again next year and urged residents to write letters of support to the Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee Delegate Luke Clippinger.

Prosecutor Christopher Monte, a council member, said, "I think the software that we've gotten has been great because it's shown hotspots we have to monitor. It's also been able to aggregate reasons for the crashes. So, we're able to do the mock crashes, talk to the schools, talk to the young population about ways to make sure these crashes don't happen."

"I think having the council come back together has been great," he added.

Thanksgiving

Chesapeake Beach Town Councilman Anthony Greene

I want to wish everyone a very happy holiday season. I am thankful for this year's incredible opportunities to learn and grow both personally and professionally. I have been honored to serve my community, and the support from friends and family during this journey fills me with thanks and humility. Happy Thanksgiving.

I am especially thankful that I get to live in a very special community and live among people who are proud about where they live and who care about their neighbors and surrounding friends to our town.

Recently we witnessed and were able to support our local food pantries feed and meet the demands of families affected during the recent government shutdown. Our local food pantries will continue to support up to 300 families this Thanksgiving by providing a full meal.

North Beach residents all share a great appreciation for our town and we are proud to get to be able to live here, educate people who come here, and do our part to protect our most special resource, The Chesapeake Bay.

Personally, I would like to thank my family for supporting me and understanding some of the extra hours I have to spend outside our family time to do my duty for the town and the residents. They understand the importance of what I do, and how much it means to me to serve our community and the town of North Beach.

And to the residents, I am truly blessed to have been given the opportunity to be able to do what I am truly passionate about!

I would also like to personally thank the North Beach town staff. Each one of our staff members is a valuable piece to our town's success.

All the best!

North Beach Mayor Mike Benton (and Tina)

Hello everyone, and Happy Thanksgiving. I am deeply grateful to live in such an amazing community. Every day North Beach shows kindness, strength, and spirit for others. I feel blessed every day to be a part of it.

I'm also blessed and thankful to be surrounded by amazing friends and family members. I am so proud of my kids, not just for their successes, but more importantly, their BIG hearts for the needs of others. Happy Thanksgiving!

North Beach Councilwoman Mary Healey

My wish is for everyone to have a wonderful Thanksgiving. As a town councilwoman,

Town Lauds Community Response for Fire Victims

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

"This was Chesapeake Beach at its best." Mayor Bruce Wahl was talking about the outpouring of community support to aid the 25 people displaced by the Nov. 17 fire at the Courtyard at Fishing Creek apartment complex.

Wahl and the town council recognized that community support at the Nov. 20 town council meeting.

That included the young man, Zachary Hanson, who spotted the fire and wet door to door to warn residents to evacuate.

It included Mary Lanham and Wesley Donavan, owners of Rod 'N Reel Resort and Spa, who opened up rooms free of charge for the fire victims.

It included the owners and staff of Trader's Restaurant, who provided a free breakfast for those who were rousted by the early morning blaze.

And of course included the 40 volunteers from the North Beach Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad, who raced to the scene along with their brothers and sisters from every other fire department in the county and from neighboring counties.

It also included Pastor Glenn Swanson from Bayside Baptist Church, which assisted the victims and the community in many ways in the aftermath.

Pastor Swanson gave his thanks to the community in the form of a prayer:

"Lord Jesus, we come before you today and this evening, and we're grateful for you and your mercy and your grace and your provision.

"Thank you for you being the creator of all things. Thank you, Lord, for this town of Chesapeake Beach. Thank you for this wonderful mayor, town council, and staff.

"Lord, we're thankful and grateful for our first responders. Lord, we especially see this week as they just jumped right into action and did a fantastic job with, as they always do, serving those who need help.

"So, thank you for our fire department. Thank you for our police departments, our paramedics and everybody in between. Lord, we're so grateful for them.

"Thank you for the families, Lord, that they have as well, and just bless them.

"But Lord, our hearts are heavy, because of this tragedy this week. Our hearts think about these families at Fishing Creek; 25 folks, 17 adults and eight children.

"Lord, we know Monday morning was a tough day. Last time we stood in this room, we were having folks come in and they were in pajamas and some with no shoes and no coats.

"But Lord, in the matter of hours, this town came through and provided so much. We had people bringing food and water and coffee and clothing and providing shelter.

"And Lord, it was just so great that we could see a town come together such as this or such a time as this. Lord, I've had many people say, if we can only do this every day, and, we know this world and this culture is tough and there's division all around us, and it's a shame that tragedy has to bring us together.

"But Lord, we just pray our hearts will be changed and transformed by what happened this week, that this town would come closer together, the citizens would come closer together and not just be when tragedy happens, but every single day.

"So, Lord, bless these families, be with those that have faithfully served and been behind the scenes, so many people to name.

"Lord, I know the top priority is getting them housing. So, Lord, I pray that that will be available to them soon."

Several people who spoke that night criticized the apartment complex's management company.

Wahl said, "I have had a chance to talk, brainstorm a little bit after this, and have some ideas of how in the future, when things are built that you wouldn't have the problems that you see here. And I guess the biggest problem, Jay (Berry, town public works administrator), is that the entire attic structure is enclosed and there's no way to get to it. Is that correct?"

Berry responded, "It's one of the things. There's a lot of details. It's an older structure and codes are different today. But, I don't want to get into too many details, but (it's) the second fire in there. I firsthand watched everything transpire. Do I think there's some things when they move forward? I have some ideas. I'm not the code; we're not the fire marshals. But seeing two things happen twice, I've got some things I want to share with them."

Where Giants Once Roamed

By Ronald N. Guy
Contributing Writer

If one could sit perpetually motionless in one location, basic sustenance not required, the landscape would not hold static. Change – be it welcomed, unfortunate, beautiful or grotesque – is a promise of life. Hair turns grays or departs. Babies grow up. Loved ones transition to another dimension. Professional endeavors, homes, presidents, perhaps a spouse or two, come and go. The natural world wakes in the spring, turns green in the summer, offers a wonderful array of colors in the fall and goes gray in the winter, providing a neutral backdrop to accentuate the brilliant white of fallen snow.

Individual relationships with change are complicated. It is likely not universally dreaded or welcomed – change can be good, it can be bad, it can be an unexpected tonic to reinvigorate life or an unfortunate twist that begets a psychological malaise. Whatever the emotional response, change will be encountered; it is as inevitable as the expiration of life itself.

For the last few years — I suspect like many of you, my dear readers — I've been wandering around our little blue dot in some state of bewilderment. Something feels off. A pandemic, devastating weather events, toxic politics, acceleration of artificial intelligence and a government shutdown, mixed in a cocktail with normal stuff that just happens over the course of five years, will do that, I suppose. I'm trying to hold on and keep up in this Land of Confusion, as Genesis crooned about many years ago. Wisdom indeed does come with age; I assumed it would bring a greater understanding of life. Although maybe understanding is the folly of youth; age brings the wisdom to know that any moment in life is as fragile as a tiny turtle hatchling struggling find the sea. Leaves in the breeze, we are, flipping, fluttering and changing course at the whims of mysterious and invisible forces.

For a few decades now, the landscape at the corner of Newtowne Neck and Bayside roads has provided solace with each passage. Bar on one side, softball field on the other, it has remained perfectly unchanged by the passage of time: the great oak in a relentless storm of change, a beacon for how things used to be, a visual that comforted my confounded soul.

The earth underfoot has shifted again. The ball field is now gone; its day finally came. Plowed over, it is being repurposed for something other than the only thing I've ever known this magical spec of land for: softball. I know little of the details that led to this outcome. Maybe it could have been saved through some proactive local government initiative. It is an historic place, after all, something that would seem worth saving, at least in some form. It doesn't seem to matter now. The result is the unfortunate result. File it with all the other things that have had the world on tilt.

I'm certain that many reading this piece know this ball field well and hold their own special memories of it. I would love to hear them, if you're so inclined to drop me a line. For me, it is synonymous with the Hobos softball team. When dreaming of this field, it is perpetually the summer of 1982 and I am 11 years old. The Hobos, donned in their blue and white uniforms are locked in an epic clash with Pennie's or the Hollywood Stars. The stands are packed. There's an audible buzz in the air. Bats line the dugout. Gloves pop with the arrive a swiftly thrown softball. Coolers stuffed with beer await consumption after the duel's conclusion. There is nowhere else I'd rather be. In the eyes of my childhood self, I'm at the center of the universe, at the edge of a magical sandlot, watching giants roam.

In the years since, these memories have been refreshed by the presence and visual encounter of that field; I hope its physical departure does not cause them to fade. Time will tell. Instead of melancholy, I'll endeavor gratefulness — this being the season of thanksgiving — to have lived these grand experiences at an enchanted corner in Compton.

FINANCIAL FOCUS®

Millennials and fraud: Protecting yourself in a digital world

Fear of fraud is universal. Today, 77% of Americans are concerned about fraud and identity theft when managing finances online, according to 2025 research from Edward Jones and Morning Consult. Even more striking: 26% of Americans have personally experienced financial fraud.

While fraud is often associated with the elderly, millennials are among the hardest hit. Over one-fourth (28.6%) of millennials reported experiencing financial loss due to scams — more than any other generation, per 2024 research from PYMNTS Intelligence.

Here are common scams targeting millennials:

- Cryptocurrency – Promises of guaranteed profits or zero risk are red flags. Watch for Ponzi schemes and fake crypto launches.
- Payment apps – Watch for scammers impersonating someone you know or spoofing app emails to steal credentials.
- Online shopping – Beware of fake sites or ads selling trendy items at unrealistic prices.
- Student loan forgiveness – Scammers who offer debt relief for a fee just want your info or money.
- Government – IRS calls or texts about an unclaimed refund or an unpaid tax bill are scams. The IRS only contacts taxpayers in writing by U.S. mail.
- Job and gig – Avoid unusually high-paying online jobs requiring upfront purchases.
- Romance – Requests for money in online relationships are a major warning sign.

Learning to spot fraud matters. Be suspicious of these warning signs: unexpected windfalls, like contests you didn't enter; pressure to pay immediately or upfront; requests for payment via gift cards, wire transfers or crypto; or receiving a check and being asked to wire part of it back.

Also look out for spelling and grammar errors in emails and texts, fake social media profiles, requests to access your computer to "fix a problem" and unsolicited contact, especially from a bank, government agency or tech support.

Some practices can help you stay safe. Use strong, unique passwords and different ones for different accounts. Use multifactor authentication (MFA) wherever possible; it can block unauthorized access. And before entering personal or financial information on a website, make sure the URL starts with <https://> and shows a padlock icon. This means it's a secure site.

If you think you've been scammed, don't beat yourself up. Scammers are professionals who exploit human psychology. Anyone can fall victim. Here's what to do:

- Act quickly. Contact your bank or payment company immediately to try to stop any payments in progress. Change your passwords and usernames right away if they may have been compromised. Run an antivirus scan on devices that might be affected.
- Report the crime. File a report with the Federal Trade Commission at reportfraud.ftc.gov. For online fraud, also file a complaint with the FBI's Internet Crime Complaint Center (ic3.gov). These agencies can provide resources and connect you with law enforcement.
- Protect yourself going forward. Monitor your credit reports regularly and consider freezing your credit with the credit agencies. Learn more ways to protect yourself at consumer.ftc.gov.

The digital world offers incredible convenience but also opportunities for criminals. Stay alert and know how to respond to help protect yourself and your financial future.

Christmas on the Square: A Tradition Since 1933

By Vada Mercer
Contributing Writer

Leonardtown's beloved annual Christmas on the Square will celebrate the holidays and the community on November 28 with over 100 vendors, sleigh rides, free photos with Santa, and the iconic tree lighting ceremony.

Festivities will begin at 4:30 p.m., where guests can enjoy holiday music or hop aboard a hayride. Santa will arrive at 7 p.m. to light the tree, and then he will make his way to his chair for free photos.

Santa isn't the only one visiting from the North Pole. Mrs. Claus will be reading stories throughout the night, and elves will be around helping lead crafts. The Grinch and other holiday characters will be roaming the event as well.

With around 5,000 attendants expected, the town has prepared a plethora of fun activities and services like balloon art, train rides, hot cocoa and specialty drinks. There will also be a live nativity scene.

The tradition owes its longevity to the Leonardtown Volunteer Fire Department, who donates and helps put up the artificial tree used every year.

According to department records, the first community Christmas tree was erected in 1933, donated from John Ralph Abell's farm and powered by Nuttrell's Store.

By the mid 30s', decorating the town tree had become an annual responsibility, with committees appointed each fall to prepare for the holidays.

The tradition continued into the 50s', where in 1959 the concept of bringing Santa Claus in on a firetruck was introduced.

One year, the tradition faced uncertainty, as the town had been facing an energy shortage and was asked to conserve power. The town opted to illuminate the tree using a single spotlight and decorated it with wrapped packages donated by local businesses.

A major turning point for the event came in 1988, when the department launched its first annual train display and formal tree-lighting ceremony at the square. More than 1,600 attended the first year, and that number nearly doubled the second.

Since then, the event has only grown, bringing in more support from Leonardtown businesses. Today, an artificial tree is used instead, hoping to conserve mature living trees.

Stuffed Ham: A Southern Maryland Delicacy's Origins in Slavery

By Vada Mercer
Contributing Writer

St. Mary's County families have spent recent weekends grinding kale and cabbage and simmering hams for hours in preparation for Thanksgiving dinner. Those not cooking it at home have placed orders for it at long-standing spots like Chief's and Chaptico Market.

Stuffed ham, Southern Maryland's staple delicacy, is most popular around the holidays, but many are unaware of the food's origins.

Though the meal's history may never be confirmed, the story that has survived generations says enslaved people were the first to make stuffed ham.

As the story goes, enslaved cooks on Southern Maryland plantations were often given discarded or poor cuts of meat. Oral history says jowls were sometimes distributed to enslaved people during the holidays.

To stretch and improve the flavor of the meat, enslaved people filled it with vegetables grown in their own small gardens, most commonly cabbage and kale. They would then wrap the meat in rags and leave it to boil until it was tender.

Plantation owners eventually tried the dish and adopted it, believing they could elevate it using higher quality cuts. Corned ham became the preferred choice because it preserves well and holds seasoning.

W.J. Dent and Sons' stuffed ham sandwiches. The restaurant gets swamped with orders for their beloved stuffed ham every holiday season.

Since being woven into Southern Maryland culture, stuffed ham has become a deeply local tradition, one that families pass down through generations, each adding their own variation.

Everyone does stuffed ham differently. To make the slits to fill the meat, some use knives, while others use electric drills. The most common way to wrap the ham now is with cheese cloth, but some still use pillow-cases to cook it in instead.

It's said that in more northern parts of Southern Maryland, they prefer more kale to cabbage, while the inverse is true the deeper south you get.

Southern Maryland locals who have moved away still enjoy their stuffed ham, often having loved ones mail it to them across the country or overseas.

The dish has become a love language for many. One St. Mary's County resident of almost 60 years recalled moving to the area as a newlywed and wanting to surprise her husband, a lifelong county native, with a homemade stuffed ham.

Since the recipe called for red pepper, she got a small paper bag full of them from the market. Unaware of the heat, she used the full bag.

"I was so excited to do it while he was at work and didn't know anything about it," she said.

When her husband took the first bite, she said he had to put his mouth right to the kitchen faucet for water. "We were newly married, and I was just trying to show him what I could do. That was something I had to live with all these years, he would tease me about it all the time."

She has made stuffed ham every year since, carefully following her husband's family recipe, and being much more cautious with the red pepper.

In a county that is constantly modernizing, stuffed ham endures as a symbol of local identity. Whether families are coming together to grind vegetables and make it themselves or enjoying it around the dinner table, stuffed ham is a St. Mary's County exclusive treasure that many families are thankful for this holiday season.

Maryland Libraries Receive Federal Grants St. Mary's Included in Recipients

The Maryland State Library Agency (MSLA) is pleased to announce the awarding of $404,715 in federal Library Services and Technology Act (LSTA) funds to public library systems across the state.

These competitive grants, funded through the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) and administered by MSLA, support locally developed initiatives such as improving reading skills, bolstering workforce development efforts, developing strategic plans, providing access to mobile libraries and telehealth booths, and other important library services.

"Maryland public library systems work hard to serve the evolving needs of their communities, and these innovative new projects are a direct result of those efforts," said Maryland State Librarian Morgan Lehr Miller. "We're grateful to our federal partners at IMLS for continuing to support public libraries and the millions of Marylanders who rely on them."

MSLA distributes approximately $1.7 million annually in LSTA funds through the Grants to States program to all county public library systems.

St. Mary's received this funding in the latest LSTA competitive grant cycle:

- Closing Reading Gaps: To address low reading achievement in an underserved community, St. Mary's County Library will collaborate with three after-school programs, training volunteer tutors in the evidence-based Story Champs program and providing students with quality reading materials and essential technology.

New Health Department Building Draws Sticker Shock

Commissioners Question $61M Price Tag

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

St. Mary's County Health Officer Dr. Meenakshi Brewster and county staff have been asked to go back to the drawing board by the county commissioners after presentation of a proposal for a new $61 million, 91,999-square-foot health department building. The proposal was significantly more expensive and larger than an earlier proposal.

Commissioner Mike Hewitt called it a Taj Mahal.

The Department of Public Work's and Transportation's Deputy Director Gary Whipple explained what happened. At the commissioner's first budget work session for FY 27 on Nov. 18, Whipple said, "The existing facility is 29,600 square feet. And then also the health department has leased space that they're using to meet their current needs. There're about 176 parking spaces right now for the Peabody St. location on about five acres."

He explained, "We conducted a feasibility study in 2021, and that feasibility study looked at the nine different operational units of the health department. We went through a space needs analysis and looked at efficiencies, public facing needs versus things that had more confidential nature, the different type of uses. The 2021 study is the one on which the current CIP (Capital Improvement Plan) sheet has been based for the last four years. They looked at national averages for office space use. That was the standard that they used."

He added, "That study also identified a need for 24,000 square feet for just general storage. And we looked at two alternatives for that project. One, partial renovation and then new construction versus all new construction. And what we determined during that study was that it was not feasible for us to renovate the existing building. That would trigger code upgrades, fire suppression. There's not enough head space in the building for even fire mains. So that looked very cost prohibitive. So, the CIP sheet was based upon a new facility." That would have been 58,100 square feet.

Whipple explained, "We worked with the health department last year to update the study." Using the same consultant and "their review of the requirements of the health department was the next level of detail." And "they used, instead of national averages for office space, the Facility Institute guidelines for outpatient facility."

Which led Hewitt to observe, "It's going to be a hospital," adding, "You intended to be an ancillary to the hospital to do outpatient stuff."

Brewster explained, "We provide clinical services. This is not an inpatient hospital."

Brewster said, "That element was not as developed in the first study. And we found that out when we did the most recent study. Also, what we've uncovered in this second study was after the effects of COVID have been assessed in the operations of the health department, we determined that there was a significantly larger need for condition storage. Things that are stored in climate and humidity control in addition to the general storage needs. So, we have about 7,800 square feet of requirement for condition storage."

She said the 91,000 square feet, which also includes a drive through vaccine test area similar to what was done at the Hollywood Fire Department, is a projection for her department's needs in 2040.

Brewster said the premise of both studies was to keep all her department in one location. But Commissioner Eric Colvin said, "I'd like to push back on that premise just a little bit. I know everything in county government when we talk about space needs is flexing and swinging on the sheriff's headquarters. And once that is built, the sheriffs are able to occupy that new building, freeing up space in (the existing) building. In my mind, I would love to see the environmental services branch of the health department co-located next to Land Use and Growth Management. I think that would make a lot of sense for our citizens that need to get permits for different things. They can go to one place in order to get those services."

Brewster countered, "We're always looking at ways to improve the door for citizens in our community and try to make services easier for them. And that's why the health department has focused so much with your support, in finding ways to implement electronic records management so people can access the things they need electronically. We also have methods now for people to submit applications electronically, which has removed the requirement in many cases for people to go between agencies. Wells and septic are a portion of what we do in environmental health. But certainly, a lot of our other work involves engaging with infectious diseases, the rabies control program, for example."

Regarding things being done electronically, Colvin said, "I just don't want us to ever lose sight of the face-to-face customer service."

County Health Officer Dr. Meenakshi Brewster

"I think we could be really set up very strategically and very well in one location for that face-to-face," Brewster said.

She added, "Our environmental health laboratory involves biohazards. We have site certification related to that. We have venting associated with that. And for environmental health, wherever environmental health team is located, we need to ensure our laboratory is able to be located there as well."

But Colvin stuck to his guns about going back and reviewing shared space. The commissioners also wanted a look at what phasing in the entire building would look like. Whipple said there was money available to study that.

Brewster reminded the commissioners, "We provide quite a bit of clinical services to our community, including behavioral health, clinical services, and other types of outpatient primary care, urgent care types of clinical services. These are services our community members really rely upon. These are services that benefit the economy by helping people stay healthy and stay at work and stay in schools."

But Hewitt said, "I guess the answer is, is 91,000 square feet a new paradigm. For this commissioner, I don't think I'd heard this number before. And $61 million is just not reasonable."

Regarding looking at different approaches, Colvin said, "We definitely want what's best for our citizens as much as possible, but I think this is a little too far of a reach for us and for what we can afford."

Leonardtown to Chopticon Redistricting Draws Ire

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

A redistricting proposal by consultant Cannon Design Partnership has some students and their parents up in arms. The proposal would have them transferred from Leonardtown High School (LHS) to Chopticon High School (CHS). They say the move would harm them socially and in academics, athletics, and extracurricular activities.

The move is included in all three redistricting options Cannon has presented, which are listed in the school systems redistricting section of their website.

The three proposals are:

- Plan 1
 - Utilization goal for each high school is 104 percent.
 - Utilization percentages range between 103 – 106 percent
 - Neighborhoods remain intact
 - Northern areas of Leonardtown High School are assigned to Chopticon High School
 - Northern areas of Leonardtown High School are assigned to Great Mills High School
 - Elizabeth Hills neighborhood is assigned to Great Mills High School
 - 12 percent of high school students are affected
- Plan 2
 - Utilization goal for each high school is 104 percent.
 - Utilization percentages range between 103-106 percent
 - Neighborhoods remain intact
 - Northern areas of Leonardtown High School are assigned to Chopticon High School
 - Northern areas of Leonardtown High School are assigned to Great Mills High School
 - Elizabeth Hills neighborhood is assigned to Great Mills High School
 - Breton Bay area is assigned to Chopticon High School
 - 12 percent of high school students are affected
- Plan 3
 - Utilization goal for each high school is 104 percent.
 - Utilization percentages range between 103-105 percent
 - Neighborhoods remain intact
 - Northern areas of Leonardtown High School are assigned to Chopticon High School
 - Northern areas of Leonardtown

High School are assigned to Great Mills High School

- Elizabeth Hills neighborhood is assigned to Great Mills High School
- 11 percent of high school students are affected

The concerns about the high school redistricting were aired during the St. Mary's County Board of Education's Nov. 19 meeting. The school board will begin to address redistricting during their first meeting in December.

At the Nov. 19 meeting, Baylin Derby, a LHS sophomore, said, "While this produces more level enrollment, it prevents us being as successful as I know we can be. Take me for example, at Leonardtown this year. I've upheld a 4.33 GPA because of a teacher network I know and understand. Moving to Chopticon forces me to learn a new network and choose from a less robust AP program, thus inevitably lowering my cumulative GPA and lessening my chances at obtaining the AP CAP award. I filled the position of class president for the Class of '28 this year and moving me to Chopticon lessens my likelihood of ever being elected for class office again."

"Removing me from my class, prevents me from learning valuable leadership skills and how to advocate for people who can't advocate for themselves. My class and I are codependent upon each other and separating us hurts both the class and myself."

Concerns were also expressed about the impact on athletics. Leonardtown just earned state championships in Field Hockey and boys' Soccer.

Debry said, "I know sports aren't the main focus of this redistricting, but they should be considered when they have real world consequences. Being moved to Chopticon obviously takes me off the Leonardtown football team. And have you considered how that affects athletes? Chances of getting scholarships (are greater) with a football program like ours dedicated to helping athletes get scholarships through recruiting, tutoring, and teaching real world people skills."

He said, "Taking me away from coaches that I've already built a lifelong bond with, compromises my progress towards becoming a successful college athlete."

He pleaded, "Please don't make me abandon my family for the last two years of my high school career."

Other speakers echoed Debry's sentiments and included the option of grandfathering existing students or requiring them to provide their own transportation.

Sophomore Piper Charlton said, "I would like to speak on the importance of a grandfather clause. Over the two years I've been at Leonardtown, my grades have been exceptional, and I've also been a part of the National Honor Society, soccer, basketball, and lacrosse teams. And I'm currently in the Academy of Health Professions Program at the tech center."

She said she would be returning to soccer from an injury. "I'll also have many limitations that only a coach who knows my situation could handle. If my injury isn't handled properly, there could be serious repercussions setting me back another year."

She added, "If I were redistricted to attend Chopticon next year, that would give me two years left of high school. I only get to live the high school experience once, and in this case, I would only get to live half of it. Not to mention the importance of senior year. Those memories last for a lifetime. And having to start from scratch halfway through could be detrimental to my high school involvement, including my participation in clubs that will also cultivate positive memories."

In addition to the school board, the county commissioners have been inundated with complaints about the Leonardtown to Chopticon redistricting, even though they don't have a role in the process.

Several said that the three high schools offered equal opportunity. Commissioner President Randy Guy noted his son attended CHS and he has had a successful personal life and professional career.

GIVE THANKS

To my gracious and loving Southern Maryland community,

As Thanksgiving 2025 approaches, my heart turns once again to the beautiful reminder "In everything give thanks." This simple phrase carries profound weight. It calls us not only to give thanks for the blessings we can see, but to give thanks in every season of life. This means in times of trouble, in good times, in sad times, in happy times, in grievous times, and in loving times, in All we do give thanks. Whatever season you are in right now. No matter if it's a peak or a valley— trusting that God's hand is at work for your good even when His plan is not yet fully visible. "GIVE THANKS"

This year has brought its share of victories and challenges, grief and happiness, setbacks and blessings yet through it all, I have witnessed the remarkable love and charity of our community. I've seen it time and time again. The miracles of what God's LOVE and our communities CHARITY can do. In the warm fellowship of our gatherings, in the compassion shared with those in need, in the strength and faith offered during times of difficulty, and in the way we continually lift one another in prayer. I am truly humbled and grateful to be the Shepard to the homeless and less fortunate. Seeing the Grace of God save souls and change lives. Through His beloved Son Jesus Christ, and His sacrifice and love for us.

Psalm 100:1-5 — A Song of Praise for the Lord's Faithfulness to His People

A Psalm of Thanksgiving.

- 1 Make a joyful shout to the Lord, all you lands!
- 2 Serve the Lord with gladness; Come before His presence with singing.
- 3 Know that the Lord, He is God; It is He who has made us, and not we ourselves; We are His people and the sheep of His pasture.
- 4 Enter into His gates with thanksgiving, And into His courts with praise. Be thankful to Him, and bless His name.
- 5 For the Lord is good; His mercy is everlasting, And His truth endures to all generations.

With love and thankfulness always,
